THE UNDERSEA BATTLE
UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE, INC.
THE GIANT SHARK RUSHED DOWN UPON THE HAPLESS APE-MAN, ITS DEADLY JAWS AGAPE.
WITH JUNGLE-BORN AGILITY, TARZAN WHIRLED FROM THE PATH OF THE VORACIOUS MONSTER AND....
....AS IT SHOT PAST, HIS LEFT HAND CLOSED MOMENTARILY ON A SLIPPERY FIN.
AT THE SAME TIME HE DREW HIS KNIFE AND PLUNGED IT INTO THE COLD FLESH OF THE SEA-BEAST.
BUT THE SHARK LUNGED AND SHOOK HIM OFF; AND A VIOLENT FLIP OF ITS TAIL TOSSED TARZAN HIGH INTO THE AIR.
AS HE FELL BACK, THE MONSTER WHIRLED AGAIN TO THE ATTACK, AND THE APE-MAN LANDED ON ITS HEAD.
THEN, AS TARZAN DROVE HIS KNIFE REPEATEDLY INTO THE TOUGH HIDE, THE SHARK PLUNGED BENEATH THE SURFACE, CARRYING THE APE-MAN WITH HIM.
TARZAN KNEW THAT HIS SUBMARINE JOURNEY COULD NOT LAST LONG. SOON, HE OR THE SHARK MUST DIE!
BUT PRESENTLY HIS JABBING BLADE FOUND A VITAL SPOT; AND THE MONSTER'S LIFE AND STRENGTH FADED SWIFTLY.
THEN THE CONQUERING TARZAN SPRANG UPWARD TOWARD THE SURFACE.
HE DREW THE WELCOME AIR DEEP INTO HIS LUNGS AND SET OUT FOR THE RAFT, WHICH NOW WAS FAR AWAY.
NEXT WEEK THE STRANGE WARRIOR
HE SWAM SWIFTLY, FEARING THAT HE WAS ALREADY TOO LATE TO SAVE SYBIL FROM THE MADDENED BOHGDU!

ROOSEVELT VETO ALMOST CERTAIN TO BE SUSTAINED

Sternly Worded Message On Patman Bonus Measure Completed

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS ON BILL WILL BE BROADCAST

Inflation Plan's Leaders Decide To Face Showdown Quickly

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP)—While President Roosevelt completed in seclusion a sternly worded bonus veto, a check of senate votes today disclosed that his rejection of the inflationary $2,200,000,000 Patman bonus bill almost certainly would be upheld.

A virtually complete survey failed to show a single change in the 35 votes registered or announced against the inflationary bill when it passed the senate early last week, despite the intense anti-veto campaign conducted by its friends. Should 33 vote with the president the veto would be upheld.

On the other hand, several senators who voted for the bill originally appeared to be wavering in view of the president's dramatic show of determination to kill the bill. The executive's intention to appear personally to present his veto, a hitherto unpre-

TO BROADCAST SPEECH

NEW YORK, May 18.—The National Broadcasting company and the Columbia Broadcasting system have announced that they will broadcast the president's personal veto message to congress on the Patman bonus bill over nationwide networks. Their announcements said that they have set a tentative time for the broadcast between 1 and 2 p.m., eastern standard time, May 20 or 21. Washington advices indicate that the message will be delivered Wednesday.

Transport Ship Crashes With 10 Aboard During Airport Dedication

FLINT, Mich., May 18.—(AP)—A pilot and two passengers were killed and two other occupants of a tri-motored transport plane were seriously injured today when the plane crashed during dedication of a new airport.

The dead:

Theodore Knowles, Detroit, Mich.

Mrs. Mary Rushlow, 34, of Flint.

Conrad Rushlow, 7, son of the dead woman.

Clement D. Rushlow, husband of the woman killed, and a three-year-old daughter were taken to a hospital in a serious condition.

Knowles' plane, in which he had been carrying passengers throughout the day, crashed as he attempted to take off from the field with ten passengers. At an altitude of less than

ORLEANS EMPLOYES TO RECEIVE HALF SALARY

NEW ORLEANS, May 18.—(AP)—City policemen and firemen, now under Huey Long-controlled governing boards, are anticipating receiving only half of their semi-monthly salaries on Monday unless the city administration obtains consent of a new Long-managed board to borrow funds for current expenses.

Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, political foe of Long, is seeking to borrow $3,200,000 from the banks to be refunded by anticipated tax payments, but under a Long-dictated law, municipalities must obtain approval of the newly-created state bond and tax board before incurring debt.

The police and fire departments of the city recently went under Long board management and intensified the war over city management and financing between Long with his obedient legislature and Walmsley with his "Old Regular" city forces.

STATE SUPREME COURT TO RECESS ON JULY 1

NEW ORLEANS, May 18.—(AP)—John R. Land, Jr., chief clerk of the Louisiana supreme court, announced today that the supreme court would adjourn about July 1 until October for the summer recess.

Two more opinions sessions will be held before the recess, May 27 and June 24.

PICTURES TELL a story better than words. To make clear the story of the Patman bill and soldiers' bonus this writer has caused, to be made for publication in a newspaper of large circulation, a cartoon that you may reconstruct in your own mind.

Uncle sam stands before you, his left hand gives to a typical veteran on crutches a bag containing $2,200,000,000.

On his right stands a fat person, labelled "money lender," who receives, as interest on the bonus, a bag also containing $2,200,000,000.

Uncle Sam remarks to the veteran: "I hand you this money with pleasure because you have earned it in the trenches. Why I am compelled to hand the same amount to the money lender on my right, I don't know."

CAN YOU understand why this government, its people and its taxpayers should give two billion, two hundred millions to money-lenders, in addition to giving the same sum to veterans?

Can anybody even pretend to ex-

PARISH FARMERS BACK FROM TREK

Delegation Enjoyed Profitable Visit In Washington; Heard President

Returning here yesterday on a special train from Washington, where they attended a mass meeting of farmers, members of the Ouachita parish delegation expressed themselves as having enjoyed a trip they considered profitable, as well as pleasurable.

After attending various meetings and conferences, the farmers visited places of scenic and historic interest in the capital and assembled on the lawn of the White House to hear an address by President Roosevelt.

The address was of noteworthy interest and the president held the close attention of his audience of several thousand farmers, the local delegation reported. The president brought a personal touch into his address with reference to his own problems on his farm in Georgia, on which he has planted 50 acres of cotton.

Among other addresses heard by the farmers were those delivered during an all-day conference of farmers representing corn, hog, cotton, wheat and tobacco growers. Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, Chester C. Davis, administrator of the agricultural adjustment administration, and several senators and representatives who gave brief addresses, were the speakers.

Places visited by the local delegation in their tour of the capital included Mount Vernon, the home of George Washington, the home of Robert E. Lee in Arlington cemetery, the Smithsonian institute, offices of the

LOUISIANA COLLEGE PRESIDENT INJURED

ALEXANDRIA, La., May 18.—(AP)—Dr. Claybrook Cottingham, president of Louisiana College of Pineville, was injured this afternoon when his automobile collided with another car, which Town Marshal John Woodward, of Pineville said was driven by Guy Miley.

Natt Lofton, a white youth who had been acting as caddy at the Rapides Golf and Country club, who was in the car with Dr. Cottingham, suffered a skull fracture and the loss of one of his eyes. Miley was also seriously injured, Marshal Woodward said.

Rr. Cottnigtam had been playing golf and was driving home out the entrance to the club when the collision occurred. Marshal Woodward said that Miley was on the wrong side of the road.

OPENING OF TWO NEW L.S.U. SCHOOLS HELD UP

BATON ROUGE, La., May 18.—(AP)—Postponement of the opening of the new schools of dentistry and pharmacy of Louisiana State university for another year was announced tonight by Dr. James M. Smith, president of the university.

Impossibility of completing the buildings that will house the schools in time for opening in the fall as had been planned was assigned as reason for the postponement.

Dr. Smith said the announcement was made to permit students who had intended entering the schools to enroll elsewhere.

HAMILTON CASE GOES TO JURORS SATURDAY NIGHT

Pleas For Conviction And Acquittal Offered In Opposing Arguments

DEFENSE CONTENDS STATE HAS NOT PROVEN MURDER

Prosecution Declares Physician Was Dead When Building Caught Fire

JENA, La., May 18.—(Special)—The case of Louis Hamilton, Harmon Sheppard and Floyd Miller, charged with murder in connection with the death of Dr. Fred Hamilton, father of Louis, went to the Jury at 11:23 o'clock tonight. A verdict was expected within the next hour.

JENA, La., May 18.—(AP)—Pleas for conviction on the ground of alleged conspiracy, and acquittal because of "flimsy evidence" were offered today to the jury in opposing arguments summing up the case of Louis Hamilton, Harmon Sheppard and Floyd Miller, charged with murder in connection with the death of Dr. Fred Hamilton, father of Louis and former LaSalle parish coroner.

Louis Hamilton, arrested while he was pursuing his medical studies at Tulane university, and the other two defendants were accused by District Attorney V. M. Mouser in his argument with conspiring to kill Dr. Hamilton in order to collect on his war risk insurance policy, but the defense did not attempt to fix the cause of death other than to contend that the state had not proven murder.

"Referring to a sandbag reportedly found beside the body of Dr. Hamilton," G. Wray Gill, defense attorney, in his argument, declared, "we don't say how Dr. Hamilton died. But we do say that the state hasn't proved he was murdered."

Dr. Hamilton's body was found in the charred ruins of his apartment-home on the night of June 10, 1933, after the building had burned and the state charged that he was slain and the house set afire to cover up the alleged crime.

The prosecution did not ask for capital punishment but the district attorney said the state would be sat-

CAPITAL CHOSEN CONVENTION CITY

Business And Professional Women Meet At Baton Rouge In 1936

Baton Rouge was unanimously selected as the 1936 convention city by the Louisiana Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs at the afternoon session of the annual meeting here Saturday. Dr. Mabel Fontane Wood of New Orleans was re-elected president. Other officers elected were: First Vice-President, Miss Maud Reid, Lake Charles; second vice-president, Miss Leocadie Amiss, Baton Rouge; recording secretary, Mrs. Elsie Galatas, Covington; treasurer, Mrs. Laura Slator, Monroe; auditor, Mrs. Nell Murphy, Shreveport.

A resolution was adopted urging repeal of 213-A, of the economy act, as a measure showing discrimination against women holding positions under the government and one which it was declared "was calculated to ultimately remove all married women from public positions." Copies of the

ETHIOPIAN MONARCH ABOLISHES SERFDOM

ADDIS ABABA, ETHIOPIA, May 18.—(AP)—In a sweeping decree Ethiopia's monarch, Emperor Haile Selassie, abolished serfdom today throughout the nation.

The ruler also ordered a program equalizing the system of land taxation, which an official announcement said would advance the country 1,000 years in civilization.

Masses cheered the progressive steps, the announcement added.

Italian newspapers recently urged intervention in the north African kingdom on the ground that slavery still existed. In recent years slavery followed the form of forced labor and "debt peonage."

RED RIVER STAGE DUE TO HIT PEAK

Highest Reading In Years Expected On Stream In Two Weeks

SHREVEPORT, La., May 18.—(AP)—Red River, which has been bank full for several days and in some places, particularly around Colfax, La., has flooded adjacent lowlands, is expected to reach its highest stage in several years during the next two weeks as the result of torrential rainfall throughout the valley.

Red river at Denison, Texas, rose 6.3 feet from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. today and the gauge reader there said he expected a further rise of 2 feet during the night.

OUIDA KEETON AGAIN CHANGES ATTORNEYS

LAUREL, Miss., May 18.—(AP)—For the second time since her arrest for the "butcher-murder" of her widowed mother, Miss Ouida Keeton, young brunette stenographer, has changed counsel to defend her.

The first switch of counsel was made prior to her trial for murder in connection with the strange death of her mother, Mrs. Daisy Keeton.

The second change was announced today just ahead of the setting of date for trial of W. M. Carter, prominent Laurel society and business man and former employer of Ouida, who is held in the Hinds county jail at Jackson awaiting his trial on a charge of murder.

PETERMAN SETS UP WORK RELIEF FORCE IN STATE

Man To Head Fifth District Activities Not Yet Appointed

OFFICIALS WILL HANDLE THE DIVISIONAL PROBLEMS

Senator Chasez, George McSpangler, Powers Higginbotham Named

NEW ORLEANS, May 18.—(AP)—Frank H. Peterman, state administrator of federal relief in Louisiana, announced today he had set up a personnel division in the state to assure the most effective operation of the new work-relief plans of the federal government.

The new department in the government's relief agency in Louisiana, Peterman said, is absolutely essential because of the far-flung and exacting activities of the organization.

At the same time, Peterman announced the heads of the various districts he had designated to supervise work-relief in their sections.

The creation of the personnel division will enable the administrator to delegate to the agents personal problems which formerly took up much of the administrator's time, Peterman said. The new division will enable him to devote his full attention to the larger operations and plans of the agency, he added.

The personnel chiefs, arranged in districts coinciding with congressional districts, will be responsible for all administrative and supervisory personnel of the FERA in their districts.

The appointments to the various districts, announced today by Peterman and effective immediately, were:

New Orleans (first and second districts)—State Senator Paul Chasez, headquarters in New Orleans.

First and second districts—Dr. Charles Gelbke, headquarters in Gretna (district includes Plaquemine, Jefferson, St. Bernard, St. Charles, St. John and St. James parishes).

LOCAL KIWANIANS TO ATTEND MEET

Delegates Leave For National Convention At San Antonio

Delegates from Kiwanis clubs of north Louisiana began an exodus to San Antonio Saturday to attend the annual international convention which begins in that city tonight. More than 6,000 Kiwanians from all sections of the United States and Canada are expected to participate in the gathering, the first of its kind to be held in the south since 1925.

The north Louisiana delegation, representing clubs in Monroe, Shreveport, Bastrop, West Monroe, Rayville and Ruston, is headed by Fred Williamson, divisional lieutenant-governor. Rabbi F. K. Hirsch, chairman of the international committee on attendance, is among the group from this city, which includes Ralph Corn, S. A. Moss and Herman Masur. President C. C. Bell, T. John, John McCormick and Vance Rhodes of the West Monroe club, will also be in attendance at the meeting. Eleven

GHOST OF BARON DE BASTROP RISES UP . . . TO AID DECISION IN ANCIENT LAND SUIT

Opinion Handed Down By Special Judge In Favor Of Defendant

Litigation of more than 18 months, involving a narrow strip of land from the mouth to the source of Bayou Bartholomew in Morehouse parish, and in which much of the early history of Louisiana played a part, was brought to a close Saturday when the opinion of Wood H. Thompson, special judge, finding in behalf of the defendant in fourth district court was made public.

The ghost of a Dutch nobleman, who settled in Louisiana while the territory was under Spanish dominion, arose from its musty grave in a futile attempt to aid in the fight of descendants of his heir to gain possession of a tract of valuable gas property in the neighboring parish.

The case is that of Luis Vidal, et als., versus the Sterlington Gas corporation, et als., and involves approvimately 650 acres of land along Bayou Bartholomew, 35 feet on each side of the bayou from the mouth to the source.

The property was an original grant made on June 12, 1797, by the Spanish governor general of Louisiana, Baron De Carondelet to Baron De Bastrop, a nobleman of Holland who had migrated to Louisiana. It was for six "toises" in each bank of the Bayou Bartholomew from the mouth to the source.

The opinion involves many legal technicalities but is of dramatic and historic interest. It was handed down less than a month from the time the case was closed and shows profound study on the part of the special judge.

Adolfo Vidal, Adele Vidal Cervantes, Victor Vidal, Clementia Vidal Valdez, Sophia Vidal Valdez, Luis Vidal, John Vidal, Josephine Vidal, all claiming to be direct descendants of Victoriana LaBaume, one of the heirs of Baron De Bastrop, and all residents of Texas, were the plaintiffs in the case. The Sterlington Gas corporation, by virtue of purchases and leases of the land involved, was the defendant.

Patent from the United States

Will Of Dutch Nobleman Plays Big Part In Morehouse Dispute

government, dated September 13, 1860, to Baron De Bastrop, his heirs and assigns.

Will and testament of Baron De Bastrop, dated in January, 1827, bequeathing an undivided one-fifth interest in lands owned by the baron in Louisiana to Victoriana LaBaume.

Maxim Gorky Is Crumpled Before Stunting Airship

Tragedy Is Greatest Disaster Ever To Befall Passenger Craft

WOMEN AND CHILDREN DIE AS BIG LINER BREAKS UP

Several Villagers Reported Victims As Debris Strikes Houses

MOSCOW, May 18.—(AP)—The Maxim Gorky, largest land airplane in the world, crashed after a collision with a small airplane today, killing 49 persons, including eight women and six children, in the worst disaster ever to befall a passenger plane.

An official report denied the Maxim Gorky exploded, although the plane broke into pieces in the air.

The mangled bodies of its 48 occupants were scattered over the village of Socol, three miles from Moscow.

Pilot Glagin of a small escorting plane, which rammed into the Gorky while stunting against orders, was also killed. Soviet officials confirmed the death toll of 49.

There were reports that several villagers were killed when struck by fallen wreckage but these were not confirmed.

The women and children among the 37 passengers lost in the disaster were members of the families of crack employes of the Central Airodynamic institute, on an excursion in the plane.

Among the entire crew of 21 that perished were two of the Soviet's most expert pilots, Giuroff and Mikhaeff.

The dead passengers included Matrosoff, chief production engineer of the Airodynamic institute, Kazarnovich, director of the institute's pilot committee and his two children, and the institute's chief mechanic and head bookkeeper.

Eye witnesses said the smaller plane remained wedged into an edge of the Maxim Gorky's wing and that the two fell together. Then the pilot of the Gorky regained control and tried to come down in a glide.

Spectators said they believed he would have succeeded but that the smaller plane fell away and the giant liner lost equilibrium and went into a nosedive.

It was officially asserted the pilot cut off the motors and that there was no explosion, although shortly after going into the terrifying dive the Gorky broke up and fell in pieces over the village of Socol.

The workers were being rewarded with the ride for their meritorius labor, and 32 others were waiting at Moscow central airdrome for their turn to go up in the plane, named for Russia's most distinguished contemporary author.

The smaller plane was accompanying the Maxim Gorky to furnish a contrast in size for a motion picture which was being taken from a third plane.

Built a year ago, the Maxim Gorky, so-called "Soviet palace of culture," had a crew capacity of 76 and carried a rotary printing press and a complete motion picture projecting apparatus.

An official statement issued tonight placed the blame for the accident, which took place at 12:45 p. m. upon Blagin. A state funeral will be given the victims, and their families will get pensions and a lump sum indemnity, it was announced.

An inhabitant of the village of Socol, who witnessed the disaster said:

"I was watching, spellbound by the sight of the huge Maxim Gorky and the contrast with the small plane.

PROMINENT LOCAL WOMAN EXPIRES

Mrs. Llewella McGuire Russell Dies; Funeral Planned Today

Mrs. Llewella McGuire Russell, widow of the late H. H. Russell, Sr., during his life time one of the most prominent attorneys of north Louisiana, died at her home, 319 North Tihrd street, shortly before 3 o'clock Saturday morning. Mrs. Russell, who would have been 75 years old May 28, had been in failing health for several years, but had been able to be about her usual activities until ten days ago. All the surviving members of her family were with her in her last illness.

Mrs. Russell was born near Old Trenton, one-time shipping center of the Ouachita valley, May 28, 1860. She was the daughter of the late Nimrod and Elizabeth McGuire, prominent in the history of northeast Louisiana during the time of the war between the states.

Mrs. Russell was married March 3, 1886, to H. H. Russell, Sr., who commanded a wide influence in his abilities and attainments as a lawyer. Mr. Russell died in 1908.

Surviving children are H. H. Russell, Jr., city attorney of Monroe;

FIVE PERSONS DEAD IN PATH OF STORMS

ALTUS, Okla., May 18.—(AP)—Five persons were known dead tonight and at least seven missing in a storm that wrought an estimated million dollars' damage in Texas and Oklahoma.

Four persons were killed and many more injured probably fatally in a series of devastating "twisters" in widely separated sections of north and central Texas.

The dead in the two-state storm area included:

Mrs. Claude Gowens, 70, in the Altus flood.

J. P. Phillips, 69, and Mrs. Phillips, 57, in a tornado near Simpson, Texas.

An unidentified negro killed at Weldon.

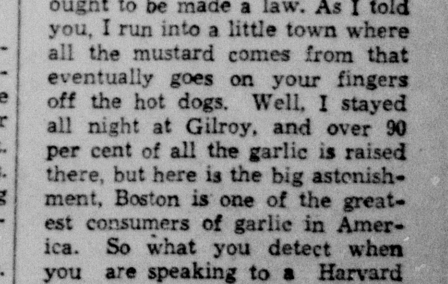
MRS. F. M. COLE HURT IN AUTOMOBILE MISHAP

Mrs. F. M. Cole of Sherrouse addition was returned to her home yesterday from Shreveport where she was painfully injured in a three-car automobile accident Thursday night.

Several stitches were taken in Mrs. Cole's head and she was suffering from shock, but was reported as resting comfortably Saturday night.

Mrs. Cole had been visiting Mrs. O. D. Peck of Shreveport and Mrs. Peck was driving the Cole automobile at the time of the accident. The automobile was badly damaged.

The accident was declared to be unavoidable.



SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 18.—(Special)—Well, just been prowling along up the road. I found out how to cut out fast driving and worry and hurry; just get up and start about two hours earlier than you had intended; that ought to be made a law. As I told you, I run into a little town where all the mustard comes from that eventually goes on your fingers off the hot dogs. Well, I stayed all night at Gilroy, and over 90 per cent of all the garlic is raised there, but here is the big astonishment, Boston is one of the greatest consumers of garlic in America. So what you detect when you are speaking to a Harvard Bostonian is not all culture.

Errant Mothers Are Aided By Home Here

Good Samaritan Principle Is Applied Practically

The story of "The Good Samaritan" is one that has a significance which has lent its appeal to humanity down through the ages since it was first uttered. It is significant of the tenderest feelings of mankind.

It is applied practically in the principles which control the institution in Monroe known as "The Home of the Good Samaritan," a comforting shelter for those mothers and their babies who have felt the hand of a cold world against them.

Organized in 1909 by Rev. A. J. Vallery, a Methodist Protestant minister, and founded at New Orleans, the home was moved here in 1912. A two-story frame structure was constructed on four acres of land obtained especially for the purpose. The home is located on the Winnsboro road, just within the city limits.

Reverend Vallery served as superintendent of the home for about two years. After his resignation, Rev. L. H. Swayze was superintendent until his death in 1922. Rev. J. R. Downs, the present superintendent, assumed the position at that time. Previously, Reverend Downs has served as the home's field worker and missionary for eight or nine years.

The home is supported financially by contributions made by individuals and church organizations, and by regular contributions made by the city of Monroe and Ouachita parish. The city contributes $22.50 each month, and the police jury contributes $22.50 per month.

A considerable portion of the food of persons living at the home permanently or temporarily is produced on the premises. Three acres of truck gardens provide an abundance of vegetables, much of which is canned by use of a pressure cooker for consumption during the winter months. An abundance of milk and butter is provided the home by its six milch cows. The home also has six calves and yearlings.

An idea of the details of the home's self-sustaining plan is suggested by the fact that the persons there make their own peanut butter from peanuts raised on the premises. Washing, ironing and other self-care methods are observed.

A washing machine, though badly worn, is in use at the home, and an electric refrigerator, paid for by months of careful financial management, is also installed there.

The structure in which the home is located has a dormitory and two small rooms, a clinic and dressing room, located on the second floor, and has on its first floor a chapel, dining room, kitchen, store room, milk room, two rooms for the two matrons, a business office and a sleeping porch.

While at the home, mothers perform duties in the routine of the household operation. There is food enough for all, there is room for them to sleep and rest there; they are not turned away because their security and the security of their offspring have not been established; their cases have not been completed.

The average number of people living at the home, including the superintendent and two matrons, is between 20 and 25. At this time there are 11 young women there and six babies.

Reverend Downs, in commenting on the financial condition of the home, said that the purchase price of the land on which it is located has never been paid. The business organization to which the balance is owed has been kind and understanding—lenient—Reverend Downs asserted. The superintendent said, however, that it is neither fair nor just to expect this state of affairs to continue indefinitely. He sincerely hopes that a way will be found to pay off the land indebtedness this year.

With the land paid for, the way would be cleared in the not too distant future for the construction of a modern, brick home.

There is one other need, a small one when measured financially, that Reverend Downs expressed. He would appreciate the contribution of a number of folding chairs, for use in church meetings which would be held during the summer on the lawn of the home, and for use in the chapel inside the building.

Among other needs of the home are clothing for young women, cloth for the making of clothing, and accessories for infants.

Contributions of anything useful will be welcomed.

The home is non-denominational.

BAPTISTS BRING MEETING TO END

Denomination Reaffirms Adherence Of Separation Of Church And State

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 18.—(AP)—Reaffirming their adherence to that "fundamental New Testament doctrine,"—The "separation of church and state,"—and instructed to look upon members of other denominational groups as comrades, delegates to the south Baptist convention concluded their eightieth annual meeting today.

"Religion must be kept free from all entangling alliances with government and government must not assume patronage, sponsorship or control over religion in any form," the convention agreed in adopting the report of its social service commission.

"We would enter our earnest protest against the violation of this principle by others, and especially against the appropriation or application of public funds to sectarian institutions of whatever name or order."

The convention also resolved to oppose "improper movies," the "liquor evil," war and lynchings.

Tall, white-haired Dr. John R. Sampey of Louisville, the new president, took over the gavel and in a forceful speech, told the delegates that "we must recognize as our allies in the great task of world evangelism all who love the Lord Jesus."

"When we see members of other denominational groups as comrades instead of rivals, we won't be out with a sawed-off shotgun shooting into them," he said. "We can show forth this spirit of brotherhood and cooperation without one moment lagging in our loyalty to what we believe to be the church ordinances and doctrines.

"Baptists are a great democracy. Their progress is built upon the unifying principle of mutual confidence and good will."

WAR VETERANS' SERVICE HELPS

(Editor's note: The following article is one of a series released by H. B. McClendon, Ouachita parish service officer, for publication in the Sunday Morning World. The articles explain benefits available to United States veterans of wars in which this country has participated, and discuss compensations, pensions, hospitalization, funeral expenses and other benefits.)

Flags to drape the caskets of honorably discharged war veterans and headstones to mark their graves may be secured from the postmaster of the parish seat and the war department, respectively. The nearest of kin or a friend should call on the postmaster with the veteran's honorable discharge, and complete the form which he can obtain from the postmaster in order to secure an American flag to drape the casket of the deceased veteran. After the funeral services, the flag should be removed and given to the nearest of kin.

Where an honorably discharged veteran of the Spanish-American war, World war, or Civil war (both Federal and Confederate) dies and there is no headstone to mark his grave, the war department will ship to the nearest of kin the necessary headstone upon application, on war department form 623. This form may be secured from the state service commissioner, 203 Masonic Temple building, New Orleans, and after it is completed should be forwarded direct to the quartermaster general, war department, Washington, D. C.

The headstone for Civil and Spanish war veterans are of American white marble, 39 inches long, 12 inches wide and 4 inches thick; for the World war veterans, 42 inches long, 13 inches wide, 4 inches thick. Headstone will be shipped freight prepaid by the government, only to the nearest railroad station or steamboat landing.

Further information may be secured by communicating with the local service officer.

OPERATOR OF TAXICAB NOT ACCIDENT DRIVER

J. L. Peterson, operator of a local taxicab company, was erroneously reported in the Morning World, Saturday, as the driver of an automobile which was in a collision with an automobile driven by H. Blazier, Friday afternoon in West Monroe.

Peterson's wife was the driver of the automobile which was in a collision with the Blazier car. The automobile she was driving is owned by L. B. Dortch, and was not one of Peterson's taxicabs. Mrs. Dortch was with Mrs. Peterson at the time of the accident.

MADISON PARISH CLUB HOLDS FLOWER SHOW

TALLULAH, La., May 18.—(Special)—The fourth annual spring flower show sponsored by the Madison Parish Garden club, was held at the Community club building here Friday. It was attended by a large number of visitors from Madison parish, Vicksburg, Lake Providence, St. Joseph, Shreveport and Pioneer.

In spite of recent heavy rains the exhibits, which were of high quality, were varied and abundant. There were numerous entries in the 28 classes of displays. Henry Clay Smith, landscape gardener of the Missouri Pacific railroad, served as judge of the exhibits.

Under the direction of Miss Annette Beers, programs given in the afternoon and evening were featured by the invocation by Rev. Scardon D'Aubert, an address on "Old Gardens" by Mrs. Conway Wood of Vicksburg, musical numbers by Misses Martha Bunch, Joy Webb, Helenmai Julian, Venita Scott, Mary Pierce and Ethel Emery, Mrs. E. O. Edgerton and Mrs. Charles Horn and dances by Geneva Rountree, Hary Hilma Dale and Joyce Hurd.

Mrs. W. M. Murphy is president of the Garden club.

REV. HUNTSBERRY BACK FROM BAPTIST MEETING

Rev. E. E. Huntsberry pastor of the First Baptist church of West Monroe, returned Saturday from the Southern Baptist convention held in Memphis.

Rev. Huntsberry reported that unusual progress has been made in retiring the indebtedness of the church.

Rev. Huntsberry had to leave the convention early in order to get back in time to make preparations for a revival to be held at the church beginning June 2 and continuing through June 16.

Rev. H. E. Kirkpatrick, pastor of the First Baptist church of Minden, will conduct the revival and Rev. B. B. Cox of Carlyle, Ark., formerly educational director and soloist of the West Monroe church, will be in charge of the singing.

Rev. Huntsberry is a member of the home mission board of the Southern Baptist convention, which made its report to the convention Friday night.

The accident happened so unexpectedly I hardly had a chance to realize what had taken place.

"The Gorky dived crazily and I watched with horror while it went to pieces in the air. I rushed to a place where the pieces fell. They scattered over a full half mile of territory, some wedged between houses.

"One house was hit by a wing weighted down by four motors, and it tore the roof and the whole side off the building. The bodies of the victims, some of them women and children, were strewn about with the wreckage, many dismembered.

"Everybody in the vicinity set about trying to give help but they soon found not a soul was alive among the 48 people who had been in the plane.

CENSORSHIP DELAYS NEWS OF BIG CRASH

LONDON, May 18.—(AP)—Strict Soviet censorship kept the world waiting more than 10 hours before fears that the worst airplane disaster in history had occurred on the outskirts of Moscow could be confirmed.

These fears had been aroused when a brief message that the giant ship Maxim Gorky had fallen to earth after colliding with a small plane leaked out before the highly efficient Soviet censorship could be clamped down.

While newspapers of all nations were headlining this bare fact, editors frantically pressed all lines of communication in an effort to learn the number of casualties and details of the tragedy. But all telegraph and telephone communication to the Russian capital was shut down.

The Associated Press offices in London and on the continent tried to make connections with Moscow by way of Berlin telephone, but all calls were refused. The Stockholm bureau, calling via Helsingfors, was interrupted at Leningrad, where the Swedish operator said all calls to Moscow had been stopped temporarily.

The censorship was raised shortly before midnight.

Major passenger airplane disasters in recent years included:

Oct. 3, 1926—Seven died in crash of plane on shore of English channel.

Nov. 29, 1927—Six Frenchmen perished in crash in Morocco.

May 5, 1928—Seven died in crash at Tokyo, Japan.

Nov. 4, 1928—Fourteen lost lives when plane dived into Rio De Janeiro harbor.

Nov. 15, 1928—Six killed when wings of plane folded at San Antonio.

Jan. 2, 1929—Ten killed in collision of planes near Santa Monica, Calif.

Jan. 19, 1930—Sixteen burned to death when plane caught fire near Oceanside, Calif.

March 25, 1933—Eleven occupants of house and three in plane killed when craft plunged into dwelling near Hayward, Calif.

Nov. 22, 1933—Fourteen died in fall of Russian super airliner Atkharkov.

Feb. 26, 1934—Eight killed when plane crashed into mountainside near Salt Lake City, Utah.

Dirigible crashes, however, have accounted for larger death tolls, the highest being 73 victims in the crash of the U. S. navy dirigible Akron off the New Jersey coast.

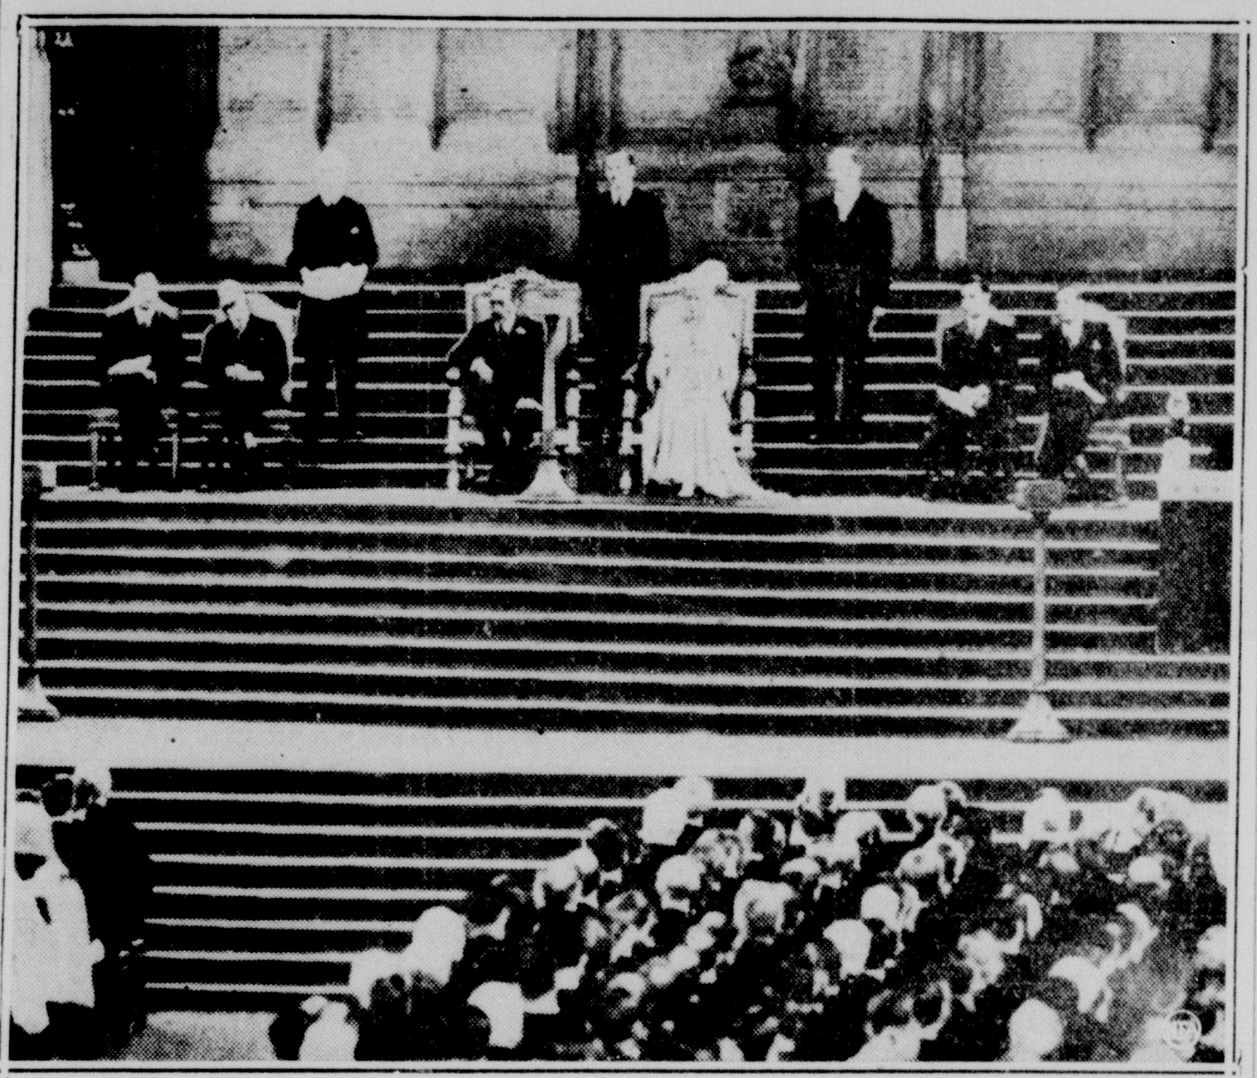
WHEN PARLIAMENT PAID KING GEORGE TRIBUTE



In the lofty Westminster hall, in London, where the light flickers through thousands of colorful panes in the stained glass windows and an impressive dignity sets the stage for every gathering, the members of parliament and house of lords assembled to honor King George V in recognition of his twenty-five-year reign. Flanked by their sons and heirs, the king and Queen Mary are shown seated on their thrones listening to the tributes of their subjects. Left to right, seated are, Duke of Gloucester, Prince of Wales, King George, Queen Mary, Duke of York and Duke of Kent.

resolution are to be sent to all congressmen and senators of the state, enlisting their support toward repeal of the clause.

Delegates listened with deep interest to the panel discussion, Saturday afternoon, led by Judge Grace Miles, national membership chairman of Independence, Kans., who described 213-A of the economy act as "specially vicious,." Women must exercise power through the ballot, she said, and emphasized that it is the duty of every man and woman citizen to investigate all office-seekers and to see that "only those who will make capable legislators are elected."

Breakfast at 8 a. m. today on Hotel Virginia roof and installation of officers are the closing features of the convention. A post convention board meeting on the "Brown Kraft" is slated later as the finale of the annual meeting.

With Dr. Wood, president, presiding, the convention was formally opened Saturday morning in the clubhouse on Jackson street. Invocation was by Miss Julia Wossman. Mayor Arnold Bernstein and Miss C. Mae Johnson gave addresses of welcome. Response was by Atlanta Duke Meadows of Ruston. Mrs. Myrtle Doughtie, convention chairman, gave the convention program. Reports were presented by state officers and Judge Miles was presented as the official representative of the national organization.

President Wood in her annual report emphasized the need of broad leadership as an essential of the day and especially amongst women who "must carry on the program of economic security." She reported official visits to all the Business and Professional Women's clubs in the state, and had traveled the past year over 10,000 miles.

She cited that the state executive board at a meeting gave approval to five features of the state program. These are the urging of each club to secure at least five new members; the circulation of the "news letter" each month to all members; the endeavor of local clubs to cooperate with other local civic clubs; securing of publicity from the governor's office of information as to women holding high office in the state; the planning of a vocational guidance clinic, and the endorsement of state committee chairmen for membership on the state executive committee.

President Wood urged that efforts be exerted toward utilizing the old state capitol as a museum and the passage of an old age pension bill by the state in order to relieve much personal distress.

Anna Judge Veters Levy, of New Orleans, led a comprehensive discussion of social and economic security under the old age pension.

A luncheon was held at 12:30 p. m. in the clubhouse garden and the afternoon session started at 1:30 p. m.

The best scrap book award was made to Baton Rouge and the banner to New Orleans for the highest mileage representation at the convention.

Acting on a resolution introduced by Mrs. Myrtle Doughtie, the convention voted to re-write the constitution, final action to be taken at the 1936 convention.

An urgent invitation to attend the Seattle national convention was extended by Mrs. M. C. Germany.

The final event of Saturday was the banquet at Lakeside Country club, with Miss Mae Read chairman. "The Business and Professional Woman as a Thinking Citizen" was discussed by President Wood. Judge Miles followed with a talk on "Eve's Highway," reviewing the progress that women have made through the ages.

Judge Grace Miles, representing the national association at the convention, has for three successive terms held the office of juvenile and probate court judge in her home city of Independence, Kans., serving from 1929 to 1935.

Judge Miles has had an interesting career. Left a widow at an early age, she was obliged to seek a livelihood which she found in a lawyer's office. Ultimately she studied law and later passed examinations for admission to the state bar. From then on she became recognized as an attorney of ability and her election to office was a natural sequence.

As a judge of the court she represented, she declared that probation matters should be handled by a well-trained social service worker.

"The very last resort should be the reform school and the effort should be made to rehabilitate the delinquent in his own home but when this is not possible, in a foster home. The county boards out delinquents in suitable homes and the money comes from the general fund," Judge Miles said. "The sum of $6,000 a year is also allowed for the care and cure of crippled children."

Judge Miles is still a young woman with an engaging personality that makes friends wherever she goes. This was her first trip to Louisiana and she stated she was charmed with the country and the people with whom she came in contact.

represent the two communities," Mr. Rogers stated in unfolding his plans for the campaign. "We want our merchants and citizens generally to realize that the chamber of commerce is just as big as they want it to be, and the more of them who are identified with it the greater results can be achieved. If there ever was a time in the history of Monroe and West Monroe when the people should get together and work for a bigger and better and more prosperous Twin Cities, that time is now. We have wonderful prospects before us, if we have energy enough to capitalize on them. So we are asking for 100 per cent cooperation from everybody, the large business organization and the small concern. All are going to benefit, if all work together and push the ball of prosperity along."

Aiding President Rogers in the campaign are the officers of the senior and junior boards of the chamber of commerce, and a special commitee. The group includes M. S. Biedenharn, vice-president senior board; A. B. Clarkson, president junior board; Tom Monk, vice-president junior board; Clarence Faulk and Sam Davis, members of the senior board. All the other members of the two boards will be active under the leadership of the appointed committee, it was announced.

At the close of the campaign a special meeting of the membership will be called to discuss a definite program of activity during the coming months.

Both men were brought to a local hospital.

ROOSEVELT VETO ALMOST CERTAIN TO BE SUSTAINED

cedented action, was held by administration leaders to have already made itself felt.

Whether Mr. Roosevelt would make his personal appeal on Monday was uncertain. House leaders said it might not be possible to complete arrangements for a joint session in time to receive him. Should there be delay the veto might not be delivered until mid-week because of a scheduled senate-house memorial service on Tuesday.

Despite the solid front of votes against them, Patman bill leaders in a conference today decided to face the showdown immediately after the chief executive delivers his message, without prolonging the issue by debate.

Some of the Patman leaders virtually conceded defeat, but warned that the inflation issue would echo into the next presidential campaign and would not go down with the Patman bill. Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, Patman chieftain in the senate, forecast the money question would be "the controlling factor" in the 1936 election.

DEMOCRATIC CHIEFS SET GOAL FOR ADJOURNMENT

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP)—Democratic congressional leaders today set early July as their tentative adjournment goal, but agreed the NRA and bonus issues held the key to the vacation door.

With senate advocates of a shorter life for a close-clipped blue eagle threatening to hold out to the bitter end against the administration-favored two-year extension receiving favor in the house, legislative pilots confessed this was but one argumentative struggle that may push adjournment farther into the summer.

On top of that was a ominous warning from inflationary bonus advocates who say they will attempt to tack the Patman bill onto almost every other measure receiving consideration should congress sustain President Roosevelt's veto. This in itself would consume plenty of time.

F. R. FLAYS FOES OF AAA

Assailing "many of the high and mighty" for their "lying about the farm program," President Roosevelt is shown here as he made his fighting speech to 4,000 farmers who made the pilgrimage to Washington to assure him of their loyal support to his program and that of the AAA. Speaking from the south portico of the White House, the president declared it their duty and his to educate the country that adjustment means not only adjustment downward, but also upward.

BOOTS IS TERRIFIED! THE TWO SAVAGES, OR WHATEVER THEY ARE, WHO LANDED ON THE ISLAND HAVE DISCOVERED THE HOT EMBERS, WHERE BOOTS HAS BEEN COOKING!
THEY'RE LOOKIN' RIGHT AT ME
BOOTS IS RIGHT—THEY'VE SEEN HER! JABBERING WILDLY, THEY JUMP UP AND DOWN IN MAD EXCITEMENT
OHH—WOT WILL I DO? IF I ONLY KNEW WHETHER OR NOT THEY ARE FRIENDLY! I CAN'T UNDERSTAND A WORD THEY'RE SAYING! WELL, I MUSTN'T LET 'EM KNOW I'M AFRAID— HELLO
G-GOSH! THEY'RE COMIN' UP!!! HEY! WHO ARE YOU? WOTTA Y'WANT?
GO 'WAY
LUCKILY, BOOTS ALWAYS HAS KEPT A CLUB HANDY, FOR JUST SUCH AN EMERGENCY
!!! MEBBE I SHOULDN'T HAVE DONE THAT!!! NOW, I WONDER WOT THEY'LL DO ????
IT WAS ONLY A FEW MINUTES TILL BOOTS FOUND OUT WHAT THEY INTENDED TO DO
NO! NO-OO, HEY!! PLEASE DON'T
OH, BILLY—HELP ME!! I CAN'T DO A THING T'STOP 'EM! WE'LL FALL—AN' MEBBE BE KILLED! IF I ONLY COULD DO SOMETHING
SUDDENLY, BOOTS HEARD SOMETHING—A FAMILIAR SOUND!! WIDE-EYED, UNBELIEVING, SHE LISTENED COULD IT BE ?

Opportunity Is Ours

"There is a tide in the affairs of men, if taken at the flood, leads on to fortune."

The appeal of the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe for cooperation of the two communities in carrying forward its important essential activities is a timely reminder of the unalterable law that providential help comes only to those who are first willing to exert themselves on their own behalf.

For weeks this newspaper has been emphasizing the propitious influences that are at work, giving a BRIGHTER AND BETTER ASPECT TO BUSINESS CONDITIONS THAN HAS OBTAINED IN MANY YEARS. The opportunities and the prospects that confront the people of the Twin Cities have NEVER BEEN MORE FAVORABLE than they are at the present moment. At our very hand avenues of new industry, trade and commerce are ready for the taking, provided there is sufficient community of interest and cooperation of effort to reach out and use them.

These cities have not done all they should have done to support the Chamber of Commerce in the past. Otherwise it would not be necessary to make an appeal for help at this juncture. Too, it is amply evident from what other cities, MANY OF THEM SMALLER than the Twin Cities, have done that Monroe and West Monroe have fallen far in the rear. Monroe and West Monroe last year contributed $5,000 to the Chamber of Commerce, while El Dorado, Pine Bluff, Alexandria, Vicksburg gave twice as much. Humiliating as it may be to admit it, the little town of Ruston GAVE MORE to its Chamber of Commerce last year than Monroe and West Monroe.

This newspaper, recognizing the urgency of the present situation, and accepting its share of the responsibility for advancing the interests of the communities it serves, has already pledged double the membership subscription it has been accustomed to give to the work of the Chamber of Commerce. A campaign committee will begin Monday morning to make a solicitation for members among the business interests of the two cities. There should be a generous and whole-hearted response if Monroe and West Monroe are to realize the benefits they have a right to expect from the new economic order that has already set in.

The individual citizen, be he ever so energetic and resourceful, can accomplish nothing by himself in matters that affect the weal of the whole community. It takes the entire body of the citizenry, UNITED IN PURPOSE and directed by a wholly representative group of civic leaders, to accomplish the maximum results.

No other organization serves such a purpose as the Chamber of Commerce. A great many people have the erroneous notion that a Chamber of Commerce is composed of a small group of persons, who arbitrarily decide its policies and functions. A Chamber of Commerce is—or should be—made up of the WHOLE BUSINESS and PROFESSIONAL community. Every individual who has the interests of himself and his fellow-citizens at heart should be an active member of the Chamber of Commerce. The relatively small contribution he makes in membership dues is only a part of his interest in the chamber's work. He must show his concern in the public welfare by taking an active part in whatever phase of the work he can perform to the best advantage. Only in that way can a chamber of commerce succeed, and in succeeding bring to the people at large the benefits that should accrue from an active, energetic and aggressive ORGANIZATION.

The Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe has done noteworthy things for the advancement of these communities. It played a leading part in the efforts that resulted in establishing an ADEQUATE POSTOFFICE in Monroe. It worked unceasingly in furthering an AVIATION program which eventuated in the location of the headquarters of the Atlanta-Dallas division of the transcontinental airmail service in this city, an achievement which is particularly noteworthy because of the fact that through its means an ADDITIONAL PAYROLL of $20,000 a month is being distributed in this city.

When all else failed in the plans that contemplated the construction of a new main highway southward from Monroe, the Chamber of Commerce CONTRIBUTED FUNDS to purchase rights of way which ASSURED COMPLETION of the project. The Chamber of Commerce sponsored the invitation which brought Secretary of War Dern to this city a year ago and gave to that official an inside view of the NEEDS OF FLOOD PROTECTION for this area, out of which came the government's decision to spend $3,500,000 on levee works on BOTH SIDES of the Ouachita river FRONTING THE TWIN CITIES.

These are SOME of the things the Chamber of Commerce has done. It looks forward to doing GREATER and BETTER things. But these things cannot be accomplished without ADEQUATE FINANCES. Adequate finances cannot be available without ADEQUATE MEMBERSHIP and ACTIVE POPULAR INTEREST. Plans are under way to obtain the location of an important industrial plant in this area, a manufactory that will GIVE EMPLOYMENT to hundreds and render a great service to southern industry. Other plans contemplate enlisting the government's interest in acquiring land for rehabilitating farm families in this area, similar to the project in the Ozarks where 60,000 persons are to be settled on 8,000,000 acres of land.

These are TANGIBLE and worthy objectives of the citizens of the Twin Cities. They will never be realized if they are left to individual initiative and effort. Neither will they be accomplished if the Chamber of Commerce is INDIFFERENTLY SUPPORTED and INADEQUATELY FINANCED. The Chamber of Commerce has issued a clarion call for community interest and support in a crucial and important situation.

The responsibility for meeting the issue and responding to it with all the cooperation that is traditional amongst the people of these two cities, rests squarely on the citizens of Monroe and West Monroe.

If we FAIL NOW the chance to grasp the opportunities for progress and prosperity which we have been long seeking will have GONE BEYOND RECALL. THE CHOICE IS OURS TO TAKE IT OR REJECT IT.

We rather lean to the theory of Will Rogers that Barbara Hutton pays enough taxes to entitle her to marry the duke, count or prince of her own choosing. Of course, the general opinion is that she should help some of the deserving home country boys.

In retrospect, the brief but furious chain letter fad was more helpful than otherwise. It gave thousands of persons the joy of planning ways of spending a lot of money they knew all the time they weren't going to get.

The meanest man in town is reported to have purchased at a bargain price a local bank's collection of lead quarters and half dollars and is mailing them out in his chain letters.

Pretty soon, the commencement orators will be telling us what lies beyond 1935.

More Truth Than Poetry

OLD STUFF

After reading that a scientist has discovered that the rays of the sun possess actual weight.

I've been hoeing and tilling my garden
With the sun sizzling down on my spin,
I have routed out weeds
And replaced them with seeds
To sprout in this back yard of mine,
And I am not the least bit astonished
On learning that scientists state,
Which they lately have done,
That the rays of the sun
Possess actual, palpable weight.

Pray where have these savants been living
Not to know that men soon become wrecks
When they painfully toil
To grow plants in the soil
With old Sol blazing down on their necks?
Do they think they alone have discovered
That the rays that beat down overhead,
As the sun rises high
In the midsummer sky,
Seem often as heavy as lead?

I am strong for professors and physics,
And I seek to accord them their due,
But this truth they proclaim
Will bring them scant fame,
For it surely is not very new.
Every time I go out in my garden
And till there from early till late,
And putter about
Day in and day out,
I am certain that sunbeams have weight.

Proving Our Security

By BRUCE CATTON

The great ocean flight of those four dozen navy fighting planes is a magnificent spectacle and a great demonstration of the long-range striking power of the modern air force; yet it would be easy to go entirely too far in drawing lessons from the performance.

As a proof that naval warfare has been transformed by addition of a new weapon of vast potentialities, the flight is without parallel. But it does not yet prove the truth of all those excited assertions that our secure isolation is ended and that we are within easy reach of the aerial fleets of foreign powers.

A flight of this kind in mid-ocean is a great achievement, to be sure. But a great battle fleet was on duty along the route.

There was no anti-aircraft defenses to leap over, no squadrons of hostile planes to brush aside, no obligation on the four dozen pilots to return to their starting point without a stop.

In other words, this flight does not prove that a European or Asiatic power would find it simple to send an air fleet over to bomb our cities. That may be possible some day, but it certainly is not the case today.

It is rather important to keep that fact in mind. We have a preparedness group in this country which is just about as militaristic as any similar group overseas; and this group can be expected to use this navy flight as the basis for a demand that we increase our aerial armaments until they are the equal of any other such armaments on earth—on the ground that we shall not be "secure" until we do so.

A recent survey (published in the Aircraft Yearbook for 1935) shows that we rank fifth in battle planes. France, Russia, Great Britain, and Italy are ahead of us.

We have 2,060 fighting planes, of which about 1,600 are wholly up-to-date; and the Yearbook remarks that this is less than half the strength required to put us "on anything like an equal footing with other powers."

But the point to remember in all this is that we don't need to be on an equal footing with these other powers. The Atlantic and Pacific oceans have not yet shrunk to the dimensions of the Great Lakes.

Our air fleet may be outclassed by four others, but it would most certainly be able to overwhelm any hostile air fleet that could actually reach our shores.

That is all an advocate of national security can ask. We don't contemplate aggressive action overseas. We can be satisfied with security at home.

And this Pacific flight falls far short of proving that the airplane has been developed to the point where it destroys that security.

New Deal In Washington

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON. — Secretary Dan Roper's Business Advisory Council was patted on the back and warmly praised by administration folk when its big business members—just as the U. S. Chamber of Commerce was hollering its loudest called at the White House and let the world know they hadn't walked out on the New Deal.

If you ask the council, the cheering was altogether too loud.

The group had carried along some very definite criticisms of Roosevelt policies and after the conference the White House made public only its declaration for a two-year continuation of NRA, carefully neglecting to mention any of the council's recommendations with which it didn't agree.

Council members have since been busy trying to convince their comrades in industry and finance that they're not the lily-white New Dealers they were made to appear.

Roosevelt and Chairman Harry Kendall of the council have reached an agreement, after a discussion forced by irritation among council members, under which the council will make public no reports without first consulting Roosevelt and officials concerned.

Even after that it would do so only by vote of the full council of 52. Which is much better, from the administration's point of view, than the council's previous angry decision to give its recommendations to congressional committees.

Winnie The Pooh Enters

The council was distinctly annoyed by White House failure to publicize its adverse report on the administration's utility holding company measure—the Wheeler-Rayburn bill.

This report was the work of Chairman Winthrop W. Aldrich of the Chase National Bank, known in Wall Street as "Winnie the Pooh" or, sometimes, just "Winnie" for short.

Weeks previously, Mr. Aldrich had approached Chairman Sam Rayburn of the House committee framing the bill and Interstate Commerce Commissioner Walter Splawn, expert on holding companies.

He sought to serve as a "mediary" between the bill's supporters and the "power trust" holding companies, proposing substitute legislation which they thought would take the teeth from the bill.

Turned Down Flat

Rayburn and Splawn turned Aldrich down flat. Anyone from the Chase bank intervening in public utility matters is presumed here to be representing the huge Electric Bond and Share holding company, with which the bank is closely tied in.

(The Morgan interests also have an interest in Electric Bond and Share and their United Gas Improvement company is leading the Committee of Public Utility Executives in the fight against the bill.)

Bond and Share has been accused of "milking" subsidiary companies through service contracts and the bill abolishes "milking."

Undaunted, Aldrich then had himself appointed head of a sub-committee of Roper's council to consider holding company legislation. The sub-committee turned in a report identical with the offer Aldrich had made to Rayburn and Splawn. Roosevelt received the report—and merely sat on it.

The president's insistence on the holding company bill in the face of almost unanimous opposition from the big business-financial group lends color to the belief that the fundamental cleavage between the administration and that group is wider than commonly supposed.

Despite one of the most intensive propaganda campaigns in history, Wheeler's Senate interstate commerce committee has just voted 11 to 33 in secret session to report favorably the bill's most drastic features.

It looks now as if the fewer than 20 giant holding companies which control the great bulk of the nation's electric light industry were going to be eliminated. The million letters which the utilities poured into House and Senate office buildings had their effect and for a while it was predicted that the Wheeler-Rayburn bill would be modified to the point of innoculousness.

But persistent White House pressure and able, firm work by Rayburn and Wheeler have caused some of the effect to wear off.

It is known now that Roosevelt himself wrote the "death sentence" to holding companies into the bill and that it is his pet measure in Congress, as well as his chief bid for progressive support in the next election.

Meanwhile, don't be surprised if Roper's Business Advisory Council uses some strong arm methods to get its holding company recommendations out in the open before the issue is settled in congress.

NEVILLE HIGH CLASSES MAKE SATURDAY TRIP

Thirty-five members of the physics and chemistry classes of Neville high school traveled by city bus to Sterlington for an outing on Saturday.

They first stopped at Fairbanks where they visited a gas pumping station, and V. F. Sackett, superintendent of field operations of the United Gas company, "blew a well" as a thrill for the students, who then completed their trip to Sterlington and inspected the super-power plant of the Louisiana Power and Light company.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE GIRL WHO DIED 801 TIMES.—Louise Lateau was born in Bois d'Haine, Belgium, on January 29, 1850. On the first Friday of the year 1868, she began to show the symptoms of the stigmata, bleeding profusely through imaginary wounds in the hands, feet and side. On Friday, April 24, 1868, at the stroke of 12, she expired in the traditional manner of the Saviour on the Cross, and continued to die every Friday until her death on August 25, 1883. Thus she died 801 times. She would only be recalled to life by the call of ecclesiastical authority, the so-called "Rappel." March 30, 1871, was the last day on which she took any food. From then on, she abstained completely from eating or sleeping, until her death more than 12 years later. Yet she remained in good health, and was able to work in house and garden. A scientific commission appointed by the faculty of medicine of the University of Brussels found her a case of genuine stigmatic neuropathy, exhibiting all the phenomena of the passion of Christ. I have based my story on the account of Dr. Lefebvre, professor of medicine at the University of Louvain, and member of the Royal Academy of Medicine, a high scientific authority, who vouches for genuineness of the symptoms.

TUESDAY: A HORSE AS BIG AS AN ELEPHANT
(Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Lights Of New York

By Paul Harrison

NEW YORK.—Life in Manhattan really is absurdly simple. It's simple, at least, for people who are able and willing to pay for the innumerable special services that are at hand, on every hand.

If one wants to be awakened at a certain time, or reminded of engagements, or advised on how to spend one's time in New York, there are agencies which provide such services. It's possible to rent or buy anything from a trained flea to an elephant, or to hire servants or escorts, or to obtain information on anything under the sun—all by telephoning the right people and stating one's requirements.

The most diverse responsibilities are undertaken by a society woman named Mrs. Katherine Bleecker Meigs, who works for one of the telegraph companies. She started an information bureau with the idea of telling people how to eat artichokes, what to wear at a baptizing, how to phrase social correspondnece, and that sort of thing. The idea was that inquiries would be answered by collect telegrams, which would be the only cost to the inquiring individual.

In Tune With Job

But Mrs. Meigs now finds herself doing all manner of chores. Wags sending birthday messages to friends hire her, at so much per word, to call the friends and sing "Happy birthday to you. Happy birthday—" and so on. Mrs. Meigs doesn't mind. She'd sing "Rock of Ages" if anybody asked for it.

Celebrants at parties have made lots of odd requests. She has scurried around and provided, in a hurry, snails, midgets, a peacock, a stork, and three ancient horses. The latter were joke-prizes at a golf tournament. A man who was in the habit of oversleeping paid for 24 telegrams to be delivered to himself at a certain time each morning. They all read: "Get out of bed you lazy tramp." A woman called up and ordered a telegram sent to her husband every half hour during a day. It inquired: "Have you had your hair cut yet, darling?"

Mrs. Meigs doesn't provide women companions for lonesome men, or gigolos for women. But she does furnish licensed private detectives who will act as escorts. She hasn't had a single request for a chaperone, and reckons that nobody requires them any more.

Society Rivals

A somewhat similar service is maintained by a group of society women who call themselves Hostesses, Inc. The profits go to a charity. These people open and close houses, attend the details of moving, interview servants, arrange travel tickets and hotel reservations, and mostly plan and superise parties, fashion shows and benefits. They manage a lot of children's parties because there are so many wealthy parents who are so busy with their own affairs that they just haven't a minute left for the youngsters.

Surprisingly enough, there are many such services which can be obtained without any cost. A young woman named Sally Plunkett is such a professional burden-lifter. She finds houses or apartments for clients, furnishes them, opens them and hires all the servants. She'll plan and buy a complete wardrobe for a wedding or a trip around the world. She shops for women who are too lazy or busy to do their own buying, and will even look after household cleaning or repair jobs.

Haunted Speeches

For busy executives who need help on speeches and special articles, there's a phenomenally successful concern called Ghostwriters' Bureau. It will turn out anything from a three-minute address of welcome for a buttonhole makers' convention to a full-length book on ecceslastical art.

A couple of ex-newspapermen named Fred Baer and Henry Woods started the bureau three years ago with the belief that as long as there were business men there would be speeches and printed statements to be prepared. They were right. Baer and Woods do little of the reasearch now. they mostly make arrangements with clients and polish off the products turned in by lesser ghosts—many of them college professors—who work on commission. There's no arbitrary rate per word on any job; the cost depends on the amount of time and trouble involved.

ENTERTAINERS TO APPEAR

Robert Haynes Taylor, noted impersonator and the Harmony Four gospel singers of Shreveport, will appear in concert at St. James church, negro, Monday night, at 8:15 o'clock. They will also broadcast over KMLB Monday evening, prior to the concert. The impersonator is a favorite over many broadcasting stations, his specialty being the impersonating of radio stars and persons of note.

NEWS FROM GERMANY. Sister Katarina Wiedenhoefer, the first of fifty nuns and priests accused of smuggling foreign currency out of Germany, is sentenced to five years in the penitentiary, five years loss of civil rights, $56,300 fine. As nuns usually own no property of their own, the Nazi government will probably be disappointed about the $56,300, and in that case the sister's prison term will be extended by fourteen months.

LAST THURSDAY two "anti-Jewish parades led by brass bands" marched through Berlin streets, inaugurating "a fresh anti-semitic campaign" according to the Associated Press.

Marchers carried placards reading "Jews are our misfortune"; those Nazis will change their minds about that pacard if they succeed in driving out all Jews, including many of the world's greatest scientists.

Long ago, Portugal and Spain also decided that "Jews are our misfortune" and drove out the Jews. Now look at them.

They were great nations, leading the world in enterprise, and commerce. All that has vanished.

THIS COUNTRY, Great Britain and France will establish embassies, in place of plain legations, in China, and China's representative here will become a real ambassador.

Our minister to China, Nelson T. Johnson, who now gets $12,000 a year, will get $17,500 a year as ambassador.

As minister he represents only the United States government. As ambassador he represents "the president in person." That makes $5,500 a year difference.

Let us hope it will not be necessary to build a million dollar embassy anywhere in China. There is no knowing when Japan or Russia might be blowing holes in it.

We started some such nonsense in Russia, heaven only knows who suggested that and then dropped Russia. Fortunately, we are rich, although some of the 12,000,000 idle do not realize it.

MR. MORGENTHAU, secretary of the treasury, wants a central bank "to control the nation's credit," and thinks the government should own the stock of the federal reserve system.

The secretary "would like to see all credit centered in an independent agency, with its administrators removable only by impeachment."

"Controlling credit" in the United States, according to business men, wouldn't be much of a job now, as there is no credit of any consequence to control.

Perhaps government could create a credit as it has created jobs, "relief" and billions of bonds. Real credit releasing the pent-up billions, before they are all tied up in bonds, and "frozen," would be welcome.

HAMILTON CASE GOES TO JURORS SATURDAY NIGHT

isfied with a jury verdict of conviction.

The defense attorneys, led off by A. D. Flowers, scouted the idea of murder, charged that the state had made no case and argued that the fact that Sheppard and Miller were seen near the building the night of the fire had failed to show any conspiracy.

The defense asked for outright acquittal and said that members of the Hamilton family did not believe the charge.

"My friendship with him tells me if Dr. Hamilton could speak he would ask you not to convict his boy," G. T. McSwain, of the defense, declared.

At another juncture in the arguments S. R. Holstein, who said he had served many years on the bench, declared that he had "never seen a case where the evidence produced by the state was as flimsy as in this case."

But on the other hand Dr. Mouser charged that "the fire was a sudden fire and I contend the building was set fire. I contend that when that fire hit Dr. Hamilton he was not sleeping the sleep of a normal man. He was dead. We have proof that Dr. Hamilton did not die from natural causes. We have proof that these three young men conspired to kill him.'"

Attorney C. W. Flowers argued that the state had not made out a case and told the jury that no conspiracy had been proved and that "you can't convict these boys merely because Miller and Sheppard were seen downtown that night."

The defense rested its case today with the introduction of character witnesses after Judge Wiley R. Jones, presiding, had ruled out "conspiracy" testimony yesterday in part because "no conspiracy had been shown."

BARBARA SPOTS A CAMERA! SUCH AN ICY GLARE!

delegates from Rayville, headed by President W. D. Cotton, passed through the city yesterday on the way to the convention. Other delegates from this area include President James Madison and several members of the Bastrop club, President Marvin Green and a group from Ruston, besides President William Hines and several members of the Shreveport club.

The convention will continue until Thursday noon. Elaborate entertainment for the delegates is planned by San Antonio citizens.

On Monday night the Monroe and West Monroe clubs will observe the annual celebration of "Kiwanis night," coincident with a similar celebration by Kiwanis clubs throughout the United States and Canada. The meeting will be held at Northeast Center L. S. U., when a program synchronizing with similar features being given at San Antonio will be presented. A message from the international president, Dr. William J. Carrington, of Atlantic City, N. J., will be received during the meeting by radio broadcast.

RED RIVER STAGE DUE TO HIT PEAK

City, Texas, to Springbank, Ark., during the next few days."

The forecast for Shreveport cannot be made until more detailed reports are received on the river rise tomorrow morning.

With a radius of ten miles of Colfax, 25,000 acres of land is under water. Three-fourths of this land is in cultivation. At the point where Bayou Darrow and Rigolet bayou come together at Red river, a section one-quarter to the mile wide and 10 miles long is flooded. The Alexandria pavement is under two to six inches of water for about 100 feet south of Colfax.

The main levee on Nantache bayou at Shell Point, built two years ago, will hold two feet more water without damage, according to R. E. McKnight, levee board official. It protects Aloha and the negro section of Colfax. There is a railroad fill between the negro and white sections of Colfax which affords additional protection to the remainder of the town. At present water is 20 feet up the side of this new levee. The crest of the present rise reached Colfax this afternoon.

ALABAMA NEWSPAPER IS SOLD AND RESOLD

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 18.—(AP)—Victor H. Hanson, Birmingham publisher, today purchased for $200,000 the controlling stock of the Montgomery Advertiser, one of the south's oldest dailies, and immediately sold it to R. F. Hudson, minority stockholder, who has published the paper since the death of Frank P. Glass.

Hudson said he would issue a formal statement within the next few days as to his future plans for the Advertiser.

Hanson completed negotiations for the purchase after Charles E. Marsh, Texas publisher, had withdrawn from the sale because of an adverse ruling by the Montgomery circuit court.

3 DIE, 2 INJURED IN PLANE MISHAP

200 feet both wing motors failed, witnesses said, and Knowles slipped it past a group of tents occupied by a Selfridge field ground crew before it struck the ground and nosed over.

A flight of 21 army planes had come here to participate in the dedication of Bishop airport. Officers immediately called into service their own ambulances and trucks and rushed the injured five miles to a hospital.

Knowles was buried beneath the wreckage and was dead when workers reached him. The plane broke in two pieces as it struck, spilling the passengers out onto the ground. Mrs. Rushlow died soon after she was brought to the hospital and the boy died an hour later.

The army fliers who witnessed the crash said Knowles apparently made a desperate effort to land his plane and still clear the tents in which he knew the soldiers were quartered. He landed the plane in the only clear space in the area, barely grazing one tent as he came down.

Everything you want in a modern motor car

WHEN you talk to the man who owns and drives the car, you're pretty sure to get an opinion you can bank on. We asked a recent purchaser of a Ford V-8 how he liked it.

"It has everything," he said. "Everything I've ever wanted in a motor car."

Nothing spectacular about that—no loud shouting. But it sums up the whole story of the Ford V-8 and the reason it is setting the pace for 1935. That has been the Ford idea always—to give people a well-balanced, all-around car. No one feature is stressed at the expense of others.

Of course the V-8 engine stood out from the beginning. The idea of putting into a low-priced car an engine which had always been associated with the most expensive makes was new and revolutionary. But it was not an experiment. We knew it would prove to be economical as well as smooth and powerful—because we had tested it.

In this 1935 Ford we have tried to bring the entire car up to the modern performance of the V-8 engine. We have aimed for beauty and balance and comfort—as well as usefulness and economy. You probably know some people who are driving this car. We would like to have you ask them how they like it.

AUDREY BROSSETT WINS MYLES PRIZE

West Monroe Girl Earns Weekly Comic Cut-Out Contest Award

Audrey Brossett, 211 Filhiol avenue, West Monroe, was the local winner of last week's $5 prize in the Sally Myles comic cut-out contest.

The prize was the third awarded here in the national contest. Miss Brossett won the prize for a few minutes diversion in cutting out comic characters for this newspaper and coloring them according to the contest rules.

One thousand grand prizes, with a first prize of $1,000, are some of the awards to be made in the contest.

Every person who has not yet entered the five-week contest may still do so, and be eligible for the grand prizes to be awarded at the end of the contest.

If you have not sent your comic cut-out to Sally Myles at this newspaper, watch for the Sally Myles advertisement in this newspaper Thursday to obtain the rules, or obtain a copy of the rules at your grecor's.

Color three comic cut-outs according to the rules of the contest and send them to Sally Myles, in care of this newspaper. You will then be eligible to receive the weekly prize of $5 awarded for the best comic cut-out submitted here, and you will also be eligible to win one of the 1,000 grand cash prizes.

Night Prowler Is Most Dangerous Of Criminals, Avers Supt. Tarver

Police Chief Says There Are 4 Distinct Kinds Of Burglars

SUPT. TARVER

If you were to awaken some morning to discover that your home had been burglarized during the dead hours of the night . . . don't worry that the same person has robbed your store . . . he hasn't!

And there will be no need to remain home all day for fear the person will return in your absence . . . he won't!

Likewise . . . if your safe contains valuables . . . there is no need for you to be apprehensive . . . the person that entered your home won't bother the safe . . . not he!

Of course there is no assurance that all four things could not happen to you . . . they can . . . but it's a dollar to a doughnut four different burglars accomplished the act . . . not just one man.

That is the observation of L. V. Tarver, superintendent of police . . . and he ought to know! . . . he has been in police work for more than 25 years . . . has dealt with every conceivable kind of crime and every conceivable kind of criminal .

There are at least four, and maybe more, distinct kinds of burglars, Chief Tarver declares . . . and after you have heard his classification it is reasonable to believe . . . even for a layman.

"There is the daylight burglar and prowler," Chief Tarver said in an interview Saturday . . . usually alone he prowls a neighborhood . . . he selects a prospective "break." He first ascertains that the family automobile is not in the garage. . . . He then notes that all the doors are fastened . . . that there are no children playing in the yard.

"Casually glancing around, he makes sure that no person is in sight . . . then he makes his way quickly to the back door and knocks loudly . . . no one answers . . . he knocks again . . . still no answer.

"If he can't gain entrance at the door, he goes to the most obscure side of the house and 'jimmys' a window . . . inside, he works rapidly. Things of value quickly disappear into a bag or something else provided for the purpose . . . in a few minutes he is out and gone," Chief Tarver explained.

"The second is the 'skylight' burglar . . . he specializes in business houses and usually works strictly on Saturday night . . . he 'spots' a store . . . ascertaining that it has a skylight . . . around 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning, when streets are practically deserted, he makes his way up a fire escape or by other means to the roof . . . gaining the skylight, the breaks the glass, fixes his rope to a chimney or other safe object and slips down into the building . . . he works calmly and takes his time.

"When his bag is filled . . . he picks his opportunity . . . calmly turns the front or back door knob (most stores have Yale locks) . . . and makes his way to safety . . . while the policeman on the beat is at the next corner . . . none the wiser.

"This burglar is very elusive . . . the policeman on the beat is easily fooled because, even though he has flashed his light into the store and tried the knob . . . he has no way of knowing that someone is on the inside," the chief continued.

"The third specimen, according to Mr. Tarver, is the safe breaker.

"This criminal is very wise in the ways of crime. After gaining entrance to the store, he takes an ordinary hammer and with a quick, hard blow, breaks the dial leading to the combination.

"There is a small shaft leading from the dial to the combination . . . by using a punch, smaller in circumference than the shaft, the safe breaker can drive the shaft loose from the combination . . . with his hands, he opens the door and pillages the safe.

Daylight Bank Holdup Considered Easiest Type Of Robbery

"If you hear of a safe breaker using nitro-glycerine successfully on a job . . . put him down as a safe blower of the old school . . . the successful criminal in this class today never resorts to the explosive . . . should a job of this nature be unsuccessful . . . nine times out of ten he is an amateur," the chief reasoned.

"The fourth of the series is the midnight house-breaker . . . and he's the most dangerous of the quartet . . . he waits until after his victims are lost in slumber . . . well-armed and well-equipped for the job, he steals into the house and goes to work.

"If he is disturbed or discovered . . . he'll shoot first and ask questions later . . . and he'll try to shoot straight! . . . his life depends upon the draw!

"Unless you have a dead drop on him . . . lie quietly in bed if you value your life and the safety of your family . . . this man is dangerous . . . make no mistake about that," the chief warns.

It is Chief Tarver's observation that neither of these four criminals "poaches" on the other's preserve . . . they specialize in their own line and let the other fellows alone . . . they are "types" and remain that way.

The superintendent of police declares that the easiest robbery is the daylight bank holdup . . . this job is usually accomplished by a more or less cowardly class of criminal . . . one who resorts to morphine or some other drug before pulling the "hiest." "There is nothing spectacular about the bank robber," Mr. Tarver pointed out. "He walks in, accompanied, ordinarily, by several other gangsters, on an unsuspecting group, pulls his sub-machine gun and scoops up the cash in sight . . . before an alarm can be given, he is miles away speeding for some hideout," he said.

There is nothing cunning or smart about a burglar, the chief believes. He explains his viewpoint this way: "If the burglar were smart, he wouldn't be a burglar. Take Louisiana for instance. . . . The maximum penalty for burglary is 14 years in the penitentiary. . . . The average home robbery nets from $50 to $100 . . . in other words, the burglar is weighing 14 years of his life in prison against a mere trifle of $50 to $100."

From his experience in criminal work, Chief Tarver has come to believe that very few burglars who go undetected in their first few jobs, ever reform . . . the game looks so easy and the pickings so inducing that they go on and on . . . sooner or later they are caught . . . after they serve their time they return to the game for quick money . . . and so the merry-go-round continues.

Chief Tarver gives the law enforcement forces of the country much praise for their work against this particular type of criminal and says that although he believes there will always be crime committed . . . the systems under which the law enforcement forces are working will hold it down to a minimum . . . improving their work as time goes on.

SCHOOL TERM IS NEARING ITS END

Commencement Exercises Are Scheduled In Morehouse Parish

BASTROP, La., May 18.—(Special)—All schools of Morehouse parish will officially close for the school term on Tuesday, May 28, after full nine months' terms. Most of the schools in the parish will hold their annual baccalaureate services Sunday morning. A union church service will be held in Bastrop on Sunday, May 26, in the auditorium of the Central Grammar school, at which time Rev. A. H. Brook, rector of the Episcopal church, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon. All ministers in the city will take part on the program.

Graduation exercises for the Bastrop High school will take place Monday morning, May 27, at 10 o'clock in the auditorium of the Central Grammar school. There are 40 graduates in the class.

Mer Rouge High school will hold its baccalaureate services Sunday morning at the First Methodist church, with Rev. A. H. Brook of Bastrop as the speaker. The graduation exercises will be held next Thursday evening. There are nine students in the class. They are as follows:

Mattymae Hope, valedictorian, Mildred Vosberg, salutatorian, Warren White, James McCormack, Marion Clarke, Leo Braddock, R. L. Norsworthy, Charles Westbrook and Thomas Matheny. The members of the seventh grade will be presented their certificates at the same time.

The Oak Ridge High school will also hold its baccalaureate services Sunday morning, with Rev. A. C. Holt of the First Baptist church as the speaker. Graduation exercises at Oak Ridge will be held next Thursday evening with Rev. Dan. C. Barr as the commencement speaker. Diplomas will be awarded by E. J. Brown, principal of the Oak Ridge school, to eight students in the graduating class. They are as follows:

Collinston High school will hold its baccalaureate services Sunday evening, May 26, at 7:30 o'clock at the First Methodist church, with Rev. J. A. McCormick as the speaker. Graduation exercises will be held on Monday night, May 27, with E. D. Shaw, superintendent of Morehouse parish schools, as the commencement speaker. The nine graduates in the Collinston school are as follows:

Ruby Fontenot, valedictorian, Herman Goodnight, salutatorian, Mary Francis Bolding, Erline Jordan, Marguerite Langston, Ellen Short, Albert Cook, Vernon Gray and Furniss Harkness.

The Bonita High school has 16 graduates in its class, the largest in many years in that school. Bacacalureate services will be held Sunday morning, with Rev. George Fox delivering the sermon. Graduation exercises will be held next Friday evening. The 16 graduates are as follows:

Jonesboro

The Young Women's circle of the Methodist church met in the home of Mrs. Cecil Garrett, Monday afternoon. The meeting was opened with prayers given by each member. Mrs. Stanley Lewis gave the devotional exercises and Mrs. H. W. Ayers taught the mission study lesson. Those present were Mesdames David Shively, John Dupree, Cecil Garrett, H. W. Ayers, W. P. Miller, Stanley Lewis, W. A. Parish, A. V. Pendarvis, E. E. Roberts and G. T. Littlefield.

The Thursday Evening Auction Bridge club was entertained by Mrs. S. Kirkland in her home in east Jonesboro. Mrs. Harper Cox won the gentleman's prize, a tie. Miss Annis Cawthon was presented with the guest prize, a pair of silk hose. During the social hour, Mrs. O. A. Gaar, who was leaving for a visit to San Angelo, Texas, was given a miscellaneous shower. Many useful gifts were received by Mrs. Gaar.

An iced course was served to the following club members and guests: Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Bass, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Gatlin, Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Stinson, Mr. and Mrs Harper Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Lewis, Mrs. O. A. Gaar and Miss Anis Cawthon.

The Art club met with Mrs. W. P. Miller May 8 with the following club members present: Mesdames John Dupree, Stanley Lewis, G. T. Littlefield, David Jefrees, Paul Stinson and H. W. Ayers.

A social hour was enjoyed and the hostess served chicken salad, crackers, cake and tea.

Mrs. John C. Michaud was hostess to her contract bridge club May 8 in her home in Hodge. A variety of spring flowers were used in the reception rooms, where three tables of bridge was played. Mrs. Charles Kelley won the club prize, a pair of silk hose. Mrs. Michaud presented her guests, Mesdames Charles Jackson of Miami, Fla., and Mrs. Lincoln of Bogalusa with linen handkerchiefs.

TO BUILD ANOTHER GAS STATION HERE ON SPAN APPROACH

A permit for construction of another filling station on Louisville avenue, in anticipation of the completion of construction of the new state highway bridge across the Ouachita river here, has been issued by G. W. Jones, city building inspector.

The station will be constructed by the Magnolia Petroleum corporation, at the intersection of Louisville avenue and North Third street. It will cost about $4,000.

A permit for the construction of a five-room frame residence in the Peyton Parker addition, immediately east of the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university, has been issued to Jack Fouchea. The residence will cost about $2,200, and the construction will be in charge of Ross Zuberbier, contractor.

Dr. C. U. Johnson was issued a permit to repair his residence, 1213 St. John street, at a cost of about $200.

EYES ON THE GOVERNORSHIP

It's a fair prospect indeed that faces Alabama voters, with Gail Patrick, above, Alabama's pride in the movies, planning to make the race for governor. First she'll flash this dazzling smile in the courts, planning to become a lawyer, for which she already has studied, after she's finished in the films. Then—in 1952, when she'll be 40, the legal age—she's going after the governor's job and she wants everyone to know she's serious in her ambition.

Good, Clean Milk Essential In Tuberculosis Prevention

A little babe lies trustingly in its crib . . . its mother leaning by its side . . . mother love fairly beaming from her eyes as her hands smooth away the wrinkles in the little garments.

But amidst this heart-touching scene hovers an invisible menace, ready to pluck away the little life and bow the mother's head in never-forgotten sorrow.

The lurking horror is the possibility of that dreaded disease, tuberculosis.

But the intelligent mother is prepared for it . . . study has enlightened her how to combat successfully this snatcher of baby souls.

Milk . . . pure and wholesome milk . . . sunshine and fresh air . . . yes, there is little for her to fear . . . her baby's life is safe.

Statistics compiled by Dr. W. L. Bendel, an authority on the subject, show that during the first two years of a child's life, 10 per cent of all children in civilized countries become infected with the tubercle bacillus.

There are three chief sources from which come the tubercle bacilli . . . raw sputum . . . greatest source between 3 and 10 years of age . . . the inhalation of bacilli-laden dust or droplets . . . the ingestion of milk from tuberculous cows . . . especially in infancy.

Measures demanded to prevent or minimize there are . . . a determined effort to destroy raw sputum . . . clean, and where possible, pasteurized milk from tuberculin-tested cows should be insisted upon.

The infant is practically never born tubercular . . . nor need it, if infected later, become the prey of tuberculosis. The old belief that certain children come into the world with the seeds of tuberculosis is a fairy-tale. The baby, even of a tubercular mother, is not born tubercular.

The practice of kissing children on the mouth is dangerous and should be forbidden even to the parents—Strangers should not be permitted to fondle a child, particularly if they are recognized as not being strong. The most important prophylactic measure in childhood is to keep the child away from any one who is known to have tuberculosis.

And so, with this carefully gathered information mothers need not fear the grinning jaws of the dreaded plague . . . Feed your child plenty of clean, pure milk . . . use your share of sunshine and fresh air . . . mother nature will do the rest.

DE BASTROP LAND SUIT IS DECIDED

her son-in-law, Walter M. Black, to the land directly involved and that he, in turn, assigned the lease to the Sterlington Gas corporation and that therefore, the corporation members are trespassers.

The petition further alleged that the plaintiffs had never been in possession of the property and that the defendants only gained possession a short time before the suit was filed and had begun drilling for oil or gas.

The opinion handed down by Mr. Thompson denied that the defendant was a trespasser and held that the plaintiffs had never paid taxes on the property in the 100 years they claimed possession.

It held that the question had boiled down to the issue of whether Baron De Bastrop, under the terms of his last will and testament, bequeathed to Victoriana LeBaume an undivided one-fifth interest in the property involved.

"We must look to the will for the answer," the opinion reads in part. "The will, written in Spanish but translated into English, was dated January 16, 1826, was probated in February, 1827, in the state of Coahuila and the town of Sautillo and it was recognized and ordered registered in Louisiana in April, 1834.

"It described in full and in detail, the property owned by the baron and where it was situated. It reads as follows:

" 'In Louisiana, in the county of Huachita, 100,000 arpents of land, which are a part of the old concession of 12 leagues given me by the Spanish government. I have disposed of the remainder. Likewise, I possess in the same county, a ranch called "Las Colar.'

" 'Moreover, I declare to have some debts receivable and some debts payable. I hereby order the former collected and the latter, after all of my property is put at sale, paid. The remainder shall be given to my children, after subdividing one-fifth of it which it is my will to be bequest to Dona Victoriana LeBaume, daughter of Don Jose LeBaume, a resident of Bexar, as a just payment for the services which her father has rendered.' "

The opinion held that since only the two properties in Ouachita parish were mentioned in the will and that it is extremely doubtful that anything more than one-fifth of the proceeds were collected from the debts receivable, and the sale of the two properties are mentioned specifically in the will, the property involved in the suit could not be owned by the defendants.

The opinion ruled that since the plaintiffs have failed to establish any title whatever in themselves, their suit must be dismissed at their cost.

The case was brilliantly fought on both sides. Attorneys for the plaintiffs were: Sholars and Gunby; Todd and Todd and Tobin Hodge. Defense attorneys were: McHenry, Montgomery, Lamkin and Lamkin.

Because of the huge amount of gas discovered on the property, the land became immensely valuable and because of the unusual aspects of the case it has attracted wide attention throughout northeast Louisiana.

ACTOR DIVORCED FROM BARONESS

But Ian Keith And Former Wife Continue To Remain Friends

CHICAGO, May 18.—(AP)—Baroness Fern Andra was granted a divorce today fro Lan Keith, stage and screen actor, but neither let the separation stand in the way of friendship.

Baroness Andra charged Keith, whose real name is Keith McCauley Ross, with cruelty. She testified that their married life was a series of temperamental outbursts, during several of which Keith struck her.

Keith, appearing here in the play "Mary of Scotland," did not contest the suit and the decree was entered by default.

Last night the baroness and Keith were together at a gay supper party in a night club.

She did not ask alimony, informing the court she had accepted an out of court settlement of $25,000.

SCHOOL CENSUS WILL BE MADE

All Children Up To 18 Years Of Age Will Be Enumerated

Plans are being formulated in the office of T. O. Brown, superintendent of Ouachita parish schools, for the taking of the 1935 parish-wide census starting June 1, and to be completed by the end of the month. Similar census is ordered in each of the parishes of the state by T. H. Harris, superintendent of education, Baton Rouge.

Only teachers with certificates can be employed, according to requirements, and these will be selected by the parish superintendent in each instance.

All persons in the parish up to 18 years of age are to be enumerated. In the taking of the 1931 census, only those of school age, from six to 18 years, were listed in the census, but this census is to be a far more comprehensive one.

Superintendent Harris stated that the census is to be taken to measure the gross educational load in each parish; to reveal what part of the load is actually in school; to determine the number of children of each age and how many of each age are in school; to secure the essential facts concerning the personal history of each child and the school status of those of school age; to locate children having major physical or mental defects so that steps may be taken toward their correction; to record vital statistics which may be of value to state and local boards of health and to enforce compulsory attendance and child labor laws.

Ouachita parish, in the 1931 census, showed that 94 per cent of all educables were in school, and the parish ranked fourth in the state from this standpoint.

It is expected that 20 or more enumerators will be required to take the census here next month, according to Mrs. Chrissie Williams, supervisor of parish elementary education.

In connection with her talks, Miss Stone urged members of the club to attend the Lincoln parish "Folk School" at Ruston July 16-19 and called attention to the short course for farm women at Louisiana Polytechnic institute at Ruston in June.

The culb was informed that work on the canning unit for the community would start immediately.

POPPIES ARE ALL SOLD SATURDAY

Best Sale In Four Years Reported By Legion Auxiliary

Poppy day was observed in Monroe Saturday when 1,500 of the little paper flowers, emblematic of Flanders field, were disposed of before noon, and the sale was the best in four years, stated Mrs. Charles Mitchell, publicity chairman for the legion auxiliary. It was the fifteenth annual sale observed in Monroe.

Early Saturday morning, downtown streets were made lively by the presence of 50 women and a large number of Camp Fire girls and others eager to sell the poppies, which came from the United States Veterans' hospital in Alexandria. Every penny received will go to the welfare funds of the legion and auxiliary. Just how much was netted was not obtainable Saturday night.

For each poppy the auxiliary paid its maker one cent, enabling hundreds of veterans to support themselves and families through the winter and spring. Approximately ten million poppies have been made this year, meaning $100,000 in the pockets of disabled veterans.

THE DAYS OF AULD LANG SYNE

The above photograph of the Apollo club, an organization of Monroe singers, was taken in 1909, and is now in the possession of Harry Prophit. From left to right at the top are Darden Ford, P. A. Poag, W. M. Washburn, William Marshall, J. D. McCranie. At the bottom are C. V. Reiser, B. G. Williams, T. J. Shelton, William Apgar, Leon Hammond, Harry Prophit. Some of the members are dead, some have left Monroe, and some are well known business men here.

Valued Photograph Brings Back Memories Of City In 1909

Nearly thirty years ago a group of young Monroe men banded together and formed the Apollo club an organization of singers. They held practice sessions once each week and rendcred public recitals in full evening dress. They never charged one penny for their public serivce. They sang because they liked to sing.

Monroe people had more time to live in 1906. There was no welter of automobile traffic, no hurry and bustle as people earned their livelihoods; there was time then for social and cultural activities such as those of a singing club.

The young bloods had no automobiles in which to hurry home from work and to rush away on pleasure bent. George Zeigin, L. R. Powers and the late Dr. O. W. Cosby were among the few who had automobiles.

On Sundays, the young men would occasionally rent a horse and buggy from Endom's Livery stable, located in the 100 block of DeSiard street, and would take their girl friends on rides to the country.

The country then was located only a dozen blocks or more from DeSiard street. South of DeSiard, a dirt road led out into the country—past the Layton Place, then konwn as Layton Castle. Several blocks east of Five Points—and the former V. S. & P. railroad shops, a dirt road ran past open fields. North of DeSiard, Hudson Lane then was really a lane. It was the approximate northern extremity of the city's residential section.

Amidst the peaceful serenity of this setting, with little else to do, the young men were wont to stroll downtown in the evenings, walking leisurely, for there was no occasion for hurrying.

Meeting downtown on a street corner or in front of the livery stable, perhaps inspired in part by moonlight flooding the downtown streets which were poorly illuminated by lamps, the young men spontaneously blended their voices in song.

Such a group of young men back in those peaceful days organized the Apollo club.

The organization meeting was held in the living quarters of Darden Ford, who resided in the G. B. Cooley Flats, on South Grand street. Mr. Darden was a singing instructor of the former Monroe City High school. He served as instructor of the club.

Leon Hammonds, who at that time was the director of an orchestra bearng his name, became the pianist of the club.

Practice sessions, with the young men earnestly pursuing the art of singing, were held in the auditorium of the City high school building and in the present Knights of Pythias hall.

Carefully trained in a large repertoire, including principally the familiar tunes of the day, but also a few semi-classical selections, the Apollo club soon made its services available for public entertainments. Songs were rendered by the club at high school commencement exercises and in the then Lyceum theater, where the flickering silent dramas of the screen were shown.

No person who heard the renditions of the singing organization enjoyed its harmonies more than members of the club enjoyed blending their voices in song. Their contribution to the musical life of the city was given without thought of personal gain.

About four years after it was organized, the club was disbanded because the members were leaving the city to pursue their business careers elsewhere. Some of the members, though, remained here.

C. V. Reiser, one of the club members, was an instructor of mathematics at the City high school. He died shortly after the picture accompanying this story was made.

Dr. B. G. Williams, at the time the picture was taken, was practicing his profession. Dr. Williams has remained here.

P. A. Poag was an assistant cashier of the Union National bank. He is now secretary-treasurer of the city of Monroe.

T. J. Shelton was chief clerk of the A. & L. M. railroad here. He is now connected with the street railway company at Shreveport.

W. M. Washburn was employed by a wholesale grocer company. He is now secretary-treasurer of the company.

William Apgar was a clerk of the Missouri Pacific railroad. He has died.

Leon Hammonds and his orchestra played regularly, as a full-time musical accompaniment, at the Lyceum theater. Mr. Hammonds is now a floor salesman of a local furniture company.

J. D. McCranie was a salesman of a Monroe grocery company. He died about three years ago.

H. G. Prophit was manager of the L. D. McLain Insurance agency, and is now operating a business in this city. He provided the picture and material for this story.

It is interesting to observe that Mr. Hammonds, a leading young musician of northeast Louisiana—during the life of the Apollo club, has since that time continued to contribute his talent and musical ability without stint to the community, and is recognized as an outstanding musical artist of this section. His services in public and organization musical programs are in such demand that he rarely has an hour or two for relaxation.

Monroe's Young Bloods Organized And Let Harmony Ring

Mr. Prophit has for many years been a singer of the choir of the Temple B'Nai Israel. He is a favorite singer and actor of the annual minstrel staged by the Leonidas Barkdull Faulk post of the American Legion. Mr. Poag also sings with the minstrel.

Nearly 30 years have passed since the Apollo club rendered its songs. Memories of those melodies are mellowed with years, but sometimes, when a radio artist sings one of the old-time tunes, there drifts back to those who were members of the club vibrant memories that are as sad and as sweet as a faded rose found in an old book of verse.

14 PERSONS ARE REPORTED SLAIN

Victims Reputedly Killed In Street Fighting In Yugoslavia

VIENNA, May 18.—(AP)—Unconfirmed reports today said 14 persons were slain in street fighting in the Yugoslav province of Slovenia and Croatia growing from the refusal of young recruits to perform military service in Macedonia.

(In Belgrade nothing official was published concerning the reported disorders. Military authorities would not comment, but election officials pointed out a committee which distributes parliamentary seats in accordance with the complex electoral law had not finished their work, following the May 5 election, in which the Croats and Slovenes charged they were robbed of many mandates.)

A crowd of 200, said the reports, at Lyublyana raised the forbidden Slovenian flag and beat off an attack by Serb troops and police. Ten were reported killed at Osiyek, Croatia, and the others in Brod.

It was said the Slovenian and Croat recruits charged Belgrade was trying to get them from their home idstricts, where dissatisfaction with the regime apparently is growing, and they were not physically fit for long service in Macedonia's climate.

Earlier reports said the banned Croat and Slovenian flags have been displayed publicly often recently despite police attempts to suppress them.

TWO NEGROES CAUGHT WITH STOLEN STOVE

Caught while trying to sell a stolen cook stove to a local furniture store, Napoleon Johnson, 20, and Charles Baker, 20, negroes, had a ready answer for the arresting officers Saturday as to where they got the stove.

"Hit wuz lik' dis, boss," one of them explained. "We wuz down at 'er empty hous' lookin' fer a room and bumped right slab-dab into dis yer' stov'."

The stove was stolen Friday night from the North Louisiana industrial high school (negro), the report to the police being made by Daniel Ross, negro, 1003 Texas avenue.

Johnson, who gave his address as 1408 Wood street, and Baker, who resides at 511 Vicksburg street, will be charged with burglary, according to L. V. Tarver, superintendent of police. Arrests were made by Officers L. G. Parker and D. J. Bedsole.

Watizit

Consult Your Ouachita Map And You'll Find Out Watizit

Two men were talking . . . here is the gist of their conversation.

Q. "What is it?"
A. "Watizit."
Q. "What is what?"
A. "That's it. Watizit."
Q. "I asked you, what is its name?"
A. "And I'm telling you, Watizit."

The questioner looked at the other in amazement. "One of us must be crazy. I asked you what you named the settlement."

Back came the answer, promptly "And I am telling you, 'Watizit."

Such things have led to fights and gun play, so the answerer went about explaining.

"You see, friend, that's the name I selected. 'W-a-t-i-z-i-t.'"

One of the men was H. T. Benoit, owner of the mill and father of H. H. Benoit of Monroe. The other is unknown.

Mr. Benoit explained: "You see, I hadn't selected a name until you asked me just then. You asked: 'What is it?' and I just condensed your question to 'Watizit'."

Although the mill and settlement were razed in 1907, the name still sticks.

Its only usefulness now is as a rural delivery post.

Look on your Ouachita parish map. You'll find it.

NEGRO IS INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

Miss Dorothy Mae Justice of Delhi, La., reported to the police that a negro, Casey Smith, walked out in front of her automobile in the 2800 block on DeSiard street about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon and was struck by her car before she could bring it to a halt.

The negro was taken to St. Francis sanitarium and is not believed to be seriously injured.

SUREBEST BREAD HIGH IN ENERGY

Foods Committee Points Out Value Of A Balanced Diet

"Your most reliable authority on nutrition as related to health is the committee on foods of the American Medical association," it was stated by C. P. Brogran, president of the Surebest Bakery, Inc.

Mr. Brogran's statement was made in connection with an educational campaign being conducted through the Morning World and News-Star by a group of leading local bakery concerns. Continuing, Mr. Brogran said:

"This committee accepts the following statements as true facts about bread:

"(1) Bread is our outstanding source of the largest single need in the balanced diet—food-energy.

"(2) Bread is the most economical source of food-energy. There is almost no waste in white bread, as it is 96 per cent digested.

"(3) Bread is often incorrectly called a 'fattening food.' The fact that bread is high in food-energy does not mean that it will produce overweight. The control of weight depends solely on the food-energy content of the diet as a whole, not on any one specific food in the diet. Bread can and should be used, even by those who are reducing weight under their physicians' instructions. Remember, you should never think of bread as a 'fattening food,' but as a food high in energy.

"(4) Bread is a completely wholesome food."

The Surebest Bakery takes pride in stating that milk is used at its plant in quantities sufficient to make the best loaf of bread possible. The most widely advertised yeast, special malt, shortening, sugar, salt, powdered milk, flour, arkady and other products are used in making Surebest bread.

The firm bakes all night, and the public is invited to visit its modern plant to see how the slow-baked, creamy textured, golden crusted Surebest bread is made.

ST. JOHN ELECTRIC CO.

The Modern Heat-Resisting Anti-Friction Lubricating Process

A NEW LUBRICATING DISCOVERY.—Incredible as it may seem, a revolutionary method of producing a NEW form of graphite has been discovered. This product is known as Colloidal Graphite. It is created by a patented process in an electric furnace at a temperature of 7,500 degrees F. This graphite is grit-free and so fine that particles of it can be seen by the human eye only with the aid of a powerful microscope. The particles are so small that 400 of them are required to encircle the finest drawn tungsten wire measuring .0003 of an inch in thickness. These minute elements will pass through the finest filters, even those as fine as chamois skin. This special-process Colloidal Graphite is so light that it will actually float in the air like smoke. We absolutely guarantee that it will blend, permanently, with mineral oil; will remain in suspension, and will not settle out of the oil into which it has been injected.

THE 3,000 MILE MOTOR OIL.—GRAFILM MOTOR OIL is good for at least 3,000 miles instead of the usual 500 to 1,000 miles obtained from ordinary oil. Merely add more GRAFILM to maintain the proper oil-level. Frequent oil-changes are unnecessary. You get MORE miles, power, speed, and smoothness with LESS oil, gas, friction, carbon, knocks, wear, and repairs when GRAFILM is used. GRAFILM MOTOR OIL is the highest grade, 100% Pure Paraffin-base mineral oil, into which has been injected the correct portion of pure, unctuous, Colloidal Graphite, resulting in a lubricant that most successfully meets today's high-speed motor requirements. This Colloidal Graphite is the lubricating auxiliary added to regular motor oil, and its prime function is to add maximum lubrication-efficiency to regular motor oil at minimum cost.

THE GRAFILM PROCESS OF PROTECTION.—GRAFILM is the masterpiece of all lubricating oils and the sensation of the motor world. All bearings and frictional surfaces are coated with genuine Colloidal Graphite, giving a glassy, corrosion-tight surface, friction-free and perfectly noiseless. The "plated" graphite film cannot be burned off by any degree of motor heat, nor can it be washed off the bearings by wet gasoline. After the metal has been impregnated with ever so thin a film, it will not attract more Graphite until the film is reduced by excessive wear, which takes a long time.

AUTHORITATIVE PROOF.—The Department of Commerce, Bureau of Mines, states: "Graphite is an excellent lubricant and retains its lubricating properties at all temperatures and under conditions that cause oil or grease to decompose or lose body. It adheres readily to metal and not only fills up pores, but also forms a protective film which cannot be squeezed out even at high bearing pressures."

GUARANTEE.—GRAFILM MOTOR OIL contains only the finest lubricating elements and is absolutely GUARANTEED to contain no acids, chemicals, or any ingredients that would cause damage to the finest mechanism. Drain your crankcase, refill with GRAFILM MOTOR OIL of the proper grade. Drive considerably farther, harder, and faster than usual. If you are not thoroughly satisfied with the added smoothness, and power of your motor, your purchase price will be refunded without question or red tape. You are the sole judge.

49 RUSSIANS KILLED AS BIGGEST LAND PLANE IN WORLD CRASHES

ROOSEVELT VETO ALMOST CERTAIN TO BE SUSTAINED

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS ON BILL WILL BE BROADCAST

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP)—While President Roosevelt completed in seclusion a sternly worded bonus veto, a check of senate votes today disclosed that his rejection of the inflationary $2,200,000,000 Patman bonus bill almost certainly would be upheld.

A virtually complete survey failed to show a single change in the 35 votes registered or announced against the inflationary bill when it passed the senate early last week, despite the intense anti-veto campaign conducted by its friends. Should 33 vote with the president the veto would be upheld.

On the other hand, several senators who voted for the bill originally appeared to be wavering in view of the president's dramatic show of determination to kill the bill. The executive's intention to appear personally to present his veto, a hitherto unpre-

ORLEANS EMPLOYES TO RECEIVE HALF SALARY

NEW ORLEANS, May 18.—(AP)—City policemen and firemen, now under Huey Long-controlled governing boards, are anticipating receiving only half of their semi-monthly salaries on Monday unless the city administration obtains consent of a new Long-managed board to borrow funds for current expenses.

Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, political foe of Long, is seeking to borrow $3,200,000 from the banks to be refunded by anticipated tax payments, but under a Long-dictated law, municipalities must obtain approval of the newly-created state bond and tax board before incurring debt.

The police and fire departments of the city recently went under Long board management and intensified the war over city management and financing between Long with his obedient legislature and Walmsley with his "Old Regular" city forces.

Uncle sam stands before you, his left hand gives to a typical veteran on crutches a bag containing $2,200,000,000.

On his right stands a fat person, labelled "money lender," who receives, as interest on the bonus, a bag also containing $2,200,000,000.

Uncle Sam remarks to the veteran: "I hand you this money with pleasure because you have earned it in the trenches. Why I am compelled to hand the same amount to the money lender on my right, I don't know."

CAN YOU understand why this government, its people and its taxpayers should give two billion, two hundred millions to money-lenders, in addition to giving the same sum to veterans?

PARISH FARMERS BACK FROM TREK

Delegation Enjoyed Profitable Visit In Washington; Heard President

Returning here yesterday on a special train from Washington, where they attended a mass meeting of farmers, members of the Ouachita parish delegation expressed themselves as having enjoyed a trip they considered profitable, as well as pleasurable.

After attending various meetings and conferences, the farmers visited places of scenic and historic interest in the capital and assembled on the lawn of the White House to hear an address by President Roosevelt.

The address was of noteworthy interest and the president held the close attention of his audience of several thousand farmers, the local delegation reported. The president brought a personal touch into his address with reference to his own problems on his farm in Georgia, on which he has planted 50 acres of cotton.

Among other addresses heard by the farmers were those delivered during an all-day conference of farmers representing corn, hog, cotton, wheat and tobacco growers. Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, Chester C. Davis, administrator of the agricultural adjustment administration, and several senators and representatives who gave brief addresses, were the speakers.

Places visited by the local delegation in their tour of the capital included Mount Vernon, the home of George Washington, the home of Robert E. Lee in Arlington cemetery, the Smithsonian institute, offices of the

LOUISIANA COLLEGE PRESIDENT INJURED

ALEXANDRIA, La., May 18.—(AP)—Dr. Claybrook Cottingham, president of Louisiana College of Pineville, was injured this afternoon when his automobile collided with another car, which Town Marshal John Woodward, of Pineville said was driven by Guy Miley.

Natt Lofton, a white youth who had been acting as caddy at the Rapides Golf and Country club, who was in the car with Dr. Cottingham, suffered a skull fracture and the loss of one of his eyes. Miley was also seriously injured, Marshal Woodward said.

Rr. Cottnigtam had been playing golf and was driving home out the entrance to the club when the collision occurred. Marshal Woodward said that Miley was on the wrong side of the road.

OPENING OF TWO NEW L.S.U. SCHOOLS HELD UP

BATON ROUGE, La., May 18.—(AP)—Postponement of the opening of the new schools of dentistry and pharmacy of Louisiana State university for another year was announced tonight by Dr. James M. Smith, president of the university.

Impossibility of completing the buildings that will house the schools in time for opening in the fall as had been planned was assigned as reason for the postponement.

Dr. Smith said the announcement was made to permit students who had intended entering the schools to enroll elsewhere.

Prosecution Declares Physician Was Dead When Building Caught Fire

JENA, La., May 18.—(Special)—The case of Louis Hamilton, Harmon Sheppard and Floyd Miller, charged with murder in connection with the death of Dr. Fred Hamilton, father of Louis, went to the Jury at 11:23 o'clock tonight. A verdict was expected within the next hour.

JENA, La., May 18.—(AP)—Pleas for conviction on the ground of alleged conspiracy, and acquittal because of "flimsy evidence" were offered today to the jury in opposing arguments summing up the case of Louis Hamilton, Harmon Sheppard and Floyd Miller, charged with murder in connection with the death of Dr. Fred Hamilton, father of Louis and former LaSalle parish coroner.

Louis Hamilton, arrested while he was pursuing his medical studies at Tulane university, and the other two defendants were accused by District Attorney V. M. Mouser in his argument with conspiring to kill Dr. Hamilton in order to collect on his war risk insurance policy, but the defense did not attempt to fix the cause of death other than to contend that the state had not proven murder.

"Referring to a sandbag reportedly found beside the body of Dr. Hamilton," G. Wray Gill, defense attorney, in his argument, declared, "we don't say how Dr. Hamilton died. But we do say that the state hasn't próved he was murdered."

Dr. Hamilton's body was found in the charred ruins of his apartment-home on the night of June 10, 1933, after the building had burned and the state charged that he was slain and the house set afire to cover up the alleged crime.

The prosecution did not ask for capital punishment but the district attorney said the state would be sat-

PETERMAN SETS UP WORK RELIEF FORCE IN STATE

OFFICIALS WILL HANDLE THE DIVISIONAL PROBLEMS

Senator Chasez, George McSpangler, Powers Higginbotham Named

NEW ORLEANS, May 18.—(AP)—Frank H. Peterman, state administrator of federal relief in Louisiana, announced today he had set up a personnel division in the state to assure the most effective operation of the new work-relief plans of the federal government.

The new department in the government's relief agency in Louisiana, Peterman said, is absolutely essential because of the far-flung and exacting activities of the organization.

At the same time, Peterman announced the heads of the various districts he had designated to supervise work-relief in their sections.

The creation of the personnel division will enable the administrator to delegate to the agents personal problems which formerly took up much of the administrator's time, Peterman said. The new division will enable him to devote his full attention to the larger operations and plans of the agency, he added.

The personnel chiefs, arranged in districts coinciding with congressional districts, will be responsible for all administrative and supervisory personnel of the FERA in their districts.

The appointments to the various districts, announced today by Peterman and effective immediately, were:

New Orleans (first and second districts)—State Senator Paul Chasez, headquarters in New Orleans.

First and second districts—Dr. Charles Gelbke, headquarters in Gretna (district includes Plaquemine, Jefferson, St. Bernard, St. Charles, St. John and St. James parishes).

GHOST OF BARON DE BASTROP RISES UP ... TO AID DECISION IN ANCIENT LAND SUIT

Opinion Handed Down By Special Judge In Favor Of Defendant

Litigation of more than 18 months, involving a narrow strip of land from the mouth to the source of Bayou Bartholomew in Morehouse parish, and in which much of the early history of Louisiana played a part, was brought to a close Saturday when the opinion of Wood H. Thompson, special judge, finding in behalf of the defendant in fourth district court was made public.

The ghost of a Dutch nobleman, who settled in Louisiana while the territory was under Spanish dominion, arose from its musty grave in a futile attempt to aid in the fight of descendants of his heir to gain possession of a tract of valuable gas property in the neighboring parish.

The case is that of Luis Vidal, et als., versus the Sterlington Gas corporation, et als., and involves approvimately 650 acres of land along Bayou Bartholomew, 35 feet on each side of the bayou from the mouth to the source.

The property was an original grant made on June 12, 1797, by the Spanish governor general of Louisiana, Baron De Carondelet to Baron De Bastrop, a nobleman of Holland who had migrated to Louisiana. It was for six "toises" in each bank of the Bayou Bartholomew from the mouth to the source.

The opinion involves many legal technicalities but is of dramatic and historic interest. It was handed down less than a month from the time the case was closed and shows profound study on the part of the special judge.

Adolfo Vidal, Adele Vidal Cervantes, Victor Vidal, Clementia Vidal Valdez, Sophia Vidal Valdez, Luis Vidal, John Vidal, Josephine Vidal, all claiming to be direct descendants of Victoriana LaBaume, one of the heirs of Baron De Bastrop, and all residents of Texas, were the plaintiffs in the case. The Sterlington Gas corporation, by virtue of purchases and leases of the land involved, was the defendant.

Patent from the United States

Maxim Gorky Is Crumpled Before Stunting Airship

Tragedy Is Greatest Disaster Ever To Befall Passenger Craft

WOMEN AND CHILDREN DIE AS BIG LINER BREAKS UP

Several Villagers Reported Victims As Debris Strikes Houses

MOSCOW, May 18.—(AP)—The Maxim Gorky, largest land airplane in the world, crashed after a collision with a small airplane today, killing 49 persons, including eight women and six children, in the worst disaster ever to befall a passenger plane.

An official report denied the Maxim Gorky exploded, although the plane broke into pieces in the air.

The mangled bodies of its 48 occupants were scattered over the village of Socol, three miles from Moscow.

Pilot Glagin of a small escorting plane, which rammed into the Gorky while stunting against orders, was also killed. Soviet officials confirmed the death toll of 49.

There were reports that several villagers were killed when struck by fallen wreckage but these were not confirmed.

The women and children among the 37 passengers lost in the disaster were members of the families of crack employes of the Central Airodynamic institute, on an excursion in the plane.

Among the entire crew of 21 that perished were two of the Soviet's most expert pilots, Giuroff and Mikhaeff.

The dead passengers included Matrosoff, chief production engineer of the Airodynamic institute, Kazarnovich, director of the institute's pilot committee and his two children, and the institute's chief mechanic and head bookkeeper.

Eye witnesses said the smaller plane remained wedged into an edge of the Maxim Gorky's wing and that the two fell together. Then the pilot of the Gorky regained control and tried to come down in a glide.

Spectators said they believed he would have succeeded but that the smaller plane fell away and the giant liner lost equilibrium and went into a nosedive.

It was officially asserted the pilot cut off the motors and that there was no explosion, although shortly after going into the terrifying dive the Gorky broke up and fell in pieces over the village of Socol.

The workers were being rewarded with the ride for their meritorius labor, and 32 others were waiting at Moscow central airdrome for their turn to go up in the plane, named for Russia's most distinguished contemporary author.

The smaller plane was accompanying the Maxim Gorky to furnish a contrast in size for a motion picture which was being taken from a third plane.

Built a year ago, the Maxim Gorky, so-called "Soviet palace of culture," had a crew capacity of 76 and carried a rotary printing press and a complete motion picture projecting apparatus.

An official statement issued tonight placed the blame for the accident, which took place at 12:45 p. m. upon Blagin. A state funeral will be given the victims, and their families will get pensions and a lump sum indemnity, it was announced.

An inhabitant of the village of Socol, who witnessed the disaster, said:

"I was watching, spellbound by the sight of the huge Maxim Gorky and the contrast with the small plane.

WILL ROGERS SAYS:

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 18.—(Special)—Well, just been prowling along up the road. I found out how to cut out fast driving and worry and hurry; just get up and start about two hours earlier than you had intended; that ought to be made a law. As I told you, I run into a little town where all the mustard comes from that eventually goes on your fingers off the hot dogs. Well, I stayed all night at Gilroy, and over 90 per cent of all the garlic is raised there, but here is the big astonishment, Boston is one of the greatest consumers of garlic in America. So what you detect when you are speaking to a Harvard Bostonian is not all culture.

Yours,

Will Rogers

PROMINENT LOCAL WOMAN EXPIRES

Mrs. Llewella McGuire Russell Dies; Funeral Planned Today

Mrs. Llewella McGuire Russell, widow of the late H. H. Russell, Sr., during his life time one of the most prominent attorneys of north Louisiana, died at her home, 319 North Tihrd street, shortly before 3 o'clock Saturday morning. Mrs. Russell, who would have been 75 years old May 28, had been in failing health for several years, but had been able to be about her usual activities until ten days ago. All the surviving members of her family were with her in her last illness.

Mrs. Russell was born near Old Trenton, one-time shipping center of the Ouachita valley, May 28, 1860. She was the daughter of the late Nimrod and Elizabeth McGuire, prominent in the history of northeast Louisiana during the time of the war between the states.

Mrs. Russell was married March 3, 1886, to H. H. Russell, Sr., who commanded a wide influence in his abilities and attainments as a lawyer. Mr. Russell died in 1908.

Surviving children are H. H. Russell, Jr., city attorney of Monroe;

FIVE PERSONS DEAD IN PATH OF STORMS

ALTUS, Okla., May 18.—(AP)—Five persons were known dead tonight and at least seven missing in a storm that wrought an estimated million dollars' damage in Texas and Oklahoma.

Four persons were killed and many more injured probably fatally in a series of devastating "twisters" in widely separated sections of north and central Texas.

The dead in the two-state storm area included:

Mrs. Claude Gowens, 70, in the Altus flood.

J. P. Phillips, 69, and Mrs. Phillips, 57, in a tornado near Simpson, Texas.

George Crenshaw, 70, in a tornado at Weches in Houston county, Texas.

An unidentified negro killed at Weldon.

MRS. F. M. COLE HURT IN AUTOMOBILE MISHAP

Mrs. F. M. Cole of Sherrouse addition was returned to her home yesterday from Shreveport where she was painfully injured in a three-car automobile accident Thursday night.

Several stitches were taken in Mrs. Cole's head and she was suffering from shock, but was reported as resting comfortably Saturday night.

Mrs. Cole had been visiting Mrs. O. D. Peck of Shreveport and Mrs. Peck was driving the Cole automobile at the time of the accident. The automobile was badly damaged.

The accident was declared to be unavoidable.

COMMERCE MEET SLATED AT DELHI

Macon Ridge Business Group Will Hold Meeting Next Wednesday

Secretary S. H. McClary, of the Monroe and West Monroe Chamber of Commerce, will be one of the speakers at a public get-together meeting at the legion hall, Delhi, on Wednesday at 3 p.m. He will talk on "The Value of a Chamber of Commerce to Any Community." Other speakers will be President Jack Rogers of the Chamber of Commerce here, Alston Prophit and A. V. Miller of Monroe, also affiliated with the local chamber.

Charles H. Murphy, well known banker and planter of El Dorado, will discuss "Possibilities of Mineral and Agricultural Wealth in the Undeveloped Macon Ridge Community."

Speakers representing the Illinois Central and Missouri Pacific railroads will also emphasize the value of a chamber of commerce to a community.

S. A. Moss, Missouri Pacific freight agent, will be in attendance with the Missouri Pacific quartet, which will furnish music.

The Macon Ridge Chamber of Commerce was organized last March for the mutual benefit of all towns in the Macon Ridge area. Call for Wednesday's meeting is issued by President Freeman W. Miles, Secretary H. P. Warden and Treasurer B. Skidmore.

Errant Mothers Are Aided By Home Here

Good Samaritan Principle Is Applied Practically

The story of "The Good Samaritan" is one that has a significance which has lent its appeal to humanity down through the ages since it was first uttered. It is significant of the tenderest feelings of mankind.

It is applied practically in the principles which control the institution in Monroe known as "The Home of the Good Samaritan," a comforting shelter for those mothers and their babies who have felt the hand of a cold world against them.

Organized in 1909 by Rev. A. J. Vallery, a Methodist Protestant minister, and founded at New Orleans, the home was moved here in 1912. A two-story frame structure was constructed on four acres of land obtained especially for the purpose. The home is located on the Winnsboro road, just within the city limits.

Reverend Vallery served as superintendent of the home for about two years. After his resignation, Rev. L. H. Swayze was superintendent until his death in 1922. Rev. J. R. Downs, the present superintendent, assumed the position at that time. Previously, Reverend Downs has served as the home's field worker and missionary for eight or nine years.

The home is supported financially by contributions made by individuals and church organizations, and by regular contributions made by the city of Monroe and Ouachita parish. The city contributes $22.50 each month, and the police jury contributes $22.50 per month.

A considerable portion of the food of persons living at the home permanently or temporarily is produced on the premises. Three acres of truck gardens provide an abundance of vegetables, much of which is canned by use of a pressure cooker for consumption during the winter months. An abundance of milk and butter is provided the home by its six milch cows. The home also has six calves and yearlings.

An idea of the details of the home's self-sustaining plan is suggested by the fact that the persons there make their own peanut butter from peanuts raised on the premises. Washing, ironing and other self-care methods are observed.

A washing machine, though badly worn, is in use at the home, and an electric refrigerator, paid for by months of careful financial management, is also installed there.

The structure in which the home is located has a dormitory and two small rooms, a clinic and dressing room, located on the second floor, and has on its first floor a chapel, dining room, kitchen, store room, milk room, two rooms for the two matrons, a business office and a sleeping porch.

While at the home, mothers perform duties in the routine of the household operation. There is food enough for all, there is room for them to sleep and rest there; they are not turned away because their security and the security of their offspring have not been established; their cases have not been completed.

The average number of people living at the home, including the superintendent and two matrons, is between 20 and 25. At this time there are 11 young women there and six babies.

Reverend Downs, in commenting on the financial condition of the home, said that the purchase price of the land on which it is located has never been paid. The business organization to which the balance is owed has been kind and understanding—lenient—Reverend Downs asserted. The superintendent said, however, that it is neither fair nor just to expect this state of affairs to continue indefinitely. He sincerely hopes that a way will be found to pay off the land indebtedness this year.

With the land paid for, the way would be cleared in the not too distant future for the construction of a modern, brick home.

There is one other need, a small one when measured financially, that Reverend Downs expressed. He would appreciate the contribution of a number of folding chairs, for use in church meetings which would be held during the summer on the lawn of the home, and for use in the chapel inside the building.

Among other needs of the home are clothing for young women, cloth for the making of clothing, and accessories for infants.

Contributions of anything useful will be welcomed.

The home is non-denominational.

BAPTISTS BRING MEETING TO END

Denomination Reaffirms Adherence Of Separation Of Church And State

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 18.—(AP)—Reaffirming their adherence to that "fundamental New Testament doctrine,"—The "separation of church and state,"—and instructed to look upon members of other denominational groups as comrades, delegates to the south Baptist convention concluded their eightieth annual meeting today.

"Religion must be kept free from all entangling alliances with government and government must not assume patronage, sponsorship or control over religion in any form," the convention agreed in adopting the report of its social service commission.

"We would enter our earnest protest against the violation of this principle by others, and especially against the appropriation or application of public funds to sectarian institutions of whatever name or order."

The convention also resolved to oppose "improper movies," the "liquor evil," war and lynchings.

Tall, white-haired Dr. John R. Sampey of Louisville, the new president, took over the gavel and in a forceful speech, told the delegates that "we must recognize as our allies in the great task of world evangelism all who love the Lord Jesus."

"When we see members of other denominational groups as comrades instead of rivals, we won't be out with a sawed-off shotgun shooting into them," he said. "We can show forth this spirit of brotherhood and cooperation without one moment lagging in our loyalty to what we believe to be the church ordinances and doctrines.

"Baptists are a great democracy. Their progress is built upon the unifying principle of mutual confidence and good will."

WAR VETERANS' SERVICE HELPS

(Editor's note: The following article is one of a series released by H. B. McClendon, Ouachita parish service officer, for publication in the Sunday Morning World. The articles explain benefits available to United States veterans of wars in which this country has participated, and discuss compensations, pensions, hospitalization, funeral expenses and other benefits.)

Flags to drape the caskets of honorably discharged war veterans and headstones to mark their graves may be secured from the postmaster of the parish seat and the war department, respectively. The nearest of kin or a friend should call on the postmaster with the veteran's honorable discharge, and complete the form which he can obtain from the postmaster in order to secure an American flag to drape the casket of the deceased veteran. After the funeral services, the flag should be removed and given to the nearest of kin.

Where an honorably discharged veteran of the Spanish-American war, World war, or Civil war (both Federal and Confederate) dies and there is no headstone to mark his grave, the war department will ship to the nearest of kin the necessary headstone upon application, on war department form 623. This form may be secured from the state service commissioner, 203 Masonic Temple building, New Orleans, and after it is completed should be forwarded direct to the quartermaster general, war department, Washington, D. C.

The headstone for Civil and Spanish war veterans are of American white marble, 39 inches long, 12 inches wide and 4 inches thick; for the World war veterans, 42 inches long, 13 inches wide, 4 inches thick. Headstone will be shipped freight prepaid by the government, only to the nearest railroad station or steamboat landing.

Further information may be secured by communicating with the local service officer.

OPERATOR OF TAXICAB NOT ACCIDENT DRIVER

J. L. Peterson, operator of a local taxicab company, was erroneously reported in the Morning World, Saturday, as the driver of an automobile which was in a collision with an automobile driven by H. Blazier, Friday afternoon in West Monroe.

Peterson's wife was the driver of the automobile which was in a collision with the Blazier car. The automobile she was driving is owned by L. B. Dortch, and was not one of Peterson's taxicabs. Mrs. Dortch was with Mrs. Peterson at the time of the accident.

MADISON PARISH CLUB HOLDS FLOWER SHOW

TALLULAH, La., May 18.—(Special)—The fourth annual spring flower show sponsored by the Madison Parish Garden club, was held at the Community club building here Friday. It was attended by a large number of visitors from Madison parish, Vicksburg, Lake Providence, St. Joseph, Shreveport and Pioneer.

In spite of recent heavy rains the exhibits, which were of high quality, were varied and abundant. There were numerous entries in the 28 classes of displays. Henry Clay Smith, landscape gardener of the Missouri Pacific railroad, served as judge of the exhibits.

Under the direction of Miss Annette Beers, programs given in the afternoon and evening were featured by the invocation by Rev. Scardon D'Aubert, an address on "Old Gardens" by Mrs. Conway Wood of Vicksburg, musical numbers by Misses Martha Bunch, Joy Webb, Helenmai Julian, Venita Scott, Mary Pierce and Ethel Emery, Mrs. E. O. Edgerton and Mrs. Charles Horn and dances by Geneva Rountree, Hary Hilma Dale and Joyce Hurd.

Mrs. W. M. Murphy is president of the Garden club.

REV. HUNTSBERRY BACK FROM BAPTIST MEETING

Rev. E. E. Huntsberry pastor of the First Baptist church of West Monroe, returned Saturday from the Southern Baptist convention held in Memphis.

Rev. Huntsberry reported that unusual progress has been made in retiring the indebtedness of the church.

Rev. Huntsberry had to leave the convention early in order to get back in time to make preparations for a revival to be held at the church beginning June 2 and continuing through June 16.

Rev. H. E. Kirkpatrick, pastor of the First Baptist church of Minden, will conduct the revival and Rev. B. B. Cox of Carlyle, Ark., formerly educational director and soloist of the West Monroe church, will be in charge of the singing.

Rev. Huntsberry is a member of the home mission board of the Southern Baptist convention, which made its report to the convention Friday night.

OVERPASS WORK IS PROGRESSING

Nearly All Of Dirt Job And Column Forms Complete At Sicard

Progress on work on the Sicard overpass, designed to handle traffic over rails of the Missouri Pacific railroad a short distance from the end of the pavement on the DeSiard road, has continued satisfactorily, despite hard rains recently, it was learned yesterday.

Nearly all of the dirt work incidental to building up the east approach has been completed, and most of the column forms for the main structure have been built and are ready for the pouring of concrete. Some of the columns have already been poured.

Work has been started on a detour to lead traffic from the end of the pavement, where the overpass will begin, to the intersection of the DeSiard road and the Monroe-Bastrop gravel road.

Work has also been started on construction of a gravel road which will lead traffic from near the end of the pavement to the Monroe-Bastrop road. At this time, motor vehicles headed for the latter road drive past the future west end of the overpass. When the new gravel road and the overpass are completed and in use, vehicles headed for the Bastrop road will reach that road with greater safety, it was stated.

Work on the project of extending Louisville avenue, which has been conducted thus far immediately east of the tracks of the Little Rock and Monroe branch of the Missouri Pacific railroad, was suspended last week because of rains. It is expected that the work will be resumed early this week.

The Louisiana state unemployment service, 105 North Fourth street, headed by R. E. Young, district manager, provides labor for the overpass and avenue extension work.

Mr. Young has contacted the S. and W. company, of Memphis, Tenn., low bidders for the construction of a seawall here, for the purpose of making arrangements for providing labor for the contractors. The company informed Mr. Young in a letter that although they have not been awarded the contract, they will be pleased to cooperate with him in event they are given the contract.

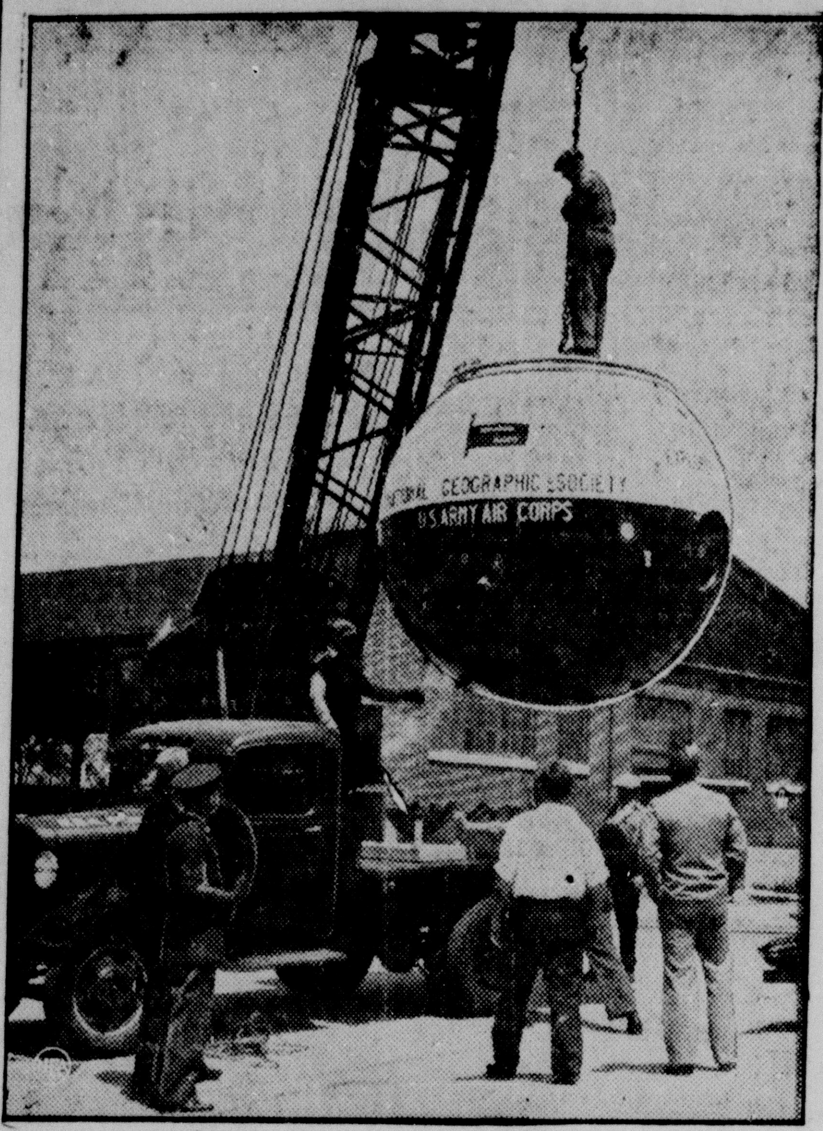
The sheet contains all the news of the science department at Neville and is being published primarily to advise students in choosing scientific studies for their next semester's work. The paper derives its name from the studies physics, chemistry and biology.

STRATO GONDOLA TAKEOFF DAY



It was takeoff day for the stratosphere balloon gondola when this picture was snapped, but no altitude marks were made. The nine-foot metal ball was merely derricked a few feet in the air and then placed on a truck to start its trip from Dayton, Ohio, to Rapid City, S. D., near where the ascent, aiming at a 14-mile height, will start in June. Lighter than aluminum, the magnesium alloy ball has tremendous strength, having passed the most severe tests.

SCOUT TROOP TO SPONSOR BARN DANCE, TACKY PARTY

A tacky party and barn dance will be given next Saturday night by the Boy Scouts of Troop 67, Sterlington, it was announced last night by Tom Wafer, scoutmaster. The party will begin at 9 p. m. at the Munce club, Sterlington, and continue until 1 a. m.

Prizes will be given to the tackiest dressed man and woman and the public is invited to attend. Music will be rendered by the American Strutters.

Proceeds of the party will go into the troop fund to assist in sending scouts to the Jamboree at Washington,

A STAMPING CORNER

By W. J. KIRBY

By W. J. Kirby

Sponsored by the Twin City Stamp Club a stamp exhibition will be held at the new Recreation room on DeSiard street Thursday evening May 23. Every collector in the city whether a member of the club or not is asked to enter a frame or frames in the exhibition.

The exhibit will open at 7:30 Friday evening and frames on exhibit will be placed in the show window at Woolworth's Friday morning, where they will remain several days. No prizes will be awarded in the exhibition, it being held solely to arouse philatelic interest in this section.

It has been definitely announced that a stamp will be issued for the California-Pacific International Exhibition, which opens at San Diego on May 29. The stamp will be of the 3c denomination, and of the large rectangular formation. It will picture the exhibition's Hall of Science building, together with the Bay of San Diego and Point Loma.

Persons desiring first day covers of the new stamp should send not more than 10 covers, addressed with ink or typewriter, to the postmaster at San Diego with a request that they be given first day service. Send a money order or coin to cover the stamps to be used, but do not send other stamps in payment.

Designs have been announced for Canada's new pictorial set, which will make its appearance on June 1. The 1c to 5c, inclusive, as well as the 8c, will be the regular size stamps, with a portrait of King George. Double size pictorial stamps will be: 10c Royal Canadian Mounted Police constable on horse; 13c, group of delegates attending Confederation convention, 1864; 20c, Niagara Falls; 50c, legislative building at Victoria, B. C.; $1.00, view of Champlain monument. A new 6c airmail stamp will picture Daedalus in flight, while a 20c special delivery stamp has an allegorical figure of Progress.

Japan has issued a beautiful set of four stamps to commemmorate the visit of the Emperor of Manchuokuo to Japan. Two designs are used, the 1 1-2 sen and 6 sen both showing the battleship, "Hiei," which conveyed the emperor to Yokohama. The 3sen and 10 sen show a view of the Akasaka palace where the emperor stayed during his visit to Nippon.

Not to be outdone by the Emperor's host, Manchoukuo also issued a set of four values. The 1 1-2fen and 6fen depict Fujiyama, the sacred mountain of Japan. The 3fen and 10fen picture a pair of soaring phoenixes, symbolizing an eternal exchange of courtesies between the two emperors. Both sets bear idographs explaining the event they commemmorate.

HAVE YOU Read The WANT-ADS To-day

Must this great work lag for want of your support?

Here is a vital question that confronts every man and woman of the Twin Cities. The answer "yes" or "no" determines to a great extent whether or not we shall progress in the future as we have in the past. You and you and you as individuals will give these answers . . . but, before you do, we suggest that you review the past accomplishments of your Chamber of Commerce . . . learn what it means to you as an individual and to the community at large. The Chamber of Commerce stands on its merit. If it does not fill an economic need in the community, there is no need for it. You are the judge . . . note the accomplishments of the past year listed below . . . in all fairness you'll agree that this work must go on . . . and you must give your support.

Renovizing Campaign
The renovizing campaign, which you saw advertised in the columns of this newspaper, was sponsored by your Chamber of Commerce and it resulted in the spending of $289,735.58 for renovizing and remodeling of homes in the Twin Cities. It brought employment to carpenters, bricklayers, plumbers, painters, paperhangers, electricians and benefited the building business in general.

"Dern Dinner" (Secretary of War)
Secretary of War Dern's visit to Monroe and the dinner given him was sponsored by your Chamber of Commerce and had great influence in securing the $3,500,000 levee program that is already under way.

Federal Agencies
The government always calls on your Chamber of Commerce to start and supervise the beginning of all federal agencies at least until a permanent organization is effected and your Chamber of Commerce then continues to lend its support to these agencies at all times.

Highways
In the past year your Chamber of Commerce has purchased and helped to make arrangements for the right of way for the road south of Monroe. This opened a new trade territory which directly benefited the merchants and indirectly benefits everyone.

Large Industries
For the past two months your Chamber of Commerce has been putting forth every effort to secure a large industrial plant. Many reports have been furnished and they are now in the hands of engineers.

Retail Merchants Division
This division of your Chamber of Commerce has taken the lead in sponsoring several successful trade days which have brought thousands of people who spent many thousands of dollars in Monroe. The advertising solicitations committee of this division by its censorship saves the merchants of Monroe and you (because after all you pay the bills) many thousands of dollars.

Trade Area
Your Chamber of Commerce makes frequent visits to smaller communities as a good will jesture. Next week your Chamber of Commerce will visit Delhi to help them organize a regional Chamber of Commerce.

Conventions
Your Chamber of Commerce has been instrumental in securing many conventions. Many more could be secured if finances were adequate. Remember conventions bring guests to your cities that would not ordinarily come . . . they pay hotel bills . . . they buy food . . . and spend money in numerous ways which benefits you as an individual and the community as a whole.

Highway Information
Your Chamber of Commerce furnishes information and routes for extended trips to the people of the Twin Cities and their guests. This service is gratis. One trip of 7,200 miles has just been completed and another of 4,700 miles.

Detail Work
Of course, as in any business there is a great amount of detail work to which some one must attend. It cannot be done by City or Parish officials and if your Chamber of Commerce does not function it will not be done at all. Besides this your Chamber of Commerce has lent its support to a number of projects and brought influence to bear which accounts for the success of these projects.

Your welfare is concerned...your business is concerned...can we go forward in this work and expand (because only the surface has been scratched) or must our present activities be curtailed?

The accident happened so unexpectedly I hardly had a chance to realize what had taken place.

"The Gorky dived crazily and I watched with horror while it went to pieces in the air. I rushed to a place where the pieces fell. They scattered over a full half mile of territory, some wedged between houses.

"One house was hit by a wing weighted down by four motors, and it tore the roof and the whole side off the building. The bodies of the victims, some of them women and children, were strewn about with the wreckage, many dismembered.

"Everybody in the vicinity set about trying to give help but they soon found not a soul was alive among the 48 people who had been in the plane.

CENSORSHIP DELAYS NEWS OF BIG CRASH

LONDON, May 18.—(AP)—Strict Soviet censorship kept the world waiting more than 10 hours before fears that the worst airplane disaster in history had occurred on the outskirts of Moscow could be confirmed.

These fears had been aroused when a brief message that the giant ship Maxim Gorky had fallen to earth after colliding with a small plane leaked out before the highly efficient Soviet censorship could be slamped down.

While newspapers of all nations were headlining this bare fact, editors frantically pressed all lines of communication in an effort to learn the number of casualties and details of the tragedy. But all telegraph and telephone communication to the Russian capital was shut down.

The Associated Press offices in London and on the continent tried to make connections with Moscow by way of Berlin telephone, but all calls were refused. The Stockholm bureau, calling via Helsingfors, was interrupted at Leningrad, where the Swedish operator said all calls to Moscow had been stopped temporarily.

The censorship was raised shortly before midnight.

Major passenger airplane disasters in recent years included:

Oct. 3, 1926—Seven died in crash of plane on shore of English channel.

Nov. 29, 1927—Six Frenchmen perished in crash in Morocco.

Nov. 4, 1928—Fourteen lost lives when plane dived into Rio De Janeiro harbor.

Nov. 15, 1928—Six killed when wings of plane folded at San Antonio.

Jan. 2, 1929—Ten killed in collision of planes near Santa Monica, Calif.

Jan. 19, 1930—Sixteen burned to death when plane caught fire near Oceanside, Calif.

March 25, 1933—Eleven occupants of house and three in plane killed when craft plunged into dwelling near Hayward, Calif.

Nov. 22, 1933—Fourteen died in fall of Russian super airliner Atkharkov.

Feb. 26, 1934—Eight killed when plane crashed into mountainside near Salt Lake City, Utah.

Dirigible crashes, however, have accounted for larger death tolls, the highest being 73 victims in the crash of the U. S. navy dirigible Akron off the New Jersey coast.

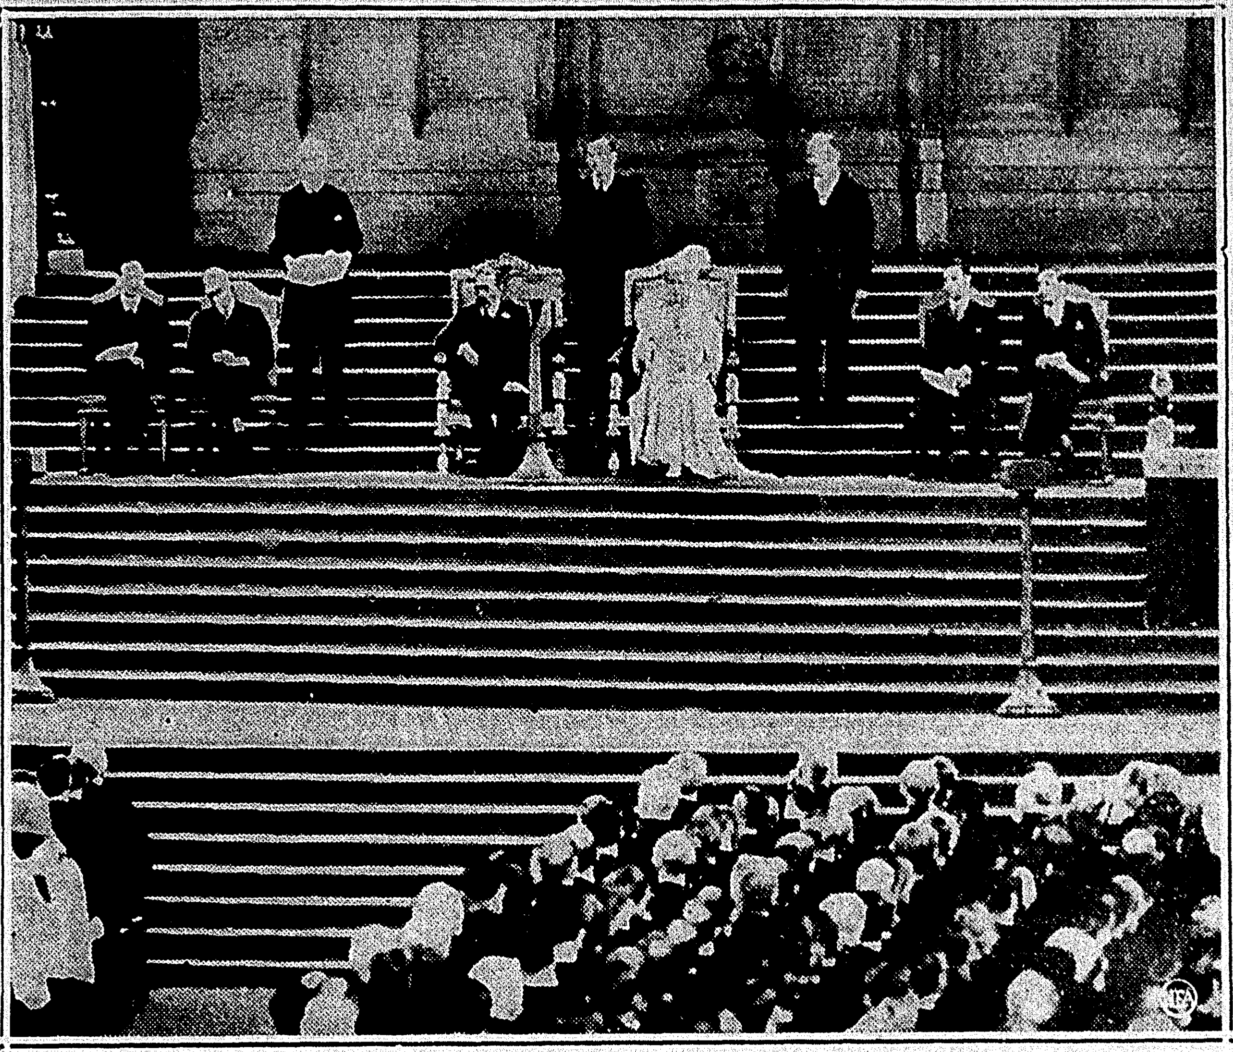
WHEN PARLIAMENT PAID KING GEORGE TRIBUTE



In the lofty Westminster hall, in London, where the light flickers through thousands of colorful panes in the stained glass windows and an impressive dignity sets the stage for every gathering, the members of parliament and house of lords assembled to honor King George V in recognition of his twenty-five-year reign. Flanked by their sons and heirs, the king and Queen Mary are shown seated on their thrones listening to the tributes of their subjects. Left to right, seated are, Duke of Gloucester, Prince of Wales, King George, Queen Mary, Duke of York and Duke of Kent.

resolution are to be sent to all congressmen and senators of the state, enlisting their support toward repeal of the clause.

Delegates listened with deep interest to the panel discussion, Saturday afternoon, led by Judge Grace Miles, national membership chairman of Independence, Kans., who described 213-A of the economy act as "specially vicious,." Women must exercise power through the ballot, she said, and emphasized that it is the duty of every man and woman citizen to investigate all office-seekers and to see that "only those who will make capable legislators are elected."

Breakfast at 8 a. m. today on Hotel Virginia roof and installation of officers are the closing features of the convention. A post convention board meeting on the "Brown Kraft" is slated later as the finale of the annual meeting.

With Dr. Wood, president, presiding, the convention was formally opened Saturday morning in the clubhouse on Jackson street. Invocation was by Miss Julia Wossman. Mayor Arnold Bernstein and Miss C. Mae Johnson gave addresses of welcome. Response was by Atlanta Duke Meadows of Ruston. Mrs. Myrtle Doughtie, convention chairman, gave the convention program. Reports were presented by state officers and Judge Miles was presented as the official representative of the national organization.

President Wood in her annual report emphasized the need of broad leadership as an essential of the day and especially amongst women who "must carry on the program of economic security." She reported official visits to all the Business and Professional Women's clubs in the state, and had traveled the past year over 10,000 miles.

She cited that the state executive board at a meeting gave approval to five features of the state program. These are the urging of each club to secure at least five new members; the circulation of the "news letter" each month to all members; the endeavor of local clubs to cooperate with other local civic clubs; securing of publicity from the governor's office of information as to women holding high office in the state; the planning of a vocational guidance clinic, and the endorsement of state committee chairmen for membership on the state executive committee.

President Wood urged that efforts be exerted toward utilizing the old state capitol as a museum and the passage of an old age pension bill by the state in order to relieve much personal distress.

Anna Judge Veters Levy, of New Orleans, led a comprehensive discussion of social and economic security under the old age pension.

A luncheon was held at 12:30 p. m. in the clubhouse garden and the afternoon session started at 1:30 p. m.

The best scrap book award was made to Baton Rouge and the banner to New Orleans for the highest mileage representation at the convention.

Acting on a resolution introduced by Mrs. Myrtle Doughtie, the convention voted to re-write the constitution, final action to be taken at the 1936 convention.

An urgent invitation to attend the Seattle national convention was extended by Mrs. M. C. Germany.

The final event of Saturday was the banquet at Lakeside Country club, with Miss Mae Read chairman. "The Business and Professional Woman as a Thinking Citizen" was discussed by President Wood. Judge Miles followed with a talk on "Eve's Highway," reviewing the progress that women have made through the ages.

Judge Grace Miles, representing the national association at the convention, has for three successive terms held the office of juvenile and probate court judge in her home city of Independence, Kans., serving from 1929 to 1935.

Judge Miles has had an interesting career. Left a widow at an early age, she was obliged to seek a livelihood which she found in a lawyer's office. Ultimately she studied law and later passed examinations for admission to the state bar. From then on she became recognized as an attorney of ability and her election to office was a natural sequence.

As a judge of the court she represented, she declared that probation matters should be handled by a well-trained social service worker.

"The very last resort should be the reform school and the effort should be made to rehabilitate the delinquent in his own home but when this is not possible, in a foster home. The county boards out delinquents in suitable homes and the money comes from the general fund," Judge Miles said. "The sum of $6,000 a year is also allowed for the care and cure of crippled children."

Judge Miles is still a young woman with an engaging personality that makes friends wherever she goes. This was her first trip to Louisiana and she stated she was charmed with the country and the people with whom she came in contact.

represent the two communities," Mr. Rogers stated in unfolding his plans for the campaign. "We want our merchants and citizens generally to realize that the chamber of commerce is just as big as they want it to be, and the more of them who are identified with it the greater results can be achieved. If there ever was a time in the history of Monroe and West Monroe when the people should get together and work for a bigger and better and more prosperous Twin Cities, that time is now. We have wonderful prospects before us, if we have energy enough to capitalize on them. So we are asking for 100 per cent cooperation from everybody, the large business organization and the small concern. All are going to benefit, if all work together and push the ball of prosperity along."

Aiding President Rogers in the campaign are the officers of the senior and junior boards of the chamber of commerce, and a special commitee. The group includes M. S. Biedenharn, vice-president senior board; A. B. Clarkson, president junior board; Tom Monk, vice-president junior board; Clarence Faulk and Sam Davis, members of the senior board. All the other members of the two boards will be active under the leadership of the appointed committee, it was announced.

At the close of the campaign a special meeting of the membership will be called to discuss a definite program of activity during the coming months.

Both men were brought to a local hospital.

ROOSEVELT VETO ALMOST CERTAIN TO BE SUSTAINED

cedented action, was held by administration leaders to have already made itself felt.

Whether Mr. Roosevelt would make his personal appeal on Monday was uncertain. House leaders said it might not be possible to complete arrangements for a joint session in time to receive him. Should there be delay the veto might not be delivered until mid-week because of a scheduled senate-house memorial service on Tuesday.

Despite the solid front of votes against them, Patman bill leaders in a conference today decided to face the showdown immediately after the chief executive delivers his message, without prolonging the issue by debate.

Some of the Patman leaders virtually conceded defeat, but warned that the inflation issue would echo into the next presidential campaign and would not go down with the Patman bill. Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, Patman chieftain in the senate, forecast the money question would be "the controlling factor" in the 1936 election.

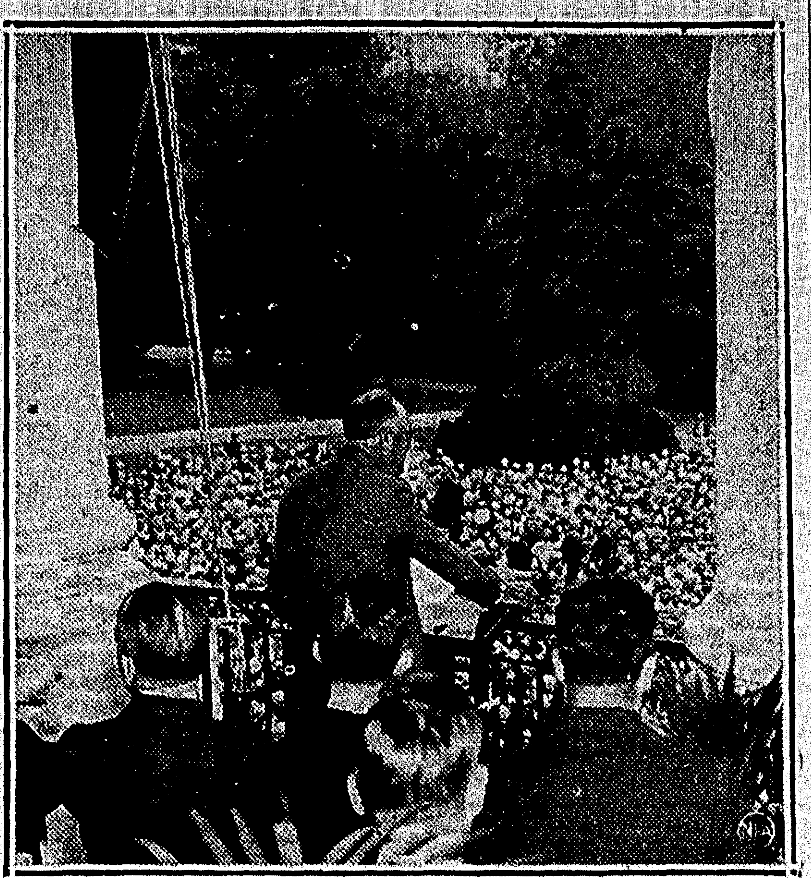
DEMOCRATIC CHIEFS SET GOAL FOR ADJOURNMENT

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP)—Democratic congressional leaders today set early July as their tentative adjournment goal, but agreed the NRA and bonus issues held the key to the vacation door.

With senate advocates of a shorter life for a close-clipped blue eagle threatening to hold out to the bitter end against the administration-favored two-year extension receiving favor in the house, legislative pilots confessed this was but one argumentative struggle that may push adjournment farther into the summer.

On top of that was a ominous warning from inflationary bonus advocates who say they will attempt to tack the Patman bill onto almost every other measure receiving consideration should congress sustain President Roosevelt's veto. This in itself would consume plenty of time.

F. R. FLAYS FOES OF AAA



Assailing "many of the high and mighty" for their "lying about the farm program," President Roosevelt is shown here as he made his fighting speech to 4,000 farmers who made the pilgrimage to Washington to assure him of their loyal support to his program and that of the AAA. Speaking from the south portico of the White House, the president declared it their duty and his to educate the country that adjustment means not only adjustment downward, but also upward.

GOMEZ ALLOWS TRIBE BUT 2 HITS, YANKS WIN 3-0

INDIANS LIMITED TO TWO SINGLES BY SOUTHPAW ACE

Gomez In Rare Form And Cleveland Is Blanked Second Straight

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP)—Lefty Gomez, the "hard luck guy" of the Yankees' pitching staff this season, finally got enough backing today to win a game after three straight defeats, but he had to turn in his best mound performance of the year to beat the Cleveland Indians 3 to 0. It was the third straight Yankee victory of the series and the second whitewashing for Cleveland.

Lefty Gomez

The triumph lifted the Yankees up two notches in the standing to second as they passed the defeated Indians and the Boston Red Sox, who also lost.

Gomez, who hasn't had more than three runs made behind him this spring, limited the Tribe to two hits—a pair of singles by Earl Averill, and struck out seven. The second blow was a scratch affair which glanced off Lou Gehrig's glove into right field.

Mel Harder, Cleveland curve ball pitcher, was touched for six hits in his seven inning stay on the hill but two of them were homers by Lou Gehrig and Bill Dickey that accounted for all the scoring. Gehrig connected for his third circuit smash of the season in the opening inning after Ben Chapman had singled. Dickey belted his third to start off the seventh frame.

The only other times the Yanks threatened were when Frank Crosetti and Red Rolfe clouted three-baggers. Crosetti's wallop followed Dickey's homer but he died on third when Harder made Gomez and Earle Combs hoist to Galatzer in left field. Rolfe opened the eighth with a triple off Lloyd Brown but the next three men were retired, Gehrig going down on strikes.

THE MARBLE TOURNEY

When the boss told us a month or so ago that we would become the marble editor until June 29, we took the job with some misgivings. We figured it would be a lot of work (and it has been), but our job has been made much lighter by the fine cooperation of the school people throughout the territory.

When we asked for supervisors for the various school tournaments, the response was almost 100 per cent. Kids under 14 throughout northeast Louisiana suddenly became marble conscious, and a great deal of the credit belongs to these school teachers and principals who so willingly pitched in and helped supervise the eliminations.

So these few lines are written in appreciation of the assistance rendered by school men and women of this section. We know that your pupils appreciate your efforts to provide amusement and an opportunity to win a week's vacation in Gulfport, and we want you to know that The World and News-Star are grateful for your help.

THE ODDS COME DOWN

The surprising showing of the Chicago White Sox has made the betting commissioners haul down their odds and quickly adjust matters. At the start of the season, they would have bet you 500 to 1 that Mr. Dykes' young men wouldn't win the American league pennant. Now you probably can get 10 to 1. A corresponding shift has been made in the odds on place and show money.

The Cincinnati Reds also gave 'em a scare for awhile. And while the adds have been cut on the Rhinelanders, you can still get a much better price than the White Sox offer.

The Tigers' victory last year was good for baseball, and the reversal of form of the White Sox and Reds has helped revive interest in the game this season. Even if they both slip back into their old habits, their showing so far has given the bugs something to talk about.

TRACK PROSPECTS

Louisiana State university's track team will lose Slats Hardin and Buddy Blair, among others, this year but if they keep some strings on Northeast Center's budding luminaries, the Tigers will have some valuable replacements for the graduates.

The small band of Indian trackmen has been something of a sensation this season. Without benefit of cinders, the squad reached a point of efficiency where they offered some real competition for the more experienced and better conditioned teams of much larger schools. The natural ability of the athletes, plus the excellent guidance of Coach Jim Malone, produced some surprising results.

Daniel Rachal, the blond speedster of the squad, is an example of what was accomplished. According to Malone, Rachal never ran in a track meet in his life until he reported this year. His final effort of the season, at the A. A. U. meet in Memphis, shows just how far he advanced during the short period. He qualified in the 100 meter dash in a preliminary heat and then ran in the final. He duplicated the feat in the 200 meter race, pushing Ivan Fuqua, Indiana's great star, to 20.8 in the first heat. To climax a busy day, Rachal ran a 48.6 lap as a member of the relay team.

Day, Guin, Jefferies, Arnold and the other members of the small squad also turned in some excellent performances. Monroe fans had an opportunity to see what has been accomplished when the Indians trimmed Mississippi college's varsity here, and it was a pleasant surprise.

So Mr. Bernie Moore would do well to keep his eye on these Northeast Center athletes. L. S. U. can use 'em, and how!

TOUCHSTONE TO MEET HARBERSON

Final For Lakeside Handicap Tourney Title Played Today

H. K. Touchstone will meet Dr. R. T. Harberson in a 36-hole match at Lakeside Country club today for the championship of the club's annual spring handicap tournament.

With both finalists "on" their game, a close match is expected. The public is invited to watch the battle, Manager Shep Girault said last night, and a good-sized gallery is expected to follow the players. The first 18 holes will be played this morning, with the second half of the battle slated for the afternoon.

Touchstone defeated Harry Frazer in a close match last Sunday to enter the finals. The winner rallied on the second nine, after Frazer had held the advantage at the turn. Dr. Harberson defeated C. W. Wallace two weeks ago in their semi-final match.

Both Touchstone and Harberson are shooting excellent golf, Manager Girault said yesterday. Harberson had a 76 Friday and with the handicap he will enjoy in his match with Touchstone, he is expected to wage a real battle for the championship.

Five flights made up the tournament originally. Touchstone won the first flight, Frazer the second, Harberson the third and Wallace the fourth. Only the winners of the first four flights participated in the championship playoffs. Prizes were given for each flight victory and a trophy will be awarded the winner of the Touchstone-Harberson match.

BARONS SELL WILLETT TO LITTLE ROCK CLUB

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 18.—(AP)—President W. A. West of the Birmingham Barons today announced the sale of Harold Willett, outfielder and infielder, to the Little Rock Travelers.

Willett will leave here with his new club tonight, He joined the Barons in 1933, just after his graduation from high school, and was a regular from the start.

Carlos Moore, righthanded pitcher, was sent to the Greenwood club of the East Dixie league on option. He can be recalled on 24 hours notice.

Craig Wood One Of Chief Threats To Capture Open

Jersey Veteran Tired Of Running Second To Other Golf Pros

(By NEA Service)

DEAL, N. J., May 18.—Craig Wood never has been afraid of competition, even when it came from his assistants. That is one of the reasons the blond belter from the Hollywood Golf club, of this seashore resort, is on the short end of quoted odds for the National Open at Oakmont Country club, Pittsburgh, June 6-8.

In succession, Craig has had as aides in tutoring members such nationally famous golfers as Paul Runyan, Clarence Clark, and Dick Metz, now all full-fledged stars and pros in their own right.

There have been weeks when Craig couldn't handle the youngsters, when he has had to be up at 6 a. m. to get in practice that would help him catch up. But Craig stuck at it, and when one left for bigger ventures, he hired another of the same caliber.

Wood is confident that he is going to step out at Oakmont next month—reports from the Pittsburgh area have made him No. 1 public enemy of golfers—and blast for all time that "runner-upper" title that has been fastened on him.

Craig believes bad breaks cost him eternal credit in the links records, not breaks in his own fine game, but miracles uncorked by rivals.

"Just look at the records," he says "Denny Shute had to score an almost miraculous 73 in a terrific gale at St. Andrews in 1933 to tie me for the British Open. He won the playoff."

"Then last year in Buffalo I had Paul Runyan in the bag time and again in the final of the P. G. A championship. But each time he pulled one out of the sack that kept him going and finally he holed a 12-footer on the 38th hole to win.

"Then just a month ago at Augusta, I had Bobby Jones' masters' tournament all won, only to have Gene Sarazen hole out the finest spoon shot ever made on the par five 15th and card a double-eagle two. He just managed to tie me, and then won the playoff.

"But the fact that I am finishing second shows that I am up there. And if I am the guy they have to beat then I am one of the favorites. They won't always be pulling rabbits out of the hat, you know."

Wood uncorked some of the straightest long driving ever beheld by modern golfers on May 13 over the testy Baltusrol twin 18-hole layouts to qualify for the Open. He had to qualify, because last year at Merion he played a ball out of the rough where a fore-caddy had marked it on the 16th hole. After holing out in a par 4, Wood noticed that the ball was not hit. Under the rules he automatically was disqualified.

Playing mashie-niblicks and mashies where others were using No. 3's and No. 2's, Wood toured the Baltusrol layouts in 71 each time, one under par each way, on a course that will be the scene of next year's Open.

Craig glories in his ability to knock the hide off the apple. It is his strength in scoring. The big fellow has gone back to using his driver, after several years of brassieing from the tee, and is amazed to learn that he is straighter with the driver than with the brassie.

The secret of his distance is not in exaggeration of swing or conscious attempts to bat the ball out of sight. It comes from a pair of brawny forearms and mighty wrists that a blacksmith might envy.

Wood believes Henry Picard, lanky Hershey, Pa., pro, and Harry Cooper are a pair that will do well at Oakmont; Picard because of his length off the tee, and Cooper because of his uncanny accuracy from tee to green.

"Cooper will be overdue at Oakmont," asserts Wood. "He had the tournament won until Tommy Armour came in and hit a great iron to the 18th green in 1927. Armour birdied that hole, the 72nd of the Open, tied Harry, and beat him in the playoff.

"I don't believe Sarazen will get going at Oakmont like he did at Augusta. And unless some of the big hitters who are bound to be well-considered keep the ball on the fairway, they can't win. No one is going to win on that course coming out of the rough."

BASTROP CCC DEFEATS OAK GROVE IN SLUGFEST

OAK GROVE, La., May 18.—(Special)—The Bastrop civilian corps defeated Oak Grove in a hard slugging battle, 20 to 6.

Although both teams did some slugging, Langston kept the hits allowed scattered and only three runs after the first through the seventh, when he retired.

Linzay and Davis hit home runs.

Ross And McLarnin Both Confident Of Winning Title Battle

By John J. Romano

Debonair, jaunty Barney Ross has no illusion about his place with the immortals of the prize ring. The Chicagoan has learned a lot about the hard knocks of life in his upward climb to the heights of pugilism. But he made his way—a long and rocky way over a period of six years—pitting his skill and the weight of his wallop against sixty-one rivals who thought they were better than he. Three of them managed to score a point decision. But where are they? Among the limbo of forgotten fighters.

Ross, a double champion who recently renounced his lightweight crown to gamble his ability against Jimmy McLarnin, feels sure he is the master of the greatest puncher the game has known in some years.

Jimmy McLarnin is a veteran of twelve years in the ring. Although Ross started six years later than the Belfast Thumper, he has had but 12 less contests. Add to this the fact that McLarnin suffered one technical knockout against none of any kind experienced by Ross, and you have a good idea of Barneys confidence that he can score over McLarnin.

First Bout A Surprise

McLarnin is not one to take a rival lightly. He has had two meetings with the lad he meets on the 28th of the month.

In the first fight Jimmy was a prohibitive favorite to outscore or stop his ambitious rival from Chicago's West Side. The courageous Ross not only astonished his most rabid admirers by outboxing the veteran McLarnin but swapped blow for blow without once breaking ground and was awarded the decision. It was a close fight all the way and made boxing a spectacle worth watching. Came the second fight. Ross did his best, but it was a wee bit less than the efforts put forth by McLarnin, with the result that the welterweight crown was returned to the Irishman.

Jimmy McLarnin is not the "Baby Face" of his flyweight and bantamweight days. Those were the days when he was a ball of fire, fighting Pancho Villa, Fidel LaBarba, Bud Taylor, and the rest. Today Jimmy has a smile for everyone he meets but it is a quiet, assuring one, coming from a more matured young man who knows what it is all about. The cold glint in his eyes assures you that he has no false notion of taking too much for granted against a rival who tested his wallop and does not fear it.

Punching Power Made Friends

McLarnin has been inactive since last September. He is a quiet living chap, with no desire to step out and partake of the round of parties to which one of his standing is invited. It's not his nature to show himself to be a "prince of good fellows." Jimmy does not go in for that sort of thing. The potency of his punch made friends for him. Otherwise he might be ostracised—if he were just a fair fighter or a grand boxer. No matter what anyone may say, a PUNCHER commands the respect of the dyed-in-the-wool fight fan. That is why Jimmy McLarnin has been so popular.

McLarnin has only observed Ross in action but once since their last meeting. It was when Jimmy sat in to see what Barney could do against Henry Woods. Ross had things pretty much his own way that night and did not extend himself. After the fight Jimmy shook hands with Ross, and on being asked later what he thought of Barney's showing replied, "He was not as fast as he showed against me."

Ross To Change Style

McLarnin was right. Ross did not have to extend himself, and when he was asked to comment on Jimmy's remark said, "McLarnin is right. I was fighting a different sort of fighter. You cannot use the same tactics against every fighter. Each fight presents a different problem. When I meet McLarnin I will pattern my style according to the tactics employed by him. Otherwise I would be floundering around and possibly be knocked out. McLarnin is not judging me on the form I showed against Woods and I know it. I have what I think can whip McLarnin and I know Jimmy feels the same about me."

Ross and McLarnin express implicit confidence in themselves. This much can be expected from a pair of thoroughbred gamecocks who have proven their worth with the padded mittens.

McLarnin is one who does not lose without a gallant effort, even though his best days are behind him. Ross is just coming into his own. It is an assured fact that he means to go on to greater efforts. He has this all before him and it is up to him to make the best of his opportunity or Jimmy McLarnin will blast him out of the pugilistic picture.

WALKER SUBDUES BRAVES FOR 4TH WIN OF SEASON

Cardinal Southpaw Holds Boston Scoreless For Eight Innings

ST. LOUIS, May 18.—(AP)—Bill Walker racked up his fourth victory of the season today by pitching the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6 to 2 decision over Babe Ruth and the Boston Braves.

The stylish left-hander now has caught up with Dizzy and Paul Dean in games won and is the world champions' leading pitcher with only one defeat. Flint Rhem, a former Cardinal, started for Boston but lasted only seven innings.

Bill had a shutout in his hands until the ninth inning. The first eight he held the Braves to two hits.

Then Joe Mowry, who finishes games for Babe Ruth in left field, lined a single over Durocher's head, Thompson hit to Collins and the Ripper took the sure play at first instead of trying for a possible forceout at second. This moved Mowry to second and he scored when Lee doubled.

Coscarart followed with a single that scored Lee, but the game ended when Walker struck out Spohrer, and Mueller, batting for Smith, flied to Terry Moore.

The Monroe Morning World is an independent newspaper. It prints the news impartially. It supports what it believes to be right. It opposes what it believes to be wrong without regard to party politics.

Opportunity Is Ours

"There is a tide in the affairs of men, if taken at the flood, leads on to fortune."

The appeal of the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe for cooperation of the two communities in carrying forward its important essential activities is a timely reminder of the unalterable law that providential help comes only to those who are first willing to exert themselves on their own behalf.

For weeks this newspaper has been emphasizing the propitious influences that are at work, giving a BRIGHTER AND BETTER ASPECT TO BUSINESS CONDITIONS THAN HAS OBTAINED IN MANY YEARS. The opportunities and the prospects that confront the people of the Twin Cities have NEVER BEEN MORE FAVORABLE than they are at the present moment. At our very hand avenues of new industry, trade and commerce are ready for the taking, provided there is sufficient community of interest and cooperation of effort to reach out and use them.

These cities have not done all they should have done to support the Chamber of Commerce in the past. Otherwise it would not be necessary to make an appeal for help at this juncture. Too, it is amply evident from what other cities, MANY OF THEM SMALLER than the Twin Cities, have done that Monroe and West Monroe have fallen far in the rear. Monroe and West Monroe last year contributed $5,000 to the Chamber of Commerce, while El Dorado, Pine Bluff, Alexandria, Vicksburg gave twice as much. Humiliating as it may be to admit it, the little town of Ruston GAVE MORE to its Chamber of Commerce last year than Monroe and West Monroe.

This newspaper, recognizing the urgency of the present situation, and accepting its share of the responsibility for advancing the interests of the communities it serves, has already pledged double the membership subscription it has been accustomed to give to the work of the Chamber of Commerce. A campaign committee will begin Monday morning to make a solicitation for members among the business interests of the two cities. There should be a generous and whole-hearted response if Monroe and West Monroe are to realize the benefits they have a right to expect from the new economic order that has already set in.

The individual citizen, be he ever so energetic and resourceful, can accomplish nothing by himself in matters that affect the weal of the whole community. It takes the entire body of the citizenry, UNITED IN PURPOSE and directed by a wholly representative group of civic leaders, to accomplish the maximum results.

No other organization serves such a purpose as the Chamber of Commerce. A great many people have the erroneous notion that a Chamber of Commerce is composed of a small group of persons, who arbitrarily decide its policies and functions. A Chamber of Commerce is—or should be—made up of the WHOLE BUSINESS and PROFESSIONAL community. Every individual who has the interests of himself and his fellow-citizens at heart should be an active member of the Chamber of Commerce. The relatively small contribution he makes in membership dues is only a part of his interest in the chamber's work. He must show his concern in the public welfare by taking an active part in whatever phase of the work he can perform to the best advantage. Only in that way can a chamber of commerce succeed, and in succeeding bring to the people at large the benefits that should accrue from an active, energetic and aggressive ORGANIZATION.

The Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe has done noteworthy things for the advancement of these communities. It played a leading part in the efforts that resulted in establishing an ADEQUATE POSTOFFICE in Monroe. It worked unceasingly in furthering an AVIATION program which eventuated in the location of the headquarters of the Atlanta-Dallas division of the transcontinental airmail service in this city, an achievement which is particularly noteworthy because of the fact that through its means an ADDITIONAL PAYROLL of $20,000 a month is being distributed in this city.

When all else failed in the plans that contemplated the construction of a new main highway southward from Monroe, the Chamber of Commerce CONTRIBUTED FUNDS to purchase rights of way which ASSURED COMPLETION of the project. The Chamber of Commerce sponsored the invitation which brought Secretary of War Dern to this city a year ago and gave to that official an inside view of the NEEDS OF FLOOD PROTECTION for this area, out of which came the government's decision to spend $3,500,000 on levee works on BOTH SIDES of the Ouachita river FRONTING THE TWIN CITIES.

These are SOME of the things the Chamber of Commerce has done. It looks forward to doing GREATER and BETTER things. But these things cannot be accomplished without ADEQUATE FINANCES. Adequate finances cannot be available without ADEQUATE MEMBERSHIP and ACTIVE POPULAR INTEREST. Plans are under way to obtain the location of an important industrial plant in this area, a manufactory that will GIVE EMPLOYMENT to hundreds and render a great service to southern industry. Other plans contemplate enlisting the government's interest in acquiring land for rehabilitating farm families in this area, similar to the project in the Ozarks where 60,000 persons are to be settled on 8,000,000 acres of land.

These are TANGIBLE and worthy objectives of the citizens of the Twin Cities. They will never be realized if they are left to individual initiative and effort. Neither will they be accomplished if the Chamber of Commerce is INDIFFERENTLY SUPPORTED and INADEQUATELY FINANCED. The Chamber of Commerce has issued a clarion call for community interest and support in a crucial and important situation.

The responsibility for meeting the issue and responding to it with all the cooperation that is traditional amongst the people of these two cities, rests squarely on the citizens of Monroe and West Monroe.

If we FAIL NOW the chance to grasp the opportunities for progress and prosperity which we have been long seeking will have GONE BEYOND RECALL. THE CHOICE IS OURS TO TAKE IT OR REJECT IT.

We rather lean to the theory of Will Rogers that Barbara Hutton pays enough taxes to entitle her to marry the duke, count or prince of her own choosing. Of course, the general opinion is that she should help some of the deserving home country boys.

In retrospect, the brief but furious chain letter fad was more helpful than otherwise. It gave thousands of persons the joy of planning ways of spending a lot of money they knew all the time they weren't going to get.

The meanest man in town is reported to have purchased at a bargain price a local bank's collection of lead quarters and half dollars and is mailing them out in his chain letters.

More Truth Than Poetry

OLD STUFF

After reading that a scientist has discovered that the rays of the sun possess actual weight.

I've been hoeing and tilling my garden
With the sun sizzling down on my spin,
I have routed out weeds
And replaced them with seeds
To sprout in this back yard of mine,
And I am not the least bit astonished
On learning that scientists state,
Which they lately have done,
That the rays of the sun
Possess actual, palpable weight.

Pray where have these savants been living
Not to know that men soon become wrecks
When they painfully toil
To grow plants in the soil
With old Sol blazing down on their necks?
Do they think they alone have discovered
That the rays that beat down overhead,
As the sun rises high
In the midsummer sky,
Seem often as heavy as lead?

I am strong for professors and physics,
And I seek to accord them their due,
But this truth they proclaim
Will bring them scant fame,
For it surely is not very new.
Every time I go out in my garden
And till there from early till late,
And putter about
Day in and day out,
I am certain that sunbeams have weight.

Proving Our Security

By BRUCE CATTON

The great ocean flight of those four dozen navy fighting planes is a magnificent spectacle and a great demonstration of the long-range striking power of the modern air force; yet it would be easy to go entirely too far in drawing lessons from the performance.

As a proof that naval warfare has been transformed by addition of a new weapon of vast potentialities, the flight is without parallel. But it does not yet prove the truth of all those excited assertions that our secure isolation is ended and that we are within easy reach of the aerial fleets of foreign powers.

A flight of this kind in mid-ocean is a great achievement, to be sure. But a great battle fleet was on duty along the route.

There was no anti-aircraft defenses to leap over, no squadrons of hostile planes to brush aside, no obligation on the four dozen pilots to return to their starting point without a stop.

In other words, this flight does not prove that a European or Asiatic power would find it simple to send an air fleet over to bomb our cities. That may be possible some day, but it certainly is not the case today.

It is rather important to keep that fact in mind. We have a preparedness group in this country which is just about as militaristic as any similar group overseas; and this group can be expected to use this navy flight as the basis for a demand that we increase our aerial armaments until they are the equal of any other such armaments on earth—on the ground that we shall not be "secure" until we do so.

A recent survey (published in the Aircraft Yearbook for 1935) shows that we rank fifth in battle planes. France, Russia, Great Britain, and Italy are ahead of us.

We have 2,060 fighting planes, of which about 1,600 are wholly up-to-date; and the Yearbook remarks that this is less than half the strength required to put us "on anything like an equal footing with other powers."

But the point to remember in all this is that we don't need to be on an equal footing with these other powers. The Atlantic and Pacific oceans have not yet shrunk to the dimensions of the Great Lakes.

Our air fleet may be outclassed by four others, but it would most certainly be able to overwhelm any hostile air fleet that could actually reach our shores.

That is all an advocate of national security can ask. We don't contemplate aggressive action overseas. We can be satisfied with security at home.

And this Pacific flight falls far short of proving that the airplane has been developed to the point where it destroys that security.

New Deal In Washington

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON. — Secretary Dan Roper's Business Advisory Council was patted on the back and warmly praised by administration folk when its big business members—just as the U. S. Chamber of Commerce was hollering its loudest called at the White House and let the world know they hadn't walked out on the New Deal.

If you ask the council, the cheering was altogether too loud.

The group had carried along some very definite criticisms of Roosevelt policies and after the conference the White House made public only its declaration for a two-year continuation of NRA, carefully neglecting to mention any of the council's recommendations with which it didn't agree.

Council members have since been busy trying to convince their comrades in industry and finance that they're not the lily-white New Dealers they were made to appear.

Roosevelt and Chairman Harry Kendall of the council have reached an agreement, after a discussion forced by irritation among council members, under which the council will make public no reports without first consulting Roosevelt and officials concerned.

Even after that it would do so only by vote of the full council of 52. Which is much better, from the administration's point of view, than the council's previous angry decision to give its recommendations to congressional committees.

Winnie The Pooh Enters

The council was distinctly annoyed by White House failure to publicize its adverse report on the administration's utility holding company measure—the Wheeler-Rayburn bill.

This report was the work of Chairman Winthrop W. Aldrich of the Chase National Bank, known in Wall Street as "Winnie the Pooh" or, sometimes, just "Winnie" for short.

Weeks previously, Mr. Aldrich had approached Chairman Sam Rayburn of the House committee framing the bill and Interstate Commerce Commissioner Walter Splawn, expert on holding companies.

He sought to serve as a "mediary" between the bill's supporters and the "power trust" holding companies, proposing substitute legislation which they thought would take the teeth from the bill.

Turned Down Flat

Rayburn and Splawn turned Aldrich down flat. Anyone from the Chase bank intervening in public utility matters is presumed here to be representing the huge Electric Bond and Share holding company, with which the bank is closely tied in.

(The Morgan interests also have an interest in Electric Bond and Share and their United Gas Improvement company is leading the Committee of Public Utility Executives in the fight against the bill.)

Bond and Share has been accused of "milking" subsidiary companies through service contracts and the bill abolishes "milking."

Undaunted, Aldrich then had himself appointed head of a sub-committee of Roper's council to consider holding company legislation. The sub-committee turned in a report identical with the offer Aldrich had made to Rayburn and Splawn. Roosevelt received the report—and merely sat on it.

The president's insistence on the holding company bill in the face of almost unanimous opposition from the big business-financial group lends color to the belief that the fundamental cleavage between the administration and that group is wider than commonly supposed.

Despite one of the most intensive propaganda campaigns in history, Wheeler's Senate interstate commerce committee has just voted 11 to 33 in secret session to report favorably the bill's most drastic features.

It looks now as if the fewer than 20 giant holding companies which control the great bulk of the nation's electric light industry were going to be eliminated. The million letters which the utilities poured into House and Senate office buildings had their effect and for a while it was predicted that the Wheeler-Rayburn bill would be modified to the point of innoculousness.

But persistent White House pressure and able, firm work by Rayburn and Wheeler have caused some of the effect to wear off.

It is known now that Roosevelt himself wrote the "death sentence" to holding companies into the bill and that it is his pet measure in Congress, as well as his chief bid for progressive support in the next election.

Meanwhile, don't be surprised if Roper's Business Advisory Council uses some strong arm methods to get its holding company recommendations out in the open before the issue is settled in congress.

NEVILLE HIGH CLASSES MAKE SATURDAY TRIP

Thirty-five members of the physics and chemistry classes of Neville high school traveled by city bus to Sterlington for an outing on Saturday.

They first stopped at Fairbanks where they visited a gas pumping station, and V. F. Sackett, superintendent of field operations of the United Gas company, "blew a well" as a thrill for the students, who then completed their trip to Sterlington and inspected the super-power plant of the Louisiana Power and Light company.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE GIRL WHO DIED 801 TIMES.—Louise Lateau was born in Bois d'Haine, Belgium, on January 29, 1850. On the first Friday of the year 1868, she began to show the symptoms of the stigmata, bleeding profusely through imaginary wounds in the hands, feet and side. On Friday, April 24, 1868, at the stroke of 12, she expired in the traditional manner of the Saviour on the Cross, and continued to die every Friday until her death on August 25, 1883. Thus she died 801 times. She would only be recalled to life by the call of ecclesiastical authority, the so-called "Rappel." March 30, 1871, was the last day on which she took any food. From then on, she abstained completely from eating or sleeping, until her death more than 12 years later. Yet she remained in good health, and was able to work in house and garden. A scientific commission appointed by the faculty of medicine of the University of Brussels found her a case of genuine stigmatic neuropathy, exhibiting all the phenomena of the passion of Christ. I have based my story on the account of Dr. Lefebvre, professor of medicine at the University of Louvain, and member of the Royal Academy of Medicine, a high scientific authority, who vouches for genuineness of the symptoms.

Lights Of New York

By Paul Harrison

NEW YORK.—Life in Manhattan really is absurdly simple. It's simple, at least, for people who are able and willing to pay for the innumerable special services that are at hand, on every hand.

If one wants to be awakened at a certain time, or reminded of engagements, or advised on how to spend one's time in New York, there are agencies which provide such services. It's possible to rent or buy anything from a trained flea to an elephant, or to hire servants or escorts, or to obtain information on anything under the sun—all by telephoning the right people and stating one's requirements.

The most diverse responsibilities are undertaken by a society woman named Mrs. Katherine Bleecker Meigs, who works for one of the telegraph companies. She started an information bureau with the idea of telling people how to eat artichokes, what to wear at a baptizing, how to phrase social correspondnece, and that sort of thing. The idea was that inquiries would be answered by collect telegrams, which would be the only cost to the inquiring individual.

In Tune With Job

But Mrs. Meigs now finds herself doing all manner of chores. Wags sending birthday messages to friends hire her, at so much per word, to call the friends and sing "Happy birthday to you. Happy birthday—" and so on. Mrs. Meigs doesn't mind. She'd sing "Rock of Ages" if anybody asked for it.

Celebrants at parties have made lots of odd requests. She has scurried around and provided, in a hurry, snails, midgets, a peacock, a stork, and three ancient horses. The latter were joke-prizes at a golf tournament. A man who was in the habit of oversleeping paid for 24 telegrams to be delivered to himself at a certain time each morning. They all read: "Get out of bed you lazy tramp." A woman called up and ordered a telegram sent to her husband every half hour during a day. It inquired: "Have you had your hair cut yet, darling?"

Mrs. Meigs doesn't provide women companions for lonesome men, or gigolos for women. But she does furnish licensed private detectives who will act as escorts. She hasn't had a single request for a chaperone, and reckons that nobody requires them any more.

Society Rivals

A somewhat similar service is maintained by a group of society women who call themselves Hostesses, Inc. The profits go to a charity. These people open and close houses, attend the details of moving, interview servants, arrange travel tickets and hotel reservations, and mostly plan and superise parties, fashion shows and benefits. They manage a lot of children's parties because there are so many wealthy parents who are so busy with their own affairs that they just haven't a minute left for the youngsters.

Surprisingly enough, there are many such services which can be obtained without any cost. A young woman named Sally Plunkett is such a professional burden-lifter. She finds houses or apartments for clients, furnishes them, opens them and hires all the servants. She'll plan and buy a complete wardrobe for a wedding or a trip around the world. She shops for women who are too lazy or busy to do their own buying, and will even look after household cleaning or repair jobs.

Haunted Speeches

For busy executives who need help on speeches and special articles, there's a phenomenally successful concern called Ghostwriters' Bureau. It will turn out anything from a three-minute address of welcome for a buttonhole makers' convention to a full-length book on ecceslastical art.

A couple of ex-newspapermen named Fred Baer and Henry Woods started the bureau three years ago with the belief that as long as there were business men there would be speeches and printed statements to be prepared. They were right. Baer and Woods do little of the reasearch now. they mostly make arrangements with clients and polish off the products turned in by lesser ghosts—many of them college professors—who work on commission. There's no arbitrary rate per word on any job; the cost depends on the amount of time and trouble involved.

ENTERTAINERS TO APPEAR

Robert Haynes Taylor, noted impersonator and the Harmony Four gospel singers of Shreveport, will appear in concert at St. James church, negro, Monday night, at 8:15 o'clock. They will also broadcast over KMLB Monday evening, prior to the concert. The impersonator is a favorite over many broadcasting stations, his specialty being the impersonating of radio stars and persons of note.

NEWS FROM GERMANY. Sister Katarina Wiedenhoefer, the first of fifty nuns and priests accused of smuggling foreign currency out of Germany, is sentenced to five years in the penitentiary, five years loss of civil rights, $56,300 fine. As nuns usually own no property of their own, the Nazi government will probably be disappointed about the $56,300, and in that case the sister's prison term will be extended by fourteen months.

LAST THURSDAY two "anti-Jewish parades led by brass bands" marched through Berlin streets, inaugurating "a fresh anti-semitic campaign" according to the Associated Press.

Marchers carried placards reading "Jews are our misfortune"; those Nazis will change their minds about that pacard if they succeed in driving out all Jews, including many of the world's greatest scientists.

Long ago, Portugal and Spain also decided that "Jews are our misfortune" and drove out the Jews. Now look at them.

They were great nations, leading the world in enterprise, and commerce. All that has vanished.

THIS COUNTRY, Great Britain and France will establish embassies, in place of plain legations, in China, and China's representative here will become a real ambassador.

Our minister to China, Nelson T. Johnson, who now gets $12,000 a year, will get $17,500 a year as ambassador.

As minister he represents only the United States government. As ambassador he represents "the president in person." That makes $5,500 a year difference.

Let us hope it will not be necessary to build a million dollar embassy anywhere in China. There is no knowing when Japan or Russia might be blowing holes in it.

We started some such nonsense in Russia, heaven only knows who suggested that and then dropped Russia. Fortunately, we are rich, although some of the 12,000,000 idle do not realize it.

MR. MORGENTHAU, secretary of the treasury, wants a central bank "to control the nation's credit," and thinks the government should own the stock of the federal reserve system.

The secretary "would like to see all credit centered in an independent agency, with its administrators removable only by impeachment."

"Controlling credit" in the United States, according to business men, wouldn't be much of a job now, as there is no credit of any consequence to control.

Perhaps government could create credit as it has created jobs, "relief" and billions of bonds. Real credit releasing the pent-up billions, before they are all tied up in bonds, and "frozen," would be welcome.

L. S. U. PILES UP 78 POINTS IN WINNING TRACK MEET

TIGER ATHLETES EASILY OUTCLASS 11 RIVAL TEAMS

Conference Events Featured By Showing Of Hardin And Neugass

By Kenneth Gregory
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

LEGION FIELD, BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 18.—(AP)—Louisiana State university's gallant band of athletes climaxed a spectacular season with further laurels this afternoon, thoroughly outclassing 11 southeastern conference schools to triumph by a one-sided margin in the annual track and field meet.

The Tigers from Baton Rouge, scoring in every event in which a contestant was entered and registering seven first places, collected a total of 78 points, exactly double those made by Alabama, which finished second.

Slats Hardin

Two records were broken and another equalled during the two-day meet, featured by the sterling performances of Glenn (Slats) Hardin of Louisiana State, who chalked up two first places, and Herman Neugass of Tulane, who duplicated the feat.

Neugass, a slender curly-haired youngster, cracked the 220-yard dash record during a qualifying trial, sprinting the distance in 20.9 seconds and wiping out the old mark of 21 seconds made by Sterling Dupree of Auburn in 1934. In qualifying for the finals of the 100-yard dash, the Green Wave speedster equalled the southeastern record of 9.6 seconds held by Perrin Walker of Georgia Tech.

The other record was shattered by Ted O'Neil of Louisiana State, who ran away from the field in the 880-yard run, finishing in 1 minute, 55.4 seconds, to clip two-tenths of a second off the conference mark made by Lehman of L. S. U. in 1934.

Hardin, one of the country's outstanding hurdlers and holder of the world 400-meter record, just missed equalling his southeastern record of 23.3 seconds in winning the 220-yard low hurdles finals in 23.4 seconds a short while before he left the field in his wake in the 400-yard dash, negotiating the distance in 47.2 seconds, four-tenths of a second slower than his present conference record.

It was a perfect afternoon and the track was lightning fast. Many expected Hardin and Neugass to establish new records in their chief events, but neither showed the hoped-for speed, although emerging victorious.

Neugass won Tulane's only first places, triumphing in the 100-yard dash in 9.8 seconds and barely nosing out Harry Anderson of Tennessee by a foot in a final spurt and leading the field past the finish line in the 220-yard dash in 21.7 seconds, as compared to his record-breaking 20.9 qualifying time.

Louisiana State's first places, aside from the victories of Hardin in the hurdles and the 440 and O'Neil's triumph in the 880, came in the javelin throw and broad jump, both of which were won by Nathan (Buddy) Blair, in the high jump, won by Kent, and in the two-mile run, won by Sanders.

Scores of other teams were as follows: Georgia, 21 1-2; Auburn, 20 1-2; Tulane, 15; Tennessee and Mississippi State, 14; Kentucky, 10; Georgia Tech, 8; Florida 5, Vanderbilt and Sewanee failed to score and Mississippi was not entered.

The University of Alabama collected three first places and three seconds. Hamp Lyons won the shot put with a toss of 46 feet, 3 inches; Kermit Riegels triumphed in the pole vault by clearing the bar at 13 feet, 1-2 inch, and the Crimson Tide ran away with the mile relay in 3 minutes, 23.1 seconds.

Don Hutson, Alabama's all-American football end competing on the track this season for the first time, closed fast in the 220-yard dash and was barely beaten by Neugass, less than a couple of steps separating them at the finish line. Edwards of Alabama was a close second to Spec Towns of Georgia in the 120-yard high hurdles, and Sheridan tied with McKenzie of Auburn for second place in the pole vault.

Georgia's squad annexed two firsts, Maurice Green winning the discus throw with a heave of 144 feet, 5 1-8 inches and Towns easily winning the 120-yard high hurdles. Harry Harmon finished second in the discus and high jump.

Davis of Mississippi State won the mile run under wraps in the good time of 4 minutes, 5 seconds, with Godbold of Louisiana State second. Carl Pihl, Auburn's captain who won this event last year, came in third.

In the javelin throw, Blair qualified yesterday with a toss of 195 feet, 2 3-4 inches. This mark was not bettered in the finals and first place went to the slender Louisiana State competitor. Stevens gave the Tigers additional points by finishing second with 191 feet, 11 1-2 inches. Later Blair added another first place in the broad jump, leaping a distance of 23 feet, 4 1-4 inches, considerably short of the conference record of 35 feet, 6 3-4 inches, made by Ed Hamm of Georgia Tech in 1928.

Alabama's relay team composed of Fischer, Kitchens, Doughty and Godfrey had little trouble winning this event and was clocked in 3 minutes, 23.1 seconds. Louisiana State, deciding at the last minute not to compete in the relay, holds the present conference mark of 3 minutes, 21.8 seconds. The decision of L. S. U. not to run its team in the relay came because of the fact that Hardin, O'Neil and Roberts had used up most of their energy in other events.

The University of Tennessee freshman relay team easily conquered Louisiana State's first-year quartet in the mile race to emerge victorious in the first annual meet for the conference frosh teams.

Where'll Track World Find Torrance's Successor? Louisiana Thinks It Knows

By Quincy Ewing

BATON ROUGE, La., May 18.—(AP)—Who's going to succeed Baby Jack Torrance as world shot put record-setter?

Almost any track fan would be inclined to elevate the eyebrow at the mere suggestion that anybody would be needed to succeed Torrance—the fellow who in the last two years has upped the world 16-pound shot record by something like four feet, to the staggering mark of 57 feet 1 inch—in an event whose record had been improved by only two feet in 25 years previous to his arrival on the scene.

But track followers in these parts think a successorship to Torrance not only possible, but that Jack's alma mater, Louisiana State university, harbors the outstanding candidate for the job in 254-pound Ben Friend, a freshman.

Better As Freshman

He's still developing, and at that is heaving the iron ball much farther right now than Jack did as a freshman, and Louisiana State's coaches believe he'll eventually come close to the champion's performances.

There's not so much difference between some of their important physical measurements, despite Torrance's greater maturity.

"Big Jack," who weighs 303 pounds, has a slightly shorter hand than Friend, measuring from heel to tip of the longest finger 8 5-16 inches to Ben's 8 3-4 inches. Jack's hand is slightly larger around than Ben's.

If He Improves—

Jack's shoulders are only an inch wider, but the differences are greater in other anatomical sections.

Torrance as a freshman pushed the shot only 40 feet in competition and 43 feet in practice, while Friend has done 47 feet in competition and 50 feet in practice.

In other words, Torrance increased his range a total of 17 feet in three years, hanging up a world's record of 57 feet 1 inch in 1934.

If Friend should do the same, adding 17 feet to his freshman minimum of 47, he'd turn in a mark that no fan dreamed was possible.

EVANGELINE LEAGUE

(By Associated Press)

Jeanerette of the Evangeline Baseball league extended its winning streak to eight yesterday by winning the first game of a doubleheader from Abbeville, 4 to 2, but dropped into the losing column by taking a 9 to 3 trouncing in the second contest.

Alexandria, in second position, defeated Opelousas 3 to 2, Lake Charles pounded out a 14 to 7 win over Rayne and Lafayette defeated New Iberia 3 to 2.

MONROE MEETS ENGINEERS FOR SECOND PLACE

Fairbanks Plays At Brown Paper Mill, Ruston Goes To Swartz

A battle for second place in the Ouachita Valley league will be fought when the Monroe Merchants and Sterling Engineers tie up on the Engineers' diamond this afternoon at 3:15 o'clock. Both the Merchants and the Engineers have won four games and lost three and are tied up for second place honors in the league standing.

While the Merchants and Engineers are trying to polish off each other, the Brown Paper mill aggregation, top-notch team of the loop, will be playing host to the fourth place Fairbanks club, and the tail-end Ruston club will be at Swartz.

The rejuvenated Monroe club, under the managership of Charlie Bruscato and Bob Avinger, player, does not expect to be stopped by the Sterlington nine this afternoon and plans to camp on the Brownies' trail until they have been overhauled.

The Brownies, however, still have a comfortable lead, although they received their first scare of the season Wednesday when the Swartz Carbon Blackers held them to a 1-to-1 tie in ten innings. In view of that "chiller," the Paper Makers are expected to handle the Fairbanks aggregation carefully this afternoon, while the invaders, gaining confidence after the showing the Carbon Blackers made against the leaders, hope to do what Swartz almost did.

The Monroe club is in good shape for today's battle, Manager Charlie Bruscato announced last night. The local batting order will be as follows: Bono, left field; N. Bruscato, shortstop; McClain, center field; Avinger, catcher; Trammell, second base; Myde or Fuqua, first base; Schoals or Young, third base; James, right field, and Demaron, pitcher.

U. S. BEATS MEXICO IN DOUBLES MATCH

MEXICO, D. F., May 18.—(AP)—Donald Budge and Gene Mako, youthful California doubles combination, slashed and drove their way to a straight-set victory over Alphonso Unda and Jose Llano today to qualify the United States Davis Cup tennis team for the interzone finals at Wimbledon later this summer.

The victory, gained by a 6-0, 6-2, 6-3 score, was the United States' third in succession over Mexico and clinched the American zone final series for the invaders.

Budge and Bryan Grant of Atlanta both had hung up straight set triumphs in the opening singles matches yesterday to get the United States squad away to a commanding lead. The final two singles matches will be played tomorrow although they can have no real bearing on the result.

Tomorrow's matches will send Grant against Daniel Hernandez and Budge against Esteban Reyes.

MAJOR LEAGUE BATTING MARKS TAKE BIG DROP

Walker Tops American Loop And Vaughan Heads National List

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP)—Tumbling averages of the leading major league batsmen during the past week left Floyd (Arky) Vaughan of Pittsburgh holding the National league lead today only because his rivals suffered almost as much as he did from the hit drouth and a newcomer, Gerald Walker, of Detroit, heading the American league list.

Walker, who missed a lot of the early action, wasn't listed as a "regular" a week ago but he swung into action at a good pace and built his average up to .433 after Friday's games. Meanwhile Jimmie Foxx of the Athletics, former pace setter in the junior circuit, made only two hits in nine times up and dropped off 21 points to .328 and thrid place, his teammate, Bob Johnson, held onto second at .391 as he held his loss to one point.

Vaughan suffered the biggest loss of any of the leaders, dropping from .455 to .398 with eight hits in 31 trips to the plate. He maintained a big lead in the senior league, however, as his leading rivals took drops of 20 to 31 points. Pepper Martin of the Cardinals, registering one of the few gains among the leaders, took second place at .354, moving up from seventh. He gained 14 points with 12 hits in 32 times at bat.

Records of the first ten regulars in each major league follows:

By Harry Grayson
(NEA Service Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, May 18.—When Jesse Terrill Hill ankled into the St. Petersburg training camp of the New York Yankees this spring, he put this tag on himself:

"If I fail to make good this season, I'm through trying. I've been knocking around for five years, and if I'm not ready now I never will be. I'm finished with minor league baseball. There is no future in it."

To date, there is no reason why the 175-pound Hill should pack his bags and return to the Corona, Calif., high school, where he is the general athletic coach. Frankly, however, the principal reason for this is that the Yankees are acutely shy of outfielding talent.

Hill, playing left field, is hitting only .254. Going over the averages, that may turn out to be a respectable mark unless the powers that be decide to put a shot of jackrabbit in the ball again. Hill is lightning fast, has a fine arm, but is weak on ground balls.

Whether he clicks or flops as a major leaguer, Jesse Terrill Hill always will live among college men. He is one of America's outstanding all-round athletes.

With the Yankee's Newark farm last season, Hill played the entire schedule. He hit .349, being first with 205 hits, and one shy of tying for the stolen base championship with 24.

All-Round Athlete

Hill was a senior at the University of Southern California when Bill Essick, Pacific coast scout of the Yankees, picked him up.

Hill had played fullback for remarkable Southern California football teams for two seasons before Essick saw him. He had starred on the track team, among other things, winning an I. C. 4-A. running broad jump, with a mark of 23 feet 5 1-8 inches.

When Essick got wise to Hill he believed that the young man was a football and track luminary who suddenly had taken to baseball. This is why Hill is known as Bill Essick's synthetic ball player.

As a matter of fact, Hill played third base for the Corona town team three or four years before he entered the University of Southern California. The reason he did not play baseball for the Los Angeles institution was that he was in there on its peculiar football and track scholarship and did not go out for baseball until he had exhausted his eligibility in football and track.

The University of Southern California baseball coach stationed Hill at third base when he finally got hold of him in his senior year.

The reason that Jesse Terrill Hill now is an outfielder with the Yankees is that he broke all the windows in the vicinity of short right field at Bovard field, Los Angeles, trying to throw out runners as a third baseman.

If he makes good as a major leaguer, it will be strictly because he is a grade A competitive athlete. He was not endowed with too much latent baseball instinct. He is a football player and track man at heart.

Track Training Aids Chances

As a member of the Yankees this season he has value far beyond that of an ordinary recruit. At least two Yankees, Ben Chapman and Frank Crosetti, have come to learn the value of track as applied to baseball. Hill has been their post-graduate professor along this line.

Hill was cut out to be a college athletic coach and has priceless background in having been taught by two of the finest coaches in the history of athletics—Howard Jones, in football, and Dean B. Cromwell, in track.

Hill was born at Yates, Mo., Jan. 20, 1907. He weighs 175 pounds and stands 5 feet 10 inches. He bats and throws right-handed.

His biggest asset as an outfielder is that he can run a country mile to get a fly ball.

Hill is a strong, silent man. Recently 15 hard-boiled New York baseball writers interviewed him in a body. When they had finished they put their heads together and were forced to come to the conclusion that they knew no more about Hill than when they started.

Jesse Terrill Hill is just a football and track man trying to get along in baseball. Everybody who knows him hopes that he makes good.

isfied with a jury verdict of conviction.

The defense attorneys, led off by A. D. Flowers, scouted the idea of murder, charged that the state had made no case and argued that the fact that Sheppard and Miller were seen near the building the night of the fire had failed to show any conspiracy.

The defense asked for outright acquittal and said that members of the Hamilton family did not believe the charge.

"My friendship with him tells me if Dr. Hamilton could speak he would ask you not to convict his boy," G. T. McSwain, of the defense, declared.

At another juncture in the arguments S. R. Holstein, who said he had served many years on the bench, declared that he had "never seen a case where the evidence produced by the state was as flimsy as in this case."

But on the other hand Dr. Mouser charged that "the fire was a sudden fire and I contend the building was set fire. I contend that when that fire hit Dr. Hamilton he was not sleeping the sleep of a normal man. He was dead. We have proof that Dr. Hamilton did not die from natural causes. We have proof that these three young men conspired to kill him.'"

Attorney C. W. Flowers argued that the state had not made out a case and told the jury that no conspiracy had been proved and that "you can't convict these boys merely because Miller and Sheppard were seen downtown that night."

The defense rested its case today with the introduction of character witnesses after Judge Wiley R. Jones, presiding, had ruled out "conspiracy" testimony yesterday in part because "no conspiracy had been shown."

RED RIVER STAGE DUE TO HIT PEAK

City, Texas, to Springbank, Ark., during the next few days."

The forecast for Shreveport cannot be made until more detailed reports are received on the river rise tomorrow morning.

With a radius of ten miles of Colfax, 25,000 acres of land is under water. Three-fourths of this land is in cultivation. At the point where Bayou Darrow and Rigolet bayou come together at Red river, a section one-quarter to the mile wide and 10 miles long is flooded. The Alexandria pavement is under two to six inches of water for about 100 feet south of Colfax.

The main levee on Nantache bayou at Shell Point, built two years ago, will hold two feet more water without damage, according to R. E. McKnight, levee board official. It protects Aloha and the negro section of Colfax. There is a railroad fill between the negro and white sections of Colfax which affords additional protection to the remainder of the town. At present water is 20 feet up the side of this new levee. The crest of the present rise reached Colfax this afternoon.

ALABAMA NEWSPAPER IS SOLD AND RESOLD

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 18.—(AP)—Victor H. Hanson, Birmingham publisher, today purchased for $200,000 the controlling stock of the Montgomery Advertiser, one of the south's oldest dailies, and immediately sold it to R. F. Hudson, minority stockholder, who has published the paper since the death of Frank P. Glass.

Hudson said he would issue a formal statement within the next few days as to his future plans for the Advertiser.

Hanson completed negotiations for the purchase after Charles E. Marsh, Texas publisher, had withdrawn from the sale because of an adverse ruling by the Montgomery circuit court.

200 feet both wing motors failed, witnesses said, and Knowles slipped it past a group of tents occupied by a Selfridge field ground crew before it struck the ground and nosed over.

A flight of 21 army planes had come here to participate in the dedication of Bishop airport. Officers immediately called into service their own ambulances and trucks and rushed the injured five miles to a hospital.

Knowles was buried beneath the wreckage and was dead when workers reached him. The plane broke in two pieces as it struck, spilling the passengers out onto the ground. Mrs. Rushlow died soon after she was brought to the hospital and the boy died an hour later.

The army fliers who witnessed the crash said Knowles apparently made a desperate effort to land his plane and still clear the tents in which he knew the soldiers were quartered. He landed the plane in the only clear space in the area, barely grazing one tent as he came down.

Everything you want in a modern motor car

When you talk to the man who owns and drives the car, you're pretty sure to get an opinion you can bank on. We asked a recent purchaser of a Ford V-8 how he liked it.

"It has everything," he said. "Everything I've ever wanted in a motor car."

Nothing spectacular about that—no loud shouting. But it sums up the whole story of the Ford V-8 and the reason it is setting the pace for 1935. That has been the Ford idea always—to give people a well-balanced, all-around car. No one feature is stressed at the expense of others.

Of course the V-8 engine stood out from the beginning. The idea of putting into a low-priced car an engine which had always been associated with the most expensive makes was new and revolutionary. But it was not an experiment. We knew it would prove to be economical as well as smooth and powerful—because we had tested it.

In this 1935 Ford we have tried to bring the entire car up to the modern performance of the V-8 engine. We have aimed for beauty and balance and comfort—as well as usefulness and economy. You probably know some people who are driving this car. We would like to have you ask them how they like it.

KELLY AND STECHER HEADLINE DOUBLE MAIN EVENT

BEARDED MATMAN ALSO FEATURED ON STADIUM CARD

House Of David Entry To Meet Swede Holmberg, Ex-Grid Star

A double main event program, featuring Ernest Kelly and Joe Stecher in a scientific match and presenting a bewhiskered husky and a former football star in the other, has been booked for the weekly wrestling show at Roosevelt stadium next Wednesday night, Promoter Charlie Bruscato announced yesterday. Bruscato said he believes Wednesday's card will be the most spectacular ever presented at the stadium.

The bearded performer is Leo, of the House of David, and he weighs 240 pounds. The former football star is Oscar "Swede" Holmberg, who was an outstanding player at Fordham university during the golden regime of the late Major Frank Cananaugh.

Leo and Holmberg are newcomers here, and it will be the policy of the stadium in the future to provide new faces as often as possible, Promoter Bruscato said. Leo is said to be quite tough and his best hold is a right to the chin. He wears his beard and hair long as is common among members of the House of David. Holmberg won many wrestling honors during his college career. Following his graduation from Fordham, where he received a degree in chemical engineering, Holmberg found he could make more money in the mat game, and he's been at it since 1930.

The return match between Kelly and Stecher, however, is expected to overshadow the other affair, no matter how spectacular the first bout may be. The two have met here twice before, with Kelly taking the decision the second time after they had wrestled to a draw the previous week. The second match, however, wasn't a fair test for Stecher, because he was injured in the third fall just as he appeared to have the Tennessee lad on the run.

Stecher returned here last week and defeated Nick Elitch for the right to meet the popular Kelly. Wednesday night there will be a $25 bonus for the winner, according to Bruscato, and with the added incentive, the two youngsters should put out. Bruscato also announced that the stadium title will be at stake.

Both Kelly and Stecher are strictly scientific performers. According to Bruscato, Stecher has advised him that he'll be more cautious when he meets Kelly again. Joe was hurt when he went hurtling through the ropes as Kelly ducked a flying tackle, but the Nebraskan declares he won't make the same mistake twice.

Kelly is confident of beating the long-legged Stecher again, Bruscato said. Although it was an accident that cost Joe the decision two weeks ago, Kelly refuses to admit that Stecher had any the better of it while they were in there.

In view of the fact that it's a double main event program, each match will have a two-hour time limit. Both bouts will be best two out of three falls.

Bruscato said last night that a capable referee will be imported to handle the big show.

Blanton And Whitehead Will Join Elite Group If They Win 20 Games This Year

Pitchers' Records, 19
JOHN WHITEHEAD
CY BLANTON
AP

By John Stahr
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP)—Two freshman 20-game-winning pitchers in one season—one in each league?

That seems, indeed, to be the bright prospect that has turned the attention of both big leagues squarely on two rookie pitchers this season—Darrell Elijah "Cy" Blanton of the Pittsburgh Pirates and John Whitehead of the rampant Chicago White Sox.

Before the season was a full month old each of these sensations had produced five victories to top their respective leagues in games won and had satisfied all who came to see them pitch that they had the stuff to justify their low-hit performances.

Now 20-game-winning pitchers are rare enough in this day and age of large mound staffs and liberal use of relief hurlers, and fellows who can come up with 20 victories in their first season under the big top are naturally still scarcer. That's why talk of Blanton and Whitehead dominates all the baseball gabfests nowadays.

Alex Was All-Time High

Speculation as to just how far these newcomers will carry their first-season spurts more or less automatically puts them into some very fast company indeed, for if they crash the 20-games lists they can rank, in that respect at least, with such as Grover Cleveland Alexander, Wesley Cheek Ferrell and Vernon Lefty Gomez.

Alex, of course, with his 28 victories and 13 defeats for the Phillies when he broke in 'way back in 1911, has the all-time record for first-year victories. He turned out to be quite a pitcher, as his National league record of 696 games hurled in the 20 years from 1911 through 1930—several of them 30-games-won years—and his five years' leadership in earned run averages would indicate.

The two latter-day luminaries, Ferrell and Gomez, each carded 21 wins his first full year in the big show, Ferrell with Cleveland in 1929, Gomez with the Yanks two years later. Ferrell—whose current comeback may well be a sensation—went on from there to record four straight years of better than 20 victories each, while Gomez turned in 24 wins in '32, 16 in '33 and 26 last year, when he led American league hurlers in practically everything.

'Twas Dean, Curtis in '34

Last season the National league had the two prize pitching finds in Paul Dean and Curt Davis, each of whom copped 19 victories, though Davis, hurling for the lowly Phils, had to surmount more difficulties than the younger Dean, flinging for the champion Cards. Dizzy Dean broke in with 18 for the Cards his first season, 1931.

Just letting the figures speak for themselves on the first four weeks work of the Messrs. Blanton and Whitehead.

CHISOX SHADE RED SOX

BOSTON, May 18.—(AP)—After being held scoreless and to three hits in eight innings, the league-leading Chicago White Sox put on a five-hit rally in the ninth to nose out the Boston Red Sox 3-2 today.

ONLY 44 ENTERED IN WOMEN'S GOLF MEET

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 18.—(AP)—Keen competition in the Women's Southern Golf tournament was indicated today as a field of some 30 entrants shot practice rounds at the Louisville Country club.

Among those entered were Miss Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., a slight favorite here to take the title; Miss Betty Jameson of Dallas, the 1934 winner; Miss Dorothy Kirby, Atlanta; Miss Lily Harper, Portsmouth, Va.; Mrs. Mark McGarry, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Mrs. David Gaut, Memphis; Miss Margaret Smith, Birmingham; Miss Virginia Williams, Houston; Mrs. Willard Johnson, Louisville; Mrs. J. T. Priddy, Richmond, Va.; Mrs. R. E. Winger, Fort Worth; Miss Elizabeth Steele, Lexington, Ky.; Mrs. Dan Chandler, former Texas champion and this year's Mexico titlist; and Miss Edna Saenger, Louisiana.

When the entries were supposed to have closed at noon today, only 44 including 13 local women had been recorded. As a result, the tournament committee extended the deadline to 9 o'clock Monday morning. A special effort is to be made to increase the field.

Medal play in the qualifying round will be held Monday.

LIST OF SCHOOL MARBLE CHAMPS GROWS RAPIDLY

Four More Titleholders Announced; Others Near Completion

The list of marble champions is growing by leaps and bounds. Today we give you the names of four new school champions, and you can bet they'll all be in there battling for the grand prize because they all defeated some sharpshooting rivals.

The new champs are Mayer Armstrong, of Waterproof school; Joe Kalil, of Georgia Tucker school of Monroe; Rex Harmon, of Crosley school of West Monroe, and C. M. (Mack) Ritchie, Jr., of Mound school.

And it won't be long now until details are given out concerning the parish and district tournaments. This information will be forwarded to the various supervisors of games at the schools, and also will be published in The World and News-Star.

In reporting Mayer Armstrong's victory at Waterproof, Miss Zula Pullin, who had charge of the tourney there, wrote:

"I have enjoyed the tournament so very much, as well as did the contestants. The final game was a 'knock-out.'"

And Miss Mabel Bittick, who supervised the Crosley school tourney, had this to say:

"In the last report we told you four boys refused to give up their chances for the marble championship. We have a little different news this time—three game little fighters really waged a battle and offered some interesting competition to our winner. The boys who played in the finals were Alton Cooper, Rex Harmon, Willie Lee Sandifer and Loy Scarborough. Rex and Loy came out as winners in their respective matches. Then a real battle ensued. After three rapid games, the score of two to one gave Rex the crown."

And, according to Miss Ruth M. Thomas, who had charge of the games at Mound, the competition was equally as spirited.

"The games were great and keen interest and excellent shooting was shown," Miss Thomas wrote.

From Fort Necessity comes word that the elimination games are about completed. J. L. Parker, who is supervising the tourney there, reports lots of interest down there. Important games have been won by Sam Gilmore, Jesse Frank Peoples and Tom Pollard.

"The heat of competition is intense," Mr. Parker wrote, "and much enthusiasm has been shown in the marble tournament. Eliminaiton games are well under way. We are going to send our marble champion to the national tournament."

And there's a real challenge, fellows. Mr. Parker says the Ft. Necessity champion is going to win that trip to Gulfport, and then hop an airplane for Ocean City, New Jersey, where the national championship will be held. Do you think he will?

The plan for the next elimination games is as follows:

Each parish comprises a district. The cities of Monroe and West Monroe will be divided into four districts, and that includes the Louisiana Baptist Children's home and the Louisiana Training institute. Schools in Ouachita parish but outside Monroe and West Monroe also comprise a district. If any one school has entered in a parish, that school's champion also is the parish titleholder. However, that's the case in only rare instances. Each parish or district champion will be awarded a gold medal and will be eligible to enter the grand finals to be held in Monroe about the middle of June.

Dates and other information concerning these next games will be published soon. All the school champions haven't been selected, and supervisors are urged to have their final school games played before the end of this week.

NORTH CAROLINA SQUAD WINS SOUTHERN CROWN

DUKE STADIUM, Durham, N. C., May 18.—(AP)—For the third straight year a well-balanced team from the University of North Carolina today won the Southern conference track and field championships here.

The team scores were: North Carolina 58, Maryland 49 3-4, Duke 47 1-2, Clemson 20 1-4, Virginia 19 1-4, Washington and Lee 10, Virginia Military institute 8, Virgina Polytechnic institute 6 3-4, N. C. State 5 and South Carolina 1-2.

Grover Everett, versatile trackster of Virginia, was individual high scorer and ran a beautiful race in the 220-yard low hurdles to set a new record at 23.6 seconds, one-tenth better than the mark set in 1933 by Brownlee of Duke.

SPRING FLOWER

Starting out with the same batting punch that kept him at the top of the American league heap for several weeks in early 1934, Rollie Hemsley, above, St. Louis Browns' catcher, is leading the junior loop's batters a merry chase. The playboy of the Browns is battling Jimmy Foxx for swatting honors.

Bobby Jones Says

Beyond the suggestion that the swing should be felt to originate in the center of the body, in order to get the backward windup started, little has been said about the handling of the body-weight during the backswing. Now we must see how the location of the player's center of gravity can affect his ability to direct his full power against the ball.

5-19

Fault in Foot, Leg Action

This is a fault whose root can immediately be located in the feet and legs. Giving the culprit the benefit of any doubt, we will assume that he began from a good address position, with his weight apportioned equally to his two feet, the toes of both turned slightly outward, and the ball located about opposite the instep of the left foot. But when he began to move, he bent his left knee stright out over the toe of his left foot, and so moved almost all of his weight over upon that leg.

Now, if we look at the correct method, we can visualize the movements which have brought this player to a good hitting position at the top. Notice where the pressure is upon the feet—on the inside of the toe of the left foot, and on the outside of the heel of the right. Since the weight was already back of the ball at the start there has been no shift either way. But in turning the right knee has moved back and the leg has been twisted slightly toward the right, while the left knee has described an arc of a circle in the same direction. This player is back of the ball and can move into his stroke instead of being faced with the horrible necessity of falling away from it as he attempts to hit it.

Body Turn Adds Power

From the starting position described, the proper wind-up consists only of a simple turn, the upper body rotating, about an inclined axis entending from the top of the head to the base of the spine. The left shoulder has not been raised or lowered except by so much as may have been caused by the inclination of the axis upon which it turned.

An ample backward wind-up by bringing into service the great muscles of the hips and back, immeasurably increases power without calling forth a noticeably greater effort. It is because he neglects to draw upon or mis-uses this source that the average golfer finds his drives yards behind the expert even when he hits them squarely.

By HARRY GRAYSON

Many great athletes are rank imitators.

Babe Ruth copied Joe Jackson's pigeontoed stance with both toes dug in, and became the most powerful batter in the history of baseball. The Bam saw how Jackson got his body in back of his tremendous smashes, and practiced until he could do the same thing.

Al Simmons mimicked Ty Cobb even to the swagger. Although he swats from the opposite side, the Milwaukee Pole has all of the Georgia Peach's mannerisms at the plate.

Jake Powell, Washington's new centerfielder, aped Goose Goslin even to the waddle and the arms spread out like wings in chasing flies. They'd be hard to tell apart if Powell didn't hit from the right side of the plate. Powell looks likes Goslin even to the prominent nose, and has done such a good job of impersonating the Jersey Jarrer that they call him Little Goose.

Jack Hayes worked on Lou Fonseca's wrist action with such fine results that he is hitting .368 this spring.

Johnny Whitehead, the new White Sox star, never saw Walter Johnson or Cleveland Alexander work, but patterned himself after their velvety style of which he had read.

Jack Dillon Put Ideas Into Dempsey's Head

Jack Dempsey first got the notion that he could win the heavyweight championship while serving as a sparring partner for Jack Dillon in Brooklyn. Dillon was preparing for the slaughter of Frank Moran.

Dillon obtained the jump on the bigger fellows and held it with the speed of his punches. Dempsey got it into his head that he could do the same thing, and realized that he would have the advantage of being a larger man than the Hoosier Bearcat.

Joe Gans was Benny Leonard's model. Leonard was the only fighter that I ever saw clip his socks at the tops of his shoes. I asked the famous lightweight about it.

"I read that Gans did that," explained Leonard. "He said that in going 45 rounds, as he did, water and perspiration in the top of the socks made the feet slightly heavier."

Along about the year of the exposition, a Greek youngster paid 50 cents for a gallery seat in the San Francisco auditorium to see Stanislaus Zbyszko. The young Greek peered intently from his perch 'way up there in the shadows.

The Greek still does everything just as the elder Zbyszko did them, even to the little bow in each direction as he enters the ring. He may not be as good a wrestler as the Pole, but he is a far better actor. His mat name is Jim Londos.

Jones Copied Vardon's Overlapping Grip

Golfers watch one another as closely as football coaches.

Bobby Jones copied Harry Vardon's overlapping grip with the v's formed by the thumbs and the first fingers pointing to the shoulders. Olin Dutra patterned his rhythmic swing after that of MacDonald Smith. Lighthorse Harry Cooper drives a lot like Walter Hagen used to—with a wide stance. Johnny Goodman putts like Jones. And so on down the line.

Harry Kipke, the Michigan coach, is a keen student of Percy Haughton. The Michigan system—"a punt, pass, and a prayer"—was employed at Harvard by Haughton years ago. Like Haughton teams, Kipke's kick and wait for the breaks.

Football men stick closer to their original teachings than any other class of athletes. Products of the better coaches usually reflect the work of the men who taught them. Rockne and Warner men, in particular, stick to the way the masters did it.

After all, there are worse formulas than following in the footsteps of men who met with great success.

GIANTS BLANK REDS

CINCINNATI, May 18.—(AP)—The Giants didn't feel the loss of three regular infielders today when Fred Fitzsimmons took charge of the situation and shut out the Reds with four hits to win 4 to 0. It was the second shutout in a row for Fitz and the first suffered by Cincinnati this season, exhibitions included. The victory gave the league leaders a full game margin over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

AUDREY BROSSETT WINS MYLES PRIZE

Audrey Brossett, 211 Filhiol avenue, West Monroe, was the local winner of last week's $5 prize in the Sally Myles comic cut-out contest.

The prize was the third awarded here in the national contest. Miss Brossett won the prize for a few minutes diversion in cutting out comic characters for this newspaper and coloring them according to the contest rules.

One thousand grand prizes, with a first prize of $1,000, are some of the awards to be made in the contest.

Every person who has not yet entered the five-week contest may still do so, and be eligible for the grand prizes to be awarded at the end of the contest.

If you have not sent your comic cut-out to Sally Myles at this newspaper, watch for the Sally Myles advertisement in this newspaper Thursday to obtain the rules, or obtain a copy of the rules at your grecor's.

Color three comic cut-outs according to the rules of the contest and send them to Sally Myles, in care of this newspaper. You will then be eligible to receive the weekly prize of $5 awarded for the best comic cut-out submitted here, and you will also be eligible to win one of the 1,000 grand cash prizes.

Night Prowler Is Most Dangerous Of Criminals, Avers Supt. Tarver

Police Chief Says There Are 4 Distinct Kinds Of Burglars

If you were to awaken some morning to discover that your home had been burglarized during the dead hours of the night . . . don't worry that the same person has robbed your store . . . he hasn't!

And there will be no need to remain home all day for fear the person will return in your absence . . . he won't!

Likewise . . . if your safe contains valuables . . . there is no need for you to be apprehensive . . . the person that entered your home won't bother the safe . . . not he!

Of course there is no assurance that all four things could not happen to you . . . they can . . . but it's a dollar to a doughnut four different burglars accomplished the act . . . not just one man.

That is the observation of L. V. Tarver, superintendent of police . . . and he ought to know! . . . he has been in police work for more than 25 years . . . has dealt with every conceivable kind of crime and every conceivable kind of criminal .

There are at least four, and maybe more, distinct kinds of burglars, Chief Tarver declares . . . and after you have heard his classification it is reasonable to believe . . . even for a layman.

SUPT. TARVER

"There is the daylight burglar and prowler," Chief Tarver said in an interview Saturday . . . usually alone he prowls a neighborhood . . . he selects a prospective "break." He first ascertains that the family automobile is not in the garage. . . . He then notes that all the doors are fastened . . . that there are no children playing in the yard.

"Casually glancing around, he makes sure that no person is in sight . . . then he makes his way quickly to the back door and knocks loudly . . . no one answers . . . he knocks again . . . still no answer.

"If he can't gain entrance at the door, he goes to the most obscure side of the house and 'jimmys' a window . . . inside, he works rapidly. Things of value quickly disappear into a bag or something else provided for the purpose . . . in a few minutes he is out and gone," Chief Tarver explained.

"The second is the 'skylight' burglar . . . he specializes in business houses and usually works strictly on Saturday night . . . he 'spots' a store . . . ascertaining that it has a skylight . . . around 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning, when streets are practically deserted, he makes his way up a fire escape or by other means to the roof . . . gaining the skylight, the breaks the glass, fixes his rope to a chimney or other safe object and slips down into the building . . . he works calmly and takes his time.

"When his bag is filled . . . he picks his opportunity . . . calmly turns the front or back door knob (most stores have Yale locks) . . . and makes his way to safety . . . while the policeman on the beat is at the next corner . . . none the wiser.

"This burglar is very elusive . . . the policeman on the beat is easily fooled because, even though he has flashed his light into the store and tried the knob . . . he has no way of knowing that someone is on the inside," the chief continued.

"The third specimen, according to Mr. Tarver, is the safe breaker.

"This criminal is very wise in the ways of crime. After gaining entrance to the store, he takes an ordinary hammer and with a quick, hard blow, breaks the dial leading to the combination.

"There is a small shaft leading from the dial to the combination . . . by using a punch, smaller in circumference than the shaft, the safe breaker can drive the shaft loose from the combination . . . with his hands, he opens the door and pillages the safe.

Daylight Bank Holdup Considered Easiest Type Of Robbery

"If you hear of a safe breaker using nitro-glycerine successfully on a job . . . put him down as a safe blower of the old school . . . the successful criminal in this class today never resorts to the explosive . . . should a job of this nature be unsuccessful . . . nine times out of ten he is an amateur," the chief reasoned.

"The fourth of the series is the midnight house-breaker . . . and he's the most dangerous of the quartet . . . he waits until after his victims are lost in slumber . . . well-armed and well-equipped for the job, he steals into the house and goes to work.

"If he is disturbed or discovered . . . he'll shoot first and ask questions later . . . and he'll try to shoot straight! . . . his life depends upon the draw!

"Unless you have a dead drop on him . . . lie quietly in bed if you value your life and the safety of your family . . . this man is dangerous . . . make no mistake about that," the chief warns.

It is Chief Tarver's observation that neither of these four criminals "poaches" on the other's preserve . . . they specialize in their own line and let the other fellows alone . . . they are "types" and remain that way.

The superintendent of police declares that the easiest robbery is the daylight bank holdup . . . this job is usually accomplished by a more or less cowardly class of criminal . . . one who resorts to morphine or some other drug before pulling the "hiest." "There is nothing spectacular about the bank robber," Mr. Tarver pointed out. "He walks in, accompanied, ordinarily, by several other gangsters, on an unsuspecting group, pulls his sub-machine gun and scoops up the cash in sight . . . before an alarm can be given, he is miles away speeding for some hideout," he said.

There is nothing cunning or smart about a burglar, the chief believes. He explains his viewpoint this way: "If the burglar were smart, he wouldn't be a burglar. Take Louisiana for instance. . . . The maximum penalty for burglary is 14 years in the penitentiary. . . . The average home robbery nets from $50 to $100 . . . in other words, the burglar is weighing 14 years of his life in prison against a mere trifle of $50 to $100."

From his experience in criminal work, Chief Tarver has come to believe that very few burglars who go undetected in their first few jobs, ever reform . . . the game looks so easy and the pickings so inducing that they go on and on . . . sooner or later they are caught . . . after they serve their time they return to the game for quick money . . . and so the merry-go-round continues.

Chief Tarver gives the law enforcement forces of the country much praise for their work against this particular type of criminal and says that although he believes there will always be crime committed . . . the systems under which the law enforcement forces are working will hold it down to a minimum . . . improving their work as time goes on.

A permit for construction of another filling station on Louisville avenue, in anticipation of the completion of construction of the new state highway bridge across the Ouachita river here, has been issued by G. W. Jones, city building inspector.

The station will be constructed by the Magnolia Petroleum corporation, at the intersection of Louisville avenue and North Third street. It will cost about $4,000.

A permit for the construction of a five-room frame residence in the Peyton Parker addition, immediately east of the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university, has been issued to Jack Fouchea. The residence will cost about $2,200, and the construction will be in charge of Ross Zuberbier, contractor.

Dr. C. U. Johnson was issued a permit to repair his residence, 1213 St. John street, at a cost of about $200.

Cotton

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, May 18.—(AP)—Cotton futures today fluctuated narrowly in quite dealings and at the close of the two hour trading period prices were five to seven points net lower for the day.

A firm tone developed at the opening with initial bids 1 to 6 points above the previous close, but the steadiness failed to hold and prices began to ease.

Evening up of commitments for over the week-end and other routine business made up the major part of the trading.

At the finish July sold at 12.00, October at 11.80, December at 11.85 and January at 11.89.

Most traders remained on the sidelines and outside interest was almost totally lacking for the time being.

The weather forecast for the period ending May 25 predicted local showers in the east, central and western gulf states and parts of the western plains area.

Temperatures were expected to hold around seasonal averages.

Exports today were 13,214 bales.

New York

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP)—Cotton turned easier today under week-end liquidation and foreign selling. Fluctuations, however, were somewhat irregular owing to a further readjustment of differences between old and new crop positions. The market closed steady at a net decline of 4 to 10 points with July selling off from 12.19 to 11.99 and closing at 12.04.

Cotton futures closed steady, 4-10 lower.

New York Stocks

By Victor Eubank
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP)—The stock market continued to back-track today as infation-minded traders, less sure of their position, took further profits. A few specialties bucked the trend, but the close was rather heavy. Transfers approximated 600,000 shares.

The fact that the activity shrunk perceptibly on the decline was helpful to bullish prognosticators. Also, it was pointed out, a technical correction was overdue. Hopes were expressed that the so-called "healthy" reaction would put the list in shape to resume its upward journey.

Grains sagged largely on news of better crop weather. Cotton was hesitant. Bonds were highly irregular, as were leading foreign exchanges. Sterling again pushed higher as continental funds moved toward London.

Shares of Columbia Pictures exhibited renewed strength with a gain of some 4 points. The company's nine-months earnings statement showed profits of $8.62 a share, about double those of the previous similar period. Peoples Drug declared an extra dividende of 25 cents, although the stock failed to do anything. Howe Sound got up a point, but the other metals were listless. National Distillers and other alcohols were steady. Aside from Public Service of New Jersey, which was off 1, the utilities were narrow.

Losses of around 1 to 2 points were suffered by U. S. Steel, Case, Chrysler, General Motors, American Agricultural Chemical, American Sugar Refining, International Business Machines, Air Reduction, Allied Chemical, Corn Products, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Union Pacific, Delaware & Hudson and Santa Fe.

The motors ignored estimates of automobile production for the week ending today which placed the total at 89,760 units compared with 87,395 last week and 75,550 in the corresponding week last year. Another increase next week was expected.

The financial sector appeared to be no longer in doubt that the administration was not talking with a wink regarding its disapproval of the Patman fiat money bonus bill. Announcement that the president would personally read his veto message to a joint session of congress brought conjectures as to whether he might take this occasion to say something on currency stabilization and further clarify the government's monetary program.

In line with this idea, brokers were interested in recent visits of British economists and financial analysts. Most of these, it was said, are bullish on American stocks and believe that if and when dollar stabilization is brought about a huge volume of European funds will seek outlet in the market here.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, May 18.—(AP)—Material fresh downturns of prices distinguished the wheat market today. Opening 5-8 to 1 cent lower, July 90 1-2 to 5-8, wheat soon dropped further. Corn started unchanged to 5-8 off, July 81 1-4 to 3-8, and then receded all around.

Wheat closed nervous, 1-4 to 5-8 under yesterday's finish, July 90 7-8 to 91 1-8; corn 1-8 to 1-4 up, July 82 1-4 to 3-8; oats unchanged to 1-8 off, and provisons unchanged to 7 cents higher.

INDUSTRIAL--REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES

SALE OF SAVINGS CONTRACTS JUMPS

Living Protection Provided In Convenient Plan By Syndicate

By J. R. Matthews
(State Manager, Investors Syndicate)

During the first quarter of 1935 the sale of living protection contracts by the Investors Syndicate and Investors Syndicate, Ltd., of Canada, showed an increase of 110% over the same period in 1934. This is just a continuation of the substantial increase shown in 1934, which was the largest shown in 1934, which was the largest year in the entire forty-year history of the Investors Syndicate.

The need for living protection is possibly no greater today than it was twenty or fifty years ago, but people are more conscious of that need, and they are doing something about it, as our business shows. The depression has taught us things, one of which is, that our responsibility to ourselves, and to those dependent upon us is just as great if we live as it is if we die. We know today that we cannot "trust to the future" for money to educate our children, to protect our business, and to take care of us when we can no longer work and earn. We must build up cash reserves against these certain demands of the future by systematically setting aside part of our income as it is received. This is living protection.

During the lean years of the panic of 1893, the founders of Investors Syndicate observed everywhere the vital need for a new form of protection of his living requirements. As a result, the Investors Syndicate was established in 1894, with resources of $2,600.00. It has had a consistent growing an increase in resources every year, regardless of economic conditions. December 31, 1929, these resources had grown to more than $32,000,000.00. During the past five depression years they have increased from $32,000,000.00 to more than $62,000,000.00. During the same depression period the Investors Syndicate has paid its clients more than $40,000,000.00 cash. These thousands of checks, ranging in most cases from one thousand to ten thousand dollars, went into thousands of homes throughout the United States, at a most opportune time. A substantial amount of the money represented by these maturity checks is compound interest. For example, if all payments are made as originally planned, a check for $5,000.00 represents approximately $36,000.00 principal, the remaining $1,400.00 being compound interest. After the incentive is established, the habit of saving is early formed. We advocate saving a few cents of every dollar earned—not as a passing episode—but as a mode of living. Most of the people to whom we deliver maturity checks admit freely that: "I doubt if I would have had a dollar of this money if I had not started this systematic program."

The Investors Syndicate is well and conservatively managed and is the oldest and largest company of its kind in the world. Its Louisiana office is in the Canal Bank building.

A dry onion powder, for use in catsup, canned soups, and similar products, is now on the market.

Two Modern Engineering Triumphs

● Triumphs of modern engineering genius are the new $35,000,000 Golden Gate Bridge at San Francisco and the 1935 Aeroform Nash sedan shown in the foreground. When completed in 1937, the bridge will have a span of 4200 feet, longest in the world. The towers rise 750 feet, the distance between the bridge deck and the water level will be 250 feet, providing ample clearance for even the super-liners now under construction by France and England. The X-bracing principle employed in the bridge towers is also a feature used to give Nash chassis frames their strength and rigidity.

SAFETY PIN CUTS DOWN ACCIDENTS

Method Used As Symbol In Pontiac's Campaign For Safety

A safety pin has been put to work to reduce the number of motor car accidents: to save the lives of innocent children: to conserve property damage and personal injuries.

"The ordinary safety pin is something that is familiar to all of us," said Dewey Harbour, service manager of Union Motors, Inc.

"It was chosen as the symbol of the Pontiac Safety Drive for that very reason.

"Somehow, when we read of motor car accidents in the papers, particularly on Monday mornings when the week-end returns are in, the realities seldom come home to us. People killed and injured—wrecks piled up—pedestrians hurt—and yet, since we ourselves are safe and secure, we tend to fall into the belief that we'll always be so.

"Well, the figures don't bear out this assumption. Every year the number of accidents and deaths has been increasing, and this in spite of the greater safety that has been built into the cars themselves.

"In order to cooperate with the Safety movement which is attaining such large proportions, we have been inspecting free, for all motorists, the five safety factors which are all-important in keeping a car safe to drive.

"The Safety Pin, which we use as a symbol, should be a reminder to the car owner to drive safely in a car that's safe to drive. We all see enough safety pins to have that reminder driven home often. If we're reminded often enough, we'll acquire the habit of safe driving, and thus do our share toward reducing the terrible annual accident toll."

ALUMNI HOLD MEETING

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., May 18.—(Special)—At the final meeting of the Carroll Parishes unit of the Louisiana State Normal College Alumni association until next fall, Ashley W. Warlick, superintendent of schools of East Carroll parish, delivered the principal address. He spoke on "The Value of the Teacher." Miss Mary Mims, rural sociologist of Louisiana State university, and Miss Alexina Disch, West Carroll parish home demonstration agent, also contributed to the program with talks. The gathering took place in the auditorium of Lake Providence high school.

OLDSMOBILE SETS ALL-TIME RECORD

April Is Best Month In History For Deliveries Of New Cars

Setting a new all time record for retail sales in a single month, Oldsmobile delivered more cars in April than during the first four months of 1934.

The new peak was 18,554 cars, a substantially greater number than was delivered in the previous all time record month, March of this year. In the final ten days of the month Oldsmobile dealers delivered 6,272 units, an increase of 87 per cent over the corresponding period of 1934.

Retail deliveries for the year reached 51,916 on April 30, almost three times as many as in the first four months of last year.

A new all time production peak also was reached in April, when 20,311 cars were built and shipped in this single month. This was greater by 11 per cent than the previous monthly production record established in March.

From January 1 to April 30, 64,557 Oldsmobile have been produced as compared with 26,309 a year ago.

"The demand for Oldsmobiles continues to grow as the motoring public finds out what we mean by 'the car that has everything,'" said D. E. Ralston, Oldsmobile vice president and general sales manager, in announcing the April figures.

"In the final 10 days of April Oldsmobile dealers sold within three cars of the total number shipped to them.

"Dealers report that the beauty of the car and the presence of knee-action wheels super-hydraulic brakes, ride stabilizer, and other comfort and safety features, continue to be large factors in Oldsmobile's 1935 success."

To meet the new problem arising because of dust storms in the southwest, Oldsmobile is equipping all cars shipped into the areas most affected with oil bath air cleaners.

During the terrific sand storms which have swept the southwest states, dirt has been drawn into the lubricating systems of cars not so protected with the result that bearing surfaces are subjected to excessive wear by the abrasive formed of dirt and oil. This has meant decreased bearing life, decreased gasoline consumption and increased oil usage.

Examination of oil used less than a week, in cars not protected by special air cleaners, shows it to be filled with fine particles of dust.

With the new Oldsmobile oil bath air cleaner this condition is overcome. A sump in the lower portion of the cleaner is filler with oil. As air is drawn into the cleaner it passes on through the regular cleaning channel and into the carburetor.

Frequent cleaning of the sump, particularly during and after storms, is advised by Oldsmobile engineers. In this way the air is thoroughly cleaned and danger of motor trouble in even the worst of sand storms is minimized.

A study of samples of oil taken from cars which have operated in the southwest during the storms without special protection showed large quantities of dirt in every ounce of oil.

Through the use of a special oil bath air cleaner such as employed by Oldsmobile, all this dirt would have been trapped in the sump, Oldsmobile engineers pointed out.

NEW MODELS OF NASH CAR SHOWN

Companion Car To Present Nash Line To Be Introduced Here

Declared by those who have seen it, to incorporate more significant engineering improvements than any manufacturer has introduced on a new model in the past several years, the newest product of the Nash Motors company, a companion car to the present Nash line, will make its first public appearance here in the salesroom of Benoit-Nash company during the week of May 18.

Except for the fact it will carry the Nash name and will be priced between the company's present LaFayette and Nash Advanced Six, no definite information concerning the new car has been released to the public as yet by Nash officials. It is understood, however, that in developing this new automobile Nash engineers have achieved signal success with a principle that may revolutionize future automotive design.

It is reliably reported the engine used in the car is the most compact yet employed to power a production automobile and that it presents a radically different appearance from engines in current use. Other information establishes amazing operating economy as a result of the new design, while the expense of engine maintenance has been reduced considerably due to the greater accessibility of motor parts.

According to H. H. Benoit, who saw it at a recent meeting held in Kenosha, Monroe motorists are certain to receive the new Nash with enthusiasm.

WEAVER-ROGERS

TALLULAH, La., May 18.—(Special)—H. S. Weaver and Miss Connie Rogers, both of Tallulah, were married at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Sevier Thursday, the Rev. L. A. Materne, pastor of the Tallulah Baptist church, performing the ceremony. The couple left immediately for a trip to New Orleans. Mr. Weaver is manager of the Tallulah club and his bride operates a beauty parlor here. They will reside in Tallulah.

EYES ON THE GOVERNORSHIP

It's a fair prospect indeed that faces Alabama voters, with Gail Patrick, above, Alabama's pride in the movies, planning to make the race for governor. First she'll flash this dazzling smile in the courts, planning to become a lawyer, for which she already has studied, after she's finished in the films. Then—in 1952, when she'll be 40, the legal age—she's going after the governor's job and she wants everyone to know she's serious in her ambition.

Good, Clean Milk Essential In Tuberculosis Prevention

A little babe lies trustingly in its crib . . . its mother leaning by its side . . . mother love fairly beaming from her eyes as her hands smooth away the wrinkles in the little garments.

But amidst this heart-touching scene hovers an invisible menace, ready to pluck away the little life and bow the mother's head in never-forgotten sorrow.

The lurking horror is the possibility of that dreaded disease, tuberculosis.

But the intelligent mother is prepared for it . . . study has enlightened her how to combat successfully this snatcher of baby souls.

Statistics compiled by Dr. W. L. Bendel, an authority on the subject, show that during the first two years of a child's life, 10 per cent of all children in civilized countries become infected with the tubercle bacillus.

There are three chief sources from which come the tubercle bacilli . . . raw sputum . . . greatest source between 3 and 10 years of age . . . the inhalation of bacilli-laden dust or droplets . . . the ingestion of milk from tuberculous cows . . . especially in infancy.

Measures demanded to prevent or minimize there are . . . a determined effort to destroy raw sputum . . . clean, and where possible, pasteurized milk from tuberculin-tested cows should be insisted upon.

The infant is practically never born tubercular . . . nor need it, if infected later, become the prey of tuberculosis. The old belief that certain children come into the world with the seeds of tuberculosis is a fairy-tale. The baby, even of a tubercular mother, is not born tubercular.

The practice of kissing children on the mouth is dangerous and should be forbidden even to the parents—Strangers should not be permitted to fondle a child, particularly if they are recognized as not being strong. The most important prophylactic measure in childhood is to keep the child away from any one who is known to have tuberculosis.

And so, with this carefully gathered information mothers need not fear the grinning jaws of the dreaded plague . . . Feed your child plenty of clean, pure milk . . . use your share of sunshine and fresh air . . . mother nature will do the rest.

DE BASTROP LAND SUIT IS DECIDED

her son-in-law, Walter M. Black, to the land directly involved and that he, in turn, assigned the lease to the Sterlington Gas corporation and that therefore, the corporation members are trespassers.

The petition further alleged that the plaintiffs had never been in possession of the property and that the defendants only gained possession a short time before the suit was filed and had begun drilling for oil or gas.

The opinion handed down by Mr. Thompson denied that the defendant was a trespasser and held that the plaintiffs had never paid taxes on the property in the 100 years they claimed possession.

It held that the question had boiled down to the issue of whether Baron De Bastrop, under the terms of his last will and testament, bequeathed to Victoriana LeBaume an undivided one-fifth interest in the property involved.

"We must look to the will for the answer," the opinion reads in part. "The will, written in Spanish but translated into English, was dated January 16, 1826, was probated in February, 1827, in the state of Coahuila and the town of Sautillo and it was recognized and ordered registered in Louisiana in April, 1834.

"It described in full and in detail, the property owned by the baron and where it was situated. It reads as follows:

"'In Louisiana, in the county of Huachita, 100,000 arpents of land, which are a part of the old concession of 12 leagues given me by the Spanish government. I have disposed of the remainder. Likewise, I possess in the same county, a ranch called "Las Colar.'

"'Moreover, I declare to have some debts receivable and some debts payable. I hereby order the former collected and the latter, after all of my property is put at sale, paid. The remainder shall be given to my children, after subdividing one-fifth of it which it is my will to be bequest to Dona Victoriana LeBaume, daughter of Don Jose LeBaume, a resident of Bexar, as a just payment for the services which her father has rendered.'"

The opinion held that since only the two properties in Ouachita parish were mentioned in the will and that it is extremely doubtful that anything more than one-fifth of the proceeds were collected from the debts receivable, and the sale of the two properties are mentioned specifically in the will, the property involved in the suit could not be owned by the defendants.

The opinion ruled that since the plaintiffs have failed to establish any title whatever in themselves, their suit must be dismissed at their cost.

The case was brilliantly fought on both sides. Attorneys for the plaintiffs were: Sholars and Gunby; Todd and Todd and Tobin Hodge. Defense attorneys were: McHenry, Montgomery, Lamkin and Lamkin.

Because of the huge amount of gas discovered on the property, the land became immensely valuable and because of the unusual aspects of the case it has attracted wide attention throughout northeast Louisiana.

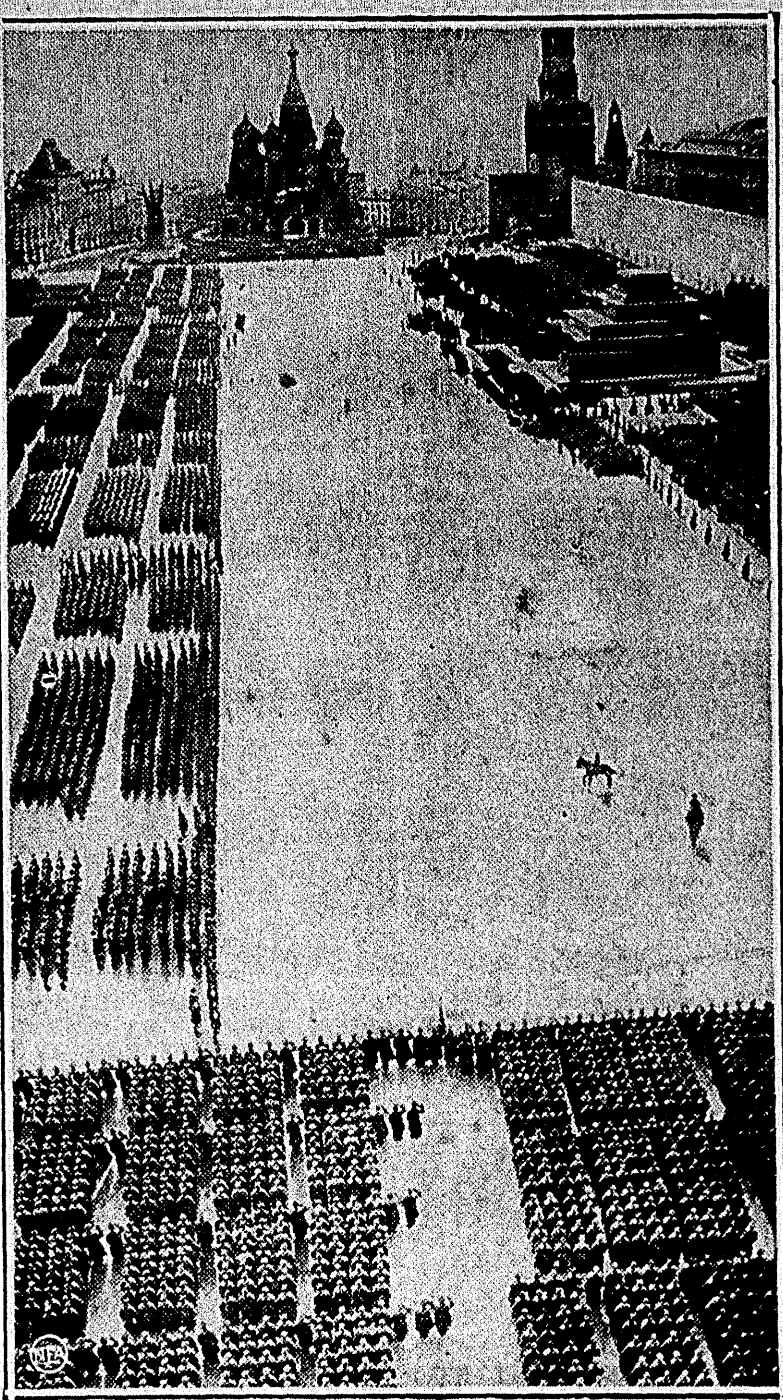
RUSSIA—RED AND READY



While 700 warplanes roared overhead and 300 tanks rumbled an ominous refrain, the military leaders of Soviet Russia paraded 40,000 soldiers through Red square in Moscow in a demonstration of might calculated to be a warning to possible foes. Here is an impressive view of the formidable military array.

ACTOR DIVORCED FROM BARONESS

But Ian Keith And Former Wife Continue To Remain Friends

CHICAGO, May 18.—(AP)—Baroness Fern Andra was granted a divorce today fro Lan Keith, stage and screen actor, but neither let the separation stand in the way of friendship.

Baroness Andra charged Keith, whose real name is Keith McCauley Ross, with cruelty. She testified that their married life was a series of temperamental outbursts, during several of which Keith struck her.

Keith, appearing here in the play "Mary of Scotland," did not contest the suit and the decree was entered by default.

Last night the baroness and Keith were together at a gay supper party in a night club.

She did not ask alimony, informing the court she had accepted an out of court settlement of $25,000.

Clubs for railroad workers are being organized in Russia.

MORE AND MORE, THESE DAYS, your cancelled check takes the place of a receipted bill as evidence of payment. But sometimes a cancelled check is lost or mislaid just when you need it most to prove a disputed item.
In such cases the new "Recordak" Service of the Ouachita National Bank may save you considerable annoyance and perhaps an actual loss.
Each check passing through our hands for payment is now photographed on a moving picture film. This permanent picture-record of your check is always available to you.
Should you wish to see any particular check, its photograph is thrown on a screen for your inspection, or if you desires a reproduction of the check to submit as evidence, this will be furnished at the cost of making the print.
The Ouachita National Bank is the first bank to install this protection for depositors—and the only bank in the state outside of New Orleans using this protection. This service began April 1st, 1935.

TECH GRADUATION PLANS ARE MADE

First Event Will Be Baccalaureate Sermon Next Sunday

RUSTON, La., May 18.—(Special)—Detailed arrangements for the 38th annual commencement activities at Louisiana Tech have been completed.

The first event on the program will be the baccalaureate sermon to be preached in the main auditorium at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, May 26, by Dr. L. R. Christie, pastor of the First Baptist church of Tallahassee, Fla.

At 6:30 p.m. Sunday, May 26, the annual vesper service will be conducted on the campus in front of the library building. This service will consist largely of music by the Tech glee clubs and orchestra, with a scripture reading by John L. Williams, a Tech student of El Dorado, Ark.

The faculty reception for members of the graduating class will be given on the lawn west of the home economics building at 8 p.m. Monday, May 27.

Activities on commencement day, Tuesday, May 28, will begin at 8 a.m., with the annual breakfast tendered the senior class by President and Mrs. G. W. Bond. This will be held on the lawn in front of the president's house.

The commencement exercises will be held Tuesday, at 10 a.m., in the main auditorium, with J. E. Keeny, former president of Tech, delivering the address.

The alumni-senior luncheon will be held on the lawn west of the science building at noon Tuesday. The alumni business meeting will be held in the auditorium at 2 p.m. Tuesday.

St. Joseph

The Presbyterian auxiliary met with Miss Ethel Keiber. A Bible lesson took place when all business was concluded. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served. The members present were Mrs. Molly D. Bonney, Mrs. Bessie Yarborough, Mrs. Curry MacPherson, Mrs. Louis Murdock, Mrs. Christopher Haddon, Mrs. Philip Watson and Mrs. Ida Jones.

Mr. Curry MacPherson, Jr., entertained at a picnic luncheon on Tensas river recently. The guests were the Joseph M. Davidson High school teachers, the senior class and some others. Swimming, boat rides on the river and an informal dance were enjoyed. A picnic lunch was served at the hunting lodge at noon.

Besides the host, Mr. MacPherson, his mother, Mrs. Curry MacPherson, his grandmother, Mrs. Ida Jones the guests included Mr and Mrs. Jack Crigler, Miss Myrtis King, Miss Mabel Skinner and Miss Olivia Scott, Misses Laura Dell Causey, Jackie Crigler, Rena Clay Carpenter, Mildred Harris, Lola Kate Clarke, Martha and Mary Baragona and Messrs. Frank MacPherson, Cecil Coor, William Clarke, Edward Berry, Hampton Smith, Leon Carpenter, Peter Schauf and Jimmie Smith.

The Wesley auxiliary met with Mrs. L. C. Roberts at her plantation home, Marydale. The meeting was opened with a devotional and minutes from the last meeting were read. The Bible study book, "Jesus Among Men," was read and the Bible lesson took place. Mrs. Holliman Cook closed the meeting with a prayer and a benediction. A social hour followed during which ice cream and cake was served. Members attending the meeting included Mrs. Samuel Yourtee, Mrs. Holliman Cook, Mrs. H. L. Biggs, Mrs. Bert Berry, Mrs. Fred Smith, Mrs. Jessie Smith, Mrs. Georgia Lyons, Mrs. Williamson, Mrs. William Spruell, Mrs. Claude Kirkpatrick and Mrs. Magruder Adams.

Mr. Carneal Goldman, Jr., Mr. Harry Goldman, Jr., Mr. Mitchell Butts, Mr. Earnest Price and Mr. Steve Harmon, members of the senior class of the Waterproof high school, entertained at a dance at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carneal Goldman, near Waterproof. During the evening, refreshments were served.

The guests were: Misses Fay Louise Rhodes, Jean Marron, Dorothy Marron, Lila Lanius, Lucille Hopkins, Frances Louise Fulton, Martha Long and Hazel Hopson, and Messrs. Paul Welch, Barker Higgins, Magruder Adams, J. B. Miller, J. B. Shelton, Alman Marron, B. S. Gibson, Robert Fife, Eustace Fulton, L. T. Collins, Jr., and Beverly Batterton.

From St. Joseph the guests included Misses Maurine Jackson, Vera Skinner, Louise Stubbs, Edna Neal Ryther, Lola Kate Clarke, Irene Reardon, Elizabeth Watson, Barbara Allen and Laura Dell Causey.

The Methodist Missionary society met with Mrs. W. Wynans Drake. The meeting was opened with a talk by Mrs. German Baker, the president. A Bible lesson followed a handkerchief shower at which Mrs. John Lloyd Lee was honored, was the principal feature of the afternoon. A parcel post package, delivered by a messenger boy, contained a number of gifts and was presented to Mrs. Lee. A plate luncheon concluded the meeting.

Those present were: Mrs. Albert Gay Bondurant, Mrs. German Baker, Mrs. John Lloyd Lee, Mrs. Katie Osborne, Mrs. Henry Ohlson, Mrs. Everett Smith, Mrs. Steve Smith, Mrs. Peter Nevil, Mrs. Gasperino Bruno, Mrs. Marvin Hoon and Mrs. V. C. Rives, Mrs. Alice Post, of Memphis, Tenn., was a guest of the society for this meeting.

Miss Susan Howard and Miss Marian Post entertained at Miss Howard's apartments with a shower honoring Miss Willie Mae Jaskson, a bride of the month. Miss Jackson received many pretty and useful gifts. During the afternoon refreshments were served. There were many guests present.

The Cosmopolitan club held a social meeting at the last gathering for the year. A May party was enjoyed. Mrs. Christopher James, Mrs. Claude Earnest, Miss Willie Mae Jackson and Miss Lucille Reiber were those members forming the social committee.

Appropriate decorations were used in the clubroom and other rooms at the Farrar house, where the meeting was held. A guessing contest in which each member guessed the name of a flower was enjoyed and appropriate flower prizes were presented to the lucky contestants.

A pretty May basket was passed to each guest, who drew a prize as the basket was passed. Gifts to Mrs. John Lloyd Lee and Miss Willie Neal Jackson were presented.

The supper tables were pretty with May flowers and pastel tinted candles to which were attached pastel tinted ribbons with a corsage of sweet peas at the end. Each member received a corsage of sweet peas. A plate supper was served.

There were a great many of the club members present.

SCHOOL CENSUS WILL BE MADE

All Children Up To 18 Years Of Age Will Be Enumerated

Plans are being formulated in the office of T. O. Brown, superintendent of Ouachita parish schools, for the taking of the 1935 parish-wide census starting June 1, and to be completed by the end of the month. Similar census is ordered in each of the parishes of the state by T. H. Harris, superintendent of education, Baton Rouge.

Only teachers with certificates can be employed, according to requirements, and these will be selected by the parish superintendent in each instance.

All persons in the parish up to 18 years of age are to be enumerated. In the taking of the 1931 census, only those of school age, from six to 18 years, were listed in the census, but this census is to be a far more comprehensive one.

Superintendent Harris stated that the census is to be taken to measure the gross educational load in each parish; to reveal what part of the load is actually in school; to determine the number of children of each age and how many of each age are in school; to secure the essential facts concerning the personal history of each child and the school status of those of school age; to locate children having major physical or mental defects so that steps may be taken toward their correction; to record vital statistics which may be of value to state and local boards of health and to enforce compulsory attendance and child labor laws.

Ouachita parish, in the 1931 census, showed that 94 per cent of all educables were in school, and the parish ranked fourth in the state from this standpoint.

It is expected that 20 or more enumerators will be required to take the census here next month, according to Mrs. Chrissie Williams, supervisor of parish elementary education.

HOME DEMONSTRATION AGENT ADDRESSES CLUB

CHOUDRANT, La., May 18.—(Special)—At the regular meeting of the Choudrant Home Demonstration club at the Choudrant high school auditorium, Miss Sophie Stone, Lincoln parish home demonstration agent, spoke on "The Canning Budget for Your Family" and "Canning Problems."

In connection with her talks, Miss Stone urged members of the club to attend the Lincoln parish "Folk School" at Ruston July 16-19 and called attention to the short course for farm women at Louisiana Polytechnic institute at Ruston in June.

The club was informed that work on the canning unit for the community would start immediately.

POPPIES ARE ALL SOLD SATURDAY

Best Sale In Four Years Reported By Legion Auxiliary

Poppy day was observed in Monroe Saturday when 1,500 of the little paper flowers, emblematic of Flanders field, were disposed of before noon, and the sale was the best in four years, stated Mrs. Charles Mitchell, publicity chairman for the legion auxiliary. It was the fifteenth annual sale observed in Monroe.

Early Saturday morning, downtown streets were made lively by the presence of 50 women and a large number of Camp Fire girls and others eager to sell the poppies, which came from the United States Veterans' hospital in Alexandria. Every penny received will go to the welfare funds of the legion and auxiliary. Just how much was netted was not obtainable Saturday night.

For each poppy the auxiliary paid its maker one cent, enabling hundreds of veterans to support themselves and families through the winter and spring. Approximately ten million poppies have been made this year, meaning $100,000 in the pockets of disabled veterans.

The Modern Heat-Resisting Anti-Friction Lubricating Process

A NEW LUBRICATING DISCOVERY.—Incredible as it may seem, a revolutionary method of producing a NEW form of graphite has been discovered. This product is known as Colloidal Graphite. It is created by a patented process in an electric furnace at a temperature of 7,500 degrees F. This graphite is grit-free and so fine that particles of it can be seen by the human eye only with the aid of a powerful microscope. The particles are so small that 400 of them are required to encircle the finest drawn tungsten wire measuring .0003 of an inch in thickness. These minute elements will pass through the finest filters, even those as fine as chamois skin. This special-process Colloidal Graphite is so light that it will actually float in the air like smoke. We absolutely guarantee that it will blend, permanently, with mineral oil; will remain in suspension, and will not settle out of the oil into which it has been injected.

THE 3,000 MILE MOTOR OIL.—GRAFILM MOTOR OIL is good for at least 3,000 miles instead of the usual 500 to 1,000 miles obtained from ordinary oil. Merely add more GRAFILM to maintain the proper oil-level. Frequent oil-changes are unnecessary. You get MORE miles, power, speed, and smoothness with LESS oil, gas, friction, carbon, knocks, wear, and repairs when GRAFILM is used. GRAFILM MOTOR OIL is the highest grade, 100% Pure Paraffin-base mineral oil, into which has been injected the correct portion of pure, unctuous, Colloidal Graphite, resulting in a lubricant that most successfully meets today's high-speed motor requirements. This Colloidal Graphite is the lubricating auxiliary added to regular motor oil, and its prime function is to add maximum lubrication-efficiency to regular motor oil at minimum cost.

THE GRAFILM PROCESS OF PROTECTION.—GRAFILM is the masterpiece of all lubricating oils and the sensation of the motor world. All bearings and frictional surfaces are coated with genuine Colloidal Graphite, giving a glassy, compression-tight surface, friction-free and perfectly noiseless. The "plated" graphite film cannot be burned off by any degree of motor heat, nor can it be washed off the bearings by wet gasoline. After the metal has been impregnated with ever so thin a film, it will not attract more Graphite until the film is reduced by excessive wear, which takes a long time.

AUTHORITATIVE PROOF.—The Department of Commerce, Bureau of Mines, states: "Graphite is an excellent lubricant and retains its lubricating properties at all temperatures and under conditions that cause oil or grease to decompose or lose body. It adheres readily to metal and not only fills up pores, but also forms a protective film which cannot be squeezed out even at high bearing pressures."

GUARANTEE.—GRAFILM MOTOR OIL contains only the finest lubricating elements and is absolutely GUARANTEED to contain no acids, chemicals, or any ingredients that would cause damage to the finest mechanism. Drain your crankcase, refill with GRAFILM MOTOR OIL of the proper grade. Drive considerably farther, harder, and faster than usual. If you are not thoroughly satisfied with the added smoothness, and power of your motor, your purchase price will be refunded without question or red tape. You are the sole judge.

Valued Photograph Brings Back Memories Of City In 1909

Nearly thirty years ago a group of young Monroe men banded together and formed the Apollo club an organization of singers. They held practice sessions once each week and rendered public recitals in full evening dress. They never charged one penny for their public serivce. They sang because they liked to sing.

Monroe people had more time to live in 1906. There was no welter of automobile traffic, no hurry and bustle as people earned their livelihoods; there was time then for social and cultural activities such as those of a singing club.

The young bloods had no automobiles in which to hurry home from work and to rush away on pleasure bent. George Zeigin, L. R. Powers and the late Dr. O. W. Cosby were among the few who had automobiles.

On Sundays, the young men would occasionally rent a horse and buggy from Endom's Livery stable, located in the 100 block of DeSiard street, and would take their girl friends on rides to the country.

The country then was located only a dozen blocks or more from DeSiard street. South of DeSiard, a dirt road led out into the country—past the Layton Place, then konwn as Layton Castle. Several blocks east of Five Points—and the former V. S. & P. railroad shops, a dirt road ran past open fields. North of DeSiard, Hudson Lane then was really a lane. It was the approximate northern extremity of the city's residential section.

Amidst the peaceful serenity of this setting, with little else to do, the young men were wont to stroll downtown in the evenings, walking leisurely, for there was no occasion for hurrying.

Meeting downtown on a street corner or in front of the livery stable, perhaps inspired in part by moonlight flooding the downtown streets which were poorly illuminated by lamps, the young men spontaneously blended their voices in song.

Such a group of young men back in those peaceful days organized the Apollo club.

The organization meeting was held in the living quarters of Darden Ford, who resided in the G. B. Cooley Flats, on South Grand street. Mr. Darden was a singing instructor of the former Monroe City High school. He served as instructor of the club.

Leon Hammonds, who at that time was the director of an orchestra bearing his name, became the pianist of the club.

Practice sessions, with the young men earnestly pursuing the art of singing, were held in the auditorium of the City high school building and in the present Knights of Pythias hall.

Carefully trained in a large repertoire, including principally the familiar tunes of the day, but also a few semi-classical selections, the Apollo club soon made its services available for public entertainments. Songs were rendered by the club at high school commencement exercises and in the then Lyceum theater, where the flickering silent dramas of the screen were shown.

No person who heard the renditions of the singing organization enjoyed its harmonies more than members of the club enjoyed blending their voices in song. Their contribution to the musical life of the city was given without thought of personal gain.

About four years after it was organized, the club was disbanded because the members were leaving the city to pursue their business careers elsewhere. Some of the members, though, remained here.

C. V. Reiser, one of the club members, was an instructor of mathematics at the City high school. He died shortly after the picture accompanying this story was made.

Dr. B. G. Williams, at the time the picture was taken, was practicing his profession. Dr. Williams has remained here.

P. A. Poag was an assistant cashier of the Union National bank. He is now secretary-treasurer of the city of Monroe.

T. J. Shelton was chief clerk of the A. & L. M. railroad here. He is now connected with the street railway company at Shreveport.

W. M. Washburn was employed by a wholesale grocer company. He is now secretary-treasurer of the company.

William Apgar was a clerk of the Missouri Pacific railroad. He has died.

Leon Hammonds and his orchestra played regularly, as a full-time musical accompaniment, at the Lyceum theater. Mr. Hammonds is now a floor salesman of a local furniture company.

J. D. McCranie was a salesman of a Monroe grocery company. He died about three years ago.

H. G. Prophit was manager of the L. D. McLain Insurance agency, and is now operating a business in this city. He provided the picture and material for this story.

It is interesting to observe that Mr. Hammonds, a leading young musician of northeast Louisiana—during the life of the Apollo club, has since that time continued to contribute his talent and musical ability without stint to the community, and is recognized as an outstanding musical artist of this section. His services in public and organization musical programs are in such demand that he rarely has an hour or two for relaxation.

Monroe's Young Bloods Organized And Let Harmony Ring

Mr. Prophit has for many years been a singer of the choir of the Temple B'Nai Israel. He is a favorite singer and actor of the annual minstrel staged by the Leonidas Barkdull Faulk post of the American Legion. Mr. Poag also sings with the minstrel.

Nearly 30 years have passed since the Apollo club rendered its songs. Memories of those melodies are mellowed with years, but sometimes, when a radio artist sings one of the old-time tunes, there drifts back to those who were members of the club vibrant memories that are as sad and as sweet as a faded rose found in an old book of verse.

14 PERSONS ARE REPORTED SLAIN

Victims Reputedly Killed In Street Fighting In Yugoslavia

VIENNA, May 18.—(AP)—Unconfirmed reports today said 14 persons were slain in street fighting in the Yugoslav province of Slovenia and Croatia growing from the refusal of young recruits to perform military service in Macedonia.

(In Belgrade nothing official was published concerning the reported disorders. Military authorities would not comment, but election officials pointed out a committee which distributes parliamentary seats in accordance with the complex electoral law had not finished their work, following the May 5 election, in which the Croats and Slovenes charged they were robbed of many mandates.)

A crowd of 200, said the reports, at Lyublyana raised the forbidden Slovenian flag and beat off an attack by Serb troops and police. Ten were reported killed at Osiyek, Croatia, and the others in Brod.

It was said the Slovenian and Croat recruits charged Belgrade was trying to get them from their home idstricts, where dissatisfaction with the regime apparently is growing, and they were not physically fit for long service in Macedonia's climate.

Earlier reports said the banned Croat and Slovenian flags have been displayed publicly often recently despite police attempts to suppress them.

TWO NEGROES CAUGHT WITH STOLEN STOVE

Caught while trying to sell a stolen cook stove to a local furniture store, Napoleon Johnson, 20, and Charles Baker, 20, negroes, had a ready answer for the arresting officers Saturday as to where they got the stove.

"Hit wuz lik' dis, boss," one of them explained. "We wuz down at 'er empty hous' lookin' fer a room and bumped right slab-dab into dis yer' stov'."

The stove was stolen Friday night from the North Louisiana Industrial high school (negro), the report to the police being made by Daniel Ross, negro, 1003 Texas avenue.

Johnson, who gave his address as 1408 Wood street, and Baker, who resides at 511 Vicksburg street, will be charged with burglary, according to L. V. Tarver, superintendent of police. Arrests were made by Officers L. G. Parker and D. J. Bedsole.

Watizit

Consult Your Ouachita Map And You'll Find Out Watizit

Two men were talking . . . here is the gist of their conversation.

Q. "What is it?"
A. "Watizit."
Q. "What is what?"
A. "That's it. Watizit."
Q. "I asked you, what is its name?"
A. "And I'm telling you, Watizit."

The questioner looked at the other in amazement. "One of us must be crazy. I asked you what you named the settlement."

Back came the answer, promptly "And I am telling you, 'Watizit.'"

Such things have led to fights and gun play, so the answerer went about explaining.

"You see, friend, that's the name I selected. 'W-a-t-i-z-i-t.'"

One of the men was H. T. Benoit, owner of the mill and father of H. H. Benoit of Monroe. The other is unknown.

Mr. Benoit explained: "You see, I hadn't selected a name until you asked me just then. You asked: 'What is it?' and I just condensed your question to 'Watizit'."

Although the mill and settlement were razed in 1907, the name still sticks.

Its only usefulness now is as a rural delivery post.

Look on your Ouachita parish map. You'll find it.

NEGRO IS INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

Miss Dorothy Mae Justice of Delhi, La., reported to the police that a negro, Casey Smith, walked out in front of her automobile in the 2800 block on DeSiard street about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon and was struck by her car before she could bring it to a halt.

The negro was taken to St. Francis sanitarium and is not believed to be seriously injured.

SUREBEST BREAD HIGH IN ENERGY

Foods Committee Points Out Value Of A Balanced Diet

"Your most reliable authority on nutrition as related to health is the committee on foods of the American Medical association," it was stated by C. P. Brogran, president of the Surebest Bakery, Inc.

Mr. Brogran's statement was made in connection with an educational campaign being conducted through the Morning World and News-Star by a group of leading local bakery concerns. Continuing, Mr. Brogran said:

"This committee accepts the following statements as true facts about bread:

"(1) Bread is our outstanding source of the largest single need in the balanced diet—food-energy.

"(2) Bread is the most economical source of food-energy. There is almost no waste in white bread, as it is 96 per cent digested.

"(3) Bread is often incorrectly called a 'fattening food.' The fact that bread is high in food-energy does not mean that it will produce overweight. The control of weight depends solely on the food-energy content of the diet as a whole, not on any one specific food in the diet. Bread can and should be used, even by those who are reducing weight under their physicians' instructions. Remember, you should never think of bread as a 'fattening food,' but as a food high in energy.

"(4) Bread is a completely wholesome food."

The Surebest Bakery takes pride in stating that milk is used at its plant in quantities sufficient to make the best loaf of bread possible. The most widely advertised yeast, special malt, shortening, sugar, salt, powdered milk, flour, arkady and other products are used in making Surebest bread.

The firm bakes all night, and the public is invited to visit its modern plant to see how the slow-baked, creamy textured, golden crusted Surebest bread is made.

PLANS ARE MADE FOR FOLK SCHOOL

Educational Event Slated To Take Place July 15, 16 And 17

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., May 18.—(Special)—Plans have been made for a "Folk School" in East Carroll parish on July 15, 16, and 17. Miss Mary Mims, extension sociologist of Louisiana State university, presided at the meeting last week at Monticello High school for the purpose of selecting officers and making definite plans for a program.

The Folk School will be held at Monticello high school. It will be operated strictly for adults. There will be lectures and demonstrations in the fields of economics, government, health, agriculture, home making, art, and music. The children's department will be operated solely for those children who come with their parents.

The officers selected were: Chairman, Ashley W. Warlick, parish superintendent of schools; co-chairman, H. D. Raley, school board member from the seventh ward; secretary, Mrs. W. B. Hawkins. The superintendents and co-superintendents selected were: Home making, Mrs. H. D. Raley, superintendent, Miss Eunyce Howard, co-superintendent; agriculture, Jesse King, superintendent, C. A. Rose, co-superintendent; health, Mrs. Lewis Futrell, superintendent, Dr. Franklin V. Boyd, co-superintendent; government and economics, W. B. Hawkins, superintendent, Ashley W. Warlick, co-superintendent; art, Miss Virgie Myers, superintendent, Mrs. Vera Cohron, co-superintendent.

The superintendents of the several departments for children will be selected at a later date.

SITE FOR SOIL EROSION CCC CAMP IS SELECTED

HOMER, La., May 18.—(Special)—A site one mile south of Homer was selected as the location for a Civil Conservation corps camp whose personnel of more than 200 youths will carry out a soil erosion project. The selection was made by army officials and Guy Fletcher of Minden, who is connected with the federal soil erosion service.

The camp will be located on the Homer-Minden highway, and the project to be undertaken will be carried out on tract of 25,000 acres on the M. B. Henry plantation. Bayou D'Arbonne watershed is included in the project.

Epps Town Council Votes To Prohibit Publio Dancing

EPPS, La., May 18.—(Special)—Public dances in this little West Carroll parish village have been banned by action of the mayor and town council.

Declaring public dances to be a nuisance, the ordinance passed by the board of aldermen fixes a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100 for violation of the new law.

It was pointed out that the action was not taken because the town is addicted to "blue laws," but because of rowdiness which developed at these dances.

Neither was the ordinance passed because of the fact that two women are members of the board of aldermen. The two feminine councilmen are Mrs. M. L. Crow and Mrs. T. G. Wall. The mayor is J. T. Hicks.

Private dances are not banned.

RELEASED UNDER BOND

DARNELL, La., May 18.—(Special)—Charley Hankins and Felton Hankins, brothers charged with larceny, were released from jail here under bond. Charley Hankins was arrested at Jackson, Miss., at the request of West Carroll parish authorities, who returned him to Darnell. The two men, together with Carl Simmons, who has not been apprehended, are accused of having stolen a crate of chickens from Henry Whomack.

DISTRICT COURT PENALTIES GIVEN

Six Defendants Enter Guilty Pleas And Receive Sentences

Penalties were imposed in the district court in the cases of five defendants who entered pleas of guilty yesterday, and one defendant who had previously pleaded guilty. One other defendant who pleaded guilty was remanded to jail to await sentence.

Floyd Hollis, negro, charged with larceny of property valued at $359.87, in connection with the theft of the delivery truck of A. D. Hanks, tobacco salesman, was sentenced to serve from six to 18 months in the state penitentiary. Hollis had previously pleaded guilty.

Lee P. Johnson, negro, charged with shooting at with intent to commit murder, was sentenced to serve one year in jail.

A sentence of six months in jail was imposed in the case of James Haley, who pleaded guilty to larceny of a pistol valued at $30.

Fred Williams, negro, alias Fred Munson, was sentenced to serve four months in jail from the date of his incarceration, for assault with intent to rape.

Oscar Green, negro, charged with larceny of property valued at $5.30, was sentenced to serve 60 days in jail.

Thirty days in jail was imposed in the case of Leon Johnson, negro, for assault and battery.

After pleading guilty to larceny of two pairs of hose valued at $2, Jim Little, negro, was remanded to jail to await sentence.

OVERPASS WORK IS PROGRESSING

Nearly All Of Dirt Job And Column Forms Complete At Sicard

Progress on work on the Sicard overpass designed to handle traffic over rails of the Missouri Pacific railroad a short distance from the end of the pavement on the DeSiard road, has continued satisfactorily, despite hard rains recently, it was learned yesterday.

Nearly all of the dirt work incidental to building up the east approach has been completed, and most of the column forms for the main structure have been built and are ready for the pouring of concrete. Some of the columns have already been poured.

Work has been started on a detour to lead traffic from the end of the pavement, where the overpass will begin, to the intersection of the DeSiard road and the Monroe-Bastrop gravel road.

Work has also been started on construction of a gravel road which will lead traffic from near the end of the pavement to the Monroe-Bastrop road. At this time, motor vehicles headed for the latter road drive past the future west end of the overpass. When the new gravel road and the overpass are completed and in use, vehicles headed for the Bastrop road will reach that road with greater safety, it was stated.

Work on the project of extending Louisville avenue, which has been conducted thus far immediately east of the tracks of the Little Rock and Monroe branch of the Missouri Pacific railroad, was suspended last week because of rains. It is expected that the work will be resumed early this week.

The Louisiana state unemployment service, 105 North Fourth street, headed by R. E. Young, district manager, provides labor for the overpass and avenue extension work.

Mr. Young has contacted the S. and W. company, of Memphis, Tenn., low bidders for the construction of a seawall here, for the purpose of making arrangements for providing labor for the contractors. The company informed Mr. Young in a letter that although they have not been awarded the contract, they will be pleased to cooperate with him in event they are given the contract.

TALLULAH HIGH

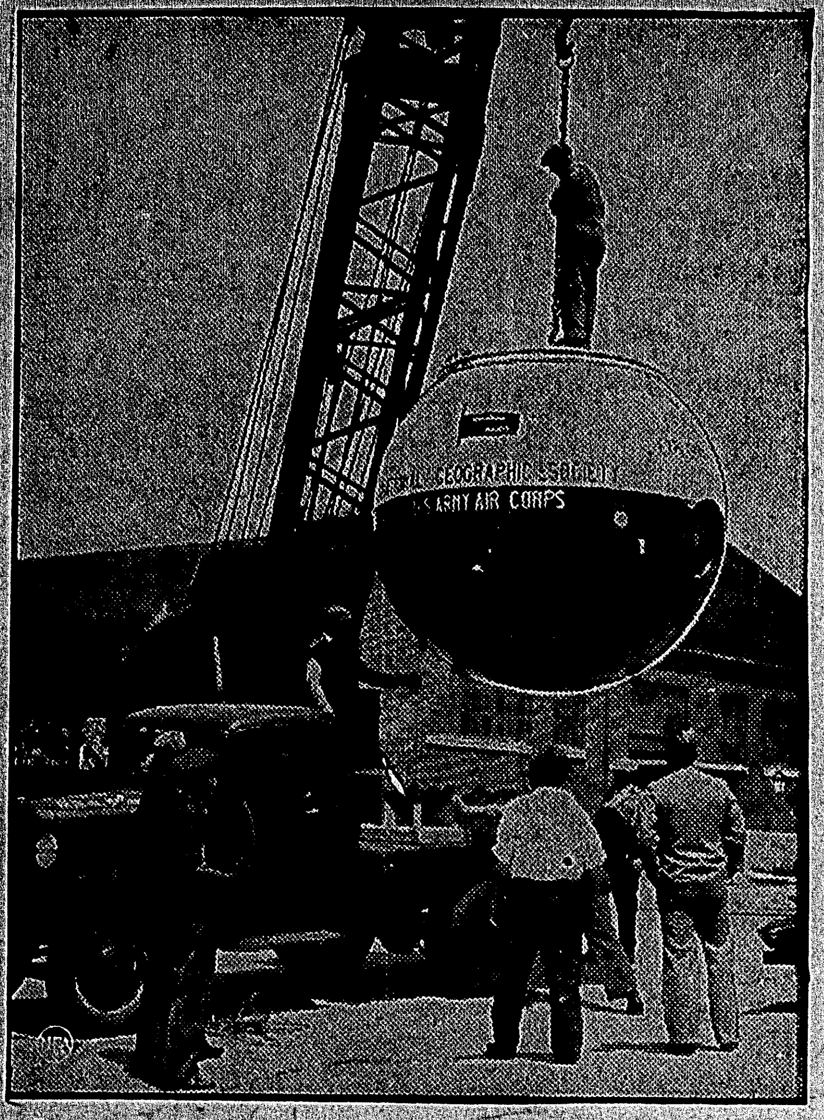
TALLULAH, La., May 18.—(Special)—The popularity contest conducted at the Tallulah High school resulted as follows: Best looking girl, Joy Webb; most handsome boy, James Wade; best athlete, Harry Don Morton; most popular girl, Carolyn Cason; most popular boy, Walter Scott; wittiest, Tom Barber; best all round girl, Laura Sevier; best all round boy, Walter Scott; most talented, Helenmai Julian.

NEVILLE HIGH

"The PCB News," daily news sheet of the science department of Neville High school, made its first appearance Friday. The paper, a mimeograph publication, will be issued each day until the close of school, it was announced Friday night.

The sheet contains all the news of the science department at Neville and is being published primarily to advise students in choosing scientific studies for their next semester's work. The paper derives its name from the studies physics, chemistry and biology.

STRATO GONDOLA TAKEOFF DAY



It was takeoff day for the stratosphere balloon gondola when this picture was snapped, but no altitude marks were made. The nine-foot metal ball was merely derricked a few feet in the air and then placed on a truck to start its trip from Dayton, Ohio, to Rapid City, S. D., near where the ascent, aiming at a 14-mile height, will start in June. Lighter than aluminum, the magnesium alloy ball has tremendous strength, having passed the most severe tests.

SCOUT TROOP TO SPONSOR BARN DANCE, TACKY PARTY

A tacky party and barn dance will be given next Saturday night by the Boy Scouts of Troop 67, Sterlington, it was announced last night by Tom Wafer, scoutmaster. The party will begin at 9 p. m. at the Munce club, Sterlington, and continue until 1 a. m.

Prizes will be given to the tackiest dressed man and woman and the public is invited to attend. Music will be rendered by the American Strutters.

Proceeds of the party will go into the troop fund to assist in sending scouts to the Jamboree at Washington,

A STAMPING CORNER

By W. J. KIRBY

By W. J. Kirby

Sponsored by the Twin City Stamp Club a stamp exhibition will be held at the new Recreation room on DeSiard street Thursday evening May 23. Every collector in the city whether a member of the club or not is asked to enter a frame or frames in the exhibition.

The exhibit will open at 7:30 Friday evening and frames on exhibit will be placed in the show window at Woolworth's Friday morning, where they will remain several days. No prizes will be awarded in the exhibition, it being held solely to arouse philatelic interest in this section.

It has been definitely announced that a stamp will be issued for the California-Pacific International Exhibition, which opens at San Diego on May 29. The stamp will be of the 3c denomination, and of the large rectangular formation. It will picture the exhibition's Hall of Science building, together with the Bay of San Diego and Point Loma.

Persons desiring first day covers of the new stamp should send not more than 10 covers, addressed with ink or typewriter, to the postmaster at San Diego with a request that they be given first day service. Send a money order or coin to cover the stamps to be used, but do not send other stamps in payment.

Designs have been announced for Canada's new pictorial set, which will make its appearance on June 1. The 1c to 5c, inclusive, as well as the 8c, will be the regular size stamps, with a portrait of King George. Double size pictorial stamps will be: 10c Royal Canadian Mounted Police constable on horse; 13c, group of delegates attending Confederation convention, 1864; 20c, Niagara Falls; 50c, legislative building at Victoria, B. C.; $1.00, view of Champlain monument. A new 6c airmail stamp will picture Daedalus in flight, while a 20c special delivery stamp has an allegorical figure of Progress.

Japan has issued a beautiful set of four stamps to commemmorate the visit of the Emperor of Manchuokuo to Japan. Two designs are used, the 1 1-2 sen and 6 sen both showing the battleship, "Hiei," which conveyed the emperor to Yokohama. The 3sen and 10 sen show a view of the Akasaka palace where the emperor stayed during his visit to Nippon.

Not to be outdone by the Emperor's host, Manchoukuo also issued a set of four values. The 1 1-2fen and 6fen depict Fujiyama, the sacred mountain of Japan. The 3fen and 10fen picture a pair of soaring phoenixes, symbolizing an eternal exchange of courtesies between the two emperors. Both sets bear idographs explaining the event they commemmorate.

It has been estimated that 215,537 persons of the 389,645 population of the Hawaiian Islands live on Oahu, principal island of the group.

HAVE YOU Read The WANT-ADS To-day?

Must this great work lag for want of your support?

Here is a vital question that confronts every man and woman of the Twin Cities. The answer "yes" or "no" determines to a great extent whether or not we shall progress in the future as we have in the past. You and you and you as individuals will give these answers . . . but, before you do, we suggest that you review the past accomplishments of your Chamber of Commerce . . . learn what it means to you as an individual and to the community at large. The Chamber of Commerce stands on its merit. If it does not fill an economic need in the community, there is no need for it. You are the judge . . . note the accomplishments of the past year listed below . . . in all fairness you'll agree that this work must go on . . . and you must give your support.

Renovizing Campaign

The renovizing campaign, which you saw advertised in the columns of this newspaper, was sponsored by your Chamber of Commerce and it resulted in the spending of $289,735.58 for renovizing and remodeling of homes in the Twin Cities. It brought employment to carpenters, bricklayers, plumbers, painters, paperhangers, electricians and benefited the building business in general.

"Dern Dinner" (Secretary of War)

Secretary of War Dern's visit to Monroe and the dinner given him was sponsored by your Chamber of Commerce and had great influence in securing the $3,500,000 levee program that is already under way.

Federal Agencies

The government always calls on your Chamber of Commerce to start and supervise the beginning of all federal agencies at least until a permanent organization is effected and your Chamber of Commerce then continues to lend its support to these agencies at all times.

Highways

In the past year your Chamber of Commerce has purchased and helped to make arrangements for the right of way for the road south of Monroe. This opened a new trade territory which directly benefited the merchants and indirectly benefits everyone.

Large Industries

For the past two months your Chamber of Commerce has been putting forth every effort to secure a large industrial plant. Many reports have been furnished and they are now in the hands of engineers.

Retail Merchants Division

This division of your Chamber of Commerce has taken the lead in sponsoring several successful trade days which have brought thousands of people who spent many thousands of dollars in Monroe. The advertising solicitations committee of this division by its censorship saves the merchants of Monroe and you (because after all you pay the bills) many thousands of dollars.

Trade Area

Your Chamber of Commerce makes frequent visits to smaller communities as a good will jesture. Next week your Chamber of Commerce will visit Delhi to help them organize a regional Chamber of Commerce.

Conventions

Your Chamber of Commerce has been instrumental in securing many conventions. Many more could be secured if finances were adequate. Remember conventions bring guests to your cities that would not ordinarily come . . . they pay hotel bills . . . they buy food . . . and spend money in numerous ways which benefits you as an individual and the community as a whole.

Highway Information

Your Chamber of Commerce furnishes information and routes for extended trips to the people of the Twin Cities and their guests. This service is gratis. One trip of 7,200 miles has just been completed and another of 4,700 miles.

Detail Work

Of course, as in any business there is a great amount of detail work to which some one must attend. It cannot be done by City or Parish officials and if your Chamber of Commerce does not function it will not be done at all. Besides this your Chamber of Commerce has lent its support to a number of projects and brought influence to bear which accounts for the success of these projects.

Your welfare is concerned...your business is concerned...can we go forward in this work and expand (because only the surface has been scratched) or must our present activities be curtailed?

Travel Fever Breaks Out In Sections Of Society

The Rustle Of Organdy And The Vibrant Voices Of Budding Young Orators Heard Over The Land

By Eve C. Bradford

Like the walrus, we have many things to talk of this beautiful May morning . . . for instance, have you noticed a certain something in the air these days? . . . something besides sweet flower odors, gently falling rain and a peculiar sort of Maytime malady known as vernal fever. . . . Ask any debonair high school senior and you will receive a vivid answer . . . you have only to bow down your ear and you will hear the musical rustle of crisp organdy and vibrant voices of budding young orators rehearsing the highly improbable class prophesy, the class will and the poignantly sweet valedictory . . . of course there is always that highly important question of food for the alumni banquet. . . .

Caught a glimpse of Monita Melgrem being whirled to the roof of the Virginia, where she is working out details for the Neville alumni banquet on the twenty-ninth . . . Mrs. Paul Keller is equally as busy selecting a menu partified enough to match the gayety of the St. Matthew's senior banquet on the Cherokee Terrace of the Frances hotel on the night of the twenty-third. . . . In addition to that strange vernal fever, travel fever has broken out in certain sections of society . . . the urge to go somewhere is upon us and the most recent victims are Maibel Hood and Dora Anish . . . every spare moment is spent bending over travel maps, where their pencil has encircled such glamorous places as Lake Louise, Banff and Alaska . . . first they will attend the international Business and Professional Women's convention in Seattle and then on to Canada's deep blue waters, the perfect paradise for vacationist. . . . Maibel's sister, Lillian Mitchell, has made a distinct contribution toward her wardrobe—that smart blue ensemble that you have seen her wear recently. . . .

And now hold on to your bonnet—here is some breezy news. . . . Beryl Madison and her mother, Mrs. Flood Madison, will sail for England early in June for the silver jubilee of King George and Queen Mary . . . some people get all the breaks, but even so, we are glad Beryl is globe trotting because we can look forward to a pot-pourri of brilliant talk when she returns . . . with her natural talent for repartee, her delightful sense of humor and her gift for observing every detail, she will bring us back a real story with all the trimmings. . . . We never seem to tire of hearing her tell of the magic lands visited during her European tour several years ago. . . . It's smart to be busy these days . . . almost every woman has her avocation. . . . In grandmother's day it was proper for the daughters in the house to learn all the domestic arts but all venture into the world outside was left to the sons. . . . We are reminded today of the change in late years by the number of business and professional women in our midst . . . the state president of the Business and Professional Women's club, is a dentist, if you please—and a most successful one. . . . No doubt she soothes the savage breast of her patient with her feminine charm. . . . We venture to say several delegates who attended the dinner at Lakeside Country club were late for the introductory remarks, as we saw them trailing chiffon gowns over the cocktail lounge at the Frances hotel just before the dinner hour . . . the music, the flowers, the bright lights and the gay throngs of the opening of this smart rendezvous held them enthralled . . .

Land O'Goshen but we're tired! . . . We've been searching for a couple of misplaced superlatives . . . they are needed to tell you about the Little Theater play, "Hay Fever," last week . . . we are going back to see it again Monday night because we simply fell in love with Corre Mae Calder's deep throated voice and the grace and ease of her movements. . . . Lallage Feazel's dramatic ability and dynamic personality is still another reason. . . .

We do not pretend to any poetic insight into the articulation of trees, but the glorious old burdock tree in Helen and John Sherrouse's yard most certainly waves its arms against the sky, murmurs in the spring breeze and cries out in stormy weather. . . . Walking 'neath its spreading boughs the other day, Helen told us that it seemed almost like desecration to even trim the branches that gently tap her bedroom windows. . . . In years to come we will look back with profound pleasure on that pleasant hour spent with Helen walking under those century-old trees in the quietude of the beautiful gardens of her home . . . the radiance of her personality is reflected in every winding walk, every rose that grows along the margin of the swimming pool and in the spacious environs of her hospitable home. . . .

With prow dipping into the purple twilight the "Goofus" ploughed up the river Friday night with Alden and Pauline Shotwell, the genial hosts . . . a good time was assured, as on board were Tot and Prioleau Ellis, and Harry and Harriet Walton, plus their interesting little families . . . just before the "Goofus" weighed anchor we saw W. A. and Minalee Walker with Minalee's mother, Mrs. Kennedy of Memphis, in tow, hurrying to cross the gang plank . . . their arrival made the party quite complete. . . . More riverfront news: The "Bitter-Sweet" is being polished and primed for waters of the gulf . . . the Henry Biedenharns will shove off next week. . . .

Violet Meyer is now in excellent form for the golf links at Lake Placid this summer . . . she defeated Lida Oliver in the championship tournament at Lakeside club last week . . . with one more opponent to defeat, she will enter the finals. . . . Violet has an enthusiastic gallery that is lending moral support. . . . Monroe Lakeside club members certainly walked away with all the laurels at the Shreveport Country club golf and bridge tournament last week. . . . Bernice Girault captured the golf trophy and Satchie Cooper the bridge trophy, to say nothing of the lesser prizes brought home by our Monroe golfers and bridge players. . . . Just heard of a faux pas committed by a young bride . . . she arranged a centerpiece of lilies for her dinner table, and when the guests were seated, promptly at six o'clock, and the hostess just a trifle flustrated, the lilies gently closed their petals to the world . . . they, of course, belonged to the day blooming instead of the night blooming variety. . . .

Designed For Pool Purposes

Sweet girl graduates are occupying the center of the stage with Miss Mary Minta Moore, lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Moore of Winnsboro, the first to be feted in this city. Miss Moore's aunt, Mrs. J. B. Vaughan, was hostess at luncheon at the Lotus club on Friday, with Miss Moore's most cherished friends comprising the guest list.

Every variety of blossom in the lap of early summer was gathered for the exquisite central plaque of the beautifully appointed table. Orchid and pink sweet peas, yellow roses, blue Japanese iris and purple delphinium were combined in the most artistic manner. Floral place cards at every cover created a chain of lovely pastel coloring around the table. Clever favors reminiscent of graduation days were also found at each cover.

The guests in addition to Miss Moore were Miss Thelma Berry, Miss Zelma Berry, Miss Earl Pott, Miss Gussye Short, Miss Laurie McBride, Miss Betty Frances Reily.

Miss Moore is a member of the Winnsboro High school senior class and is one of the honor students. She ranks first in average scholarship. Miss Moore also won high literary honors in the recent rally in Ruston.

Bride Complimented

Beautiful flowers created a festive atmosphere in the reception suite, where the guests were welcomed and the pleasures of the evening enjoyed. Diversion was supplied by the interesting contests of bridal significance introduced by Miss Lucyle Godwin. A distinct feature of the evening was the "shower" of beautiful gifts bestowed upon Mrs. Cherry.

A luscious confectionery course was served to Mrs. S. H. Williams, Miss Ruth Thomas, Miss Hattie Haddick, Mrs. Wallace Wood, Mrs. E. C. Wood, Mrs. Fred Speakman, Mrs. W. F. Thurmon, Mrs. Gus Hoge, Mrs. L. V. Tarver, Miss Avis Ponder, Miss Katie Mae Moore, Mrs. Culbert Lee, Mrs. George Bruce, Mrs. Maurice Lindsey, Mrs. Otto Passman, Miss Natallie Hudnall, Mrs. R. E. Club Women From All Parts Of Country Will Assemble In Detroit For Convention

"Prove all things, hold fast to that which is good," first Thessalonians, 5-21, is the theme of the triennial meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs to be held in Detroit, June 4 to 12. Around this theme the entire program is built.

While the convention will have its political aspect, as all national officers are to be elected, with subsequent appointments of chairmen and committees, there will be much of intellectual opportunity for all club women. The major departments of the federation are vieing with each other in presenting the nation's greatest speakers.

There will be three important forums at which speakers of national renown will be featured in an effort to determine what "is good." The first forum will be "Present Day Economic Trends;" the second will be "Present Day Political Trends;" the third "The Foreign Policy of the United States, Membership in the World Court, and Membership in the League of Nations."

The department of fine arts, which has majored in art during the past three years, will conduct art tours to the art museums of Detroit, with special lecturers from the department of education. In the Detroit Institute of Arts, Detroit has one of the most important museums in America. Here is to be found the finest collection of contemporary German paintings in the country. Outstanding among the exhibitions of modern art are the frescoes of the Mexican painter, Diego Rivera. The art institute is also particularly noted for its collections of of Flemish and Dutch paintings.

Club institutes will be conducted every morning by Mrs. Earl B. Padget, national chairman, and parliamentary law classes will be conducted by Mrs. Emma A. Fox.

"These United States" has been the theme of the present administration, and it is very fitting that it should close in pageantry and song, the title of which is "Frontiers in These United States." The singing of the songs will constitute the assembly singing.

On Sunday afternoon there will be memorial services for federation leaders who have passed away during the last three years. In the evening, through the courtesy of Henry A. Ford, the Detroit Symphony orchestra will give a concert which will be nationally broadcast. The eighth day will be play day, including a trip to Greenwich Village, a three-hour boat ride on the Detroit river, landing at Belle Isle for the evening concert. There will be garden tours, dinners and teas. On the final evening of the convention, prior to the evening session, a dinner will be tendered Mrs. Poole, the retiring president.

Announcement of Louisiana delegates will be made by the state president, Mrs. Agate of Lafayette.

Miss Margaret Fuller, a young pianist of unusual ability, was presented in recital by her teacher, Mrs. O. A. Hill, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Fuller on South Second street.

The young artist, wearing an exquisite evening model of gold taffeta gave a splendid exhibition of her skill in a group of piano numbers rendered with true musicianship and splendid technique. She was assisted by Miss Dolores Grant, a young musician who possesses unusual talent.

The following program was rendered:

Duet—"Lieberstraum" .... Liszt
Margaret Fuller and Delores Grant
"Sonata in C" .... Mozart
1st Movement .... Delores Grant
2nd Movement ...... Margaret Fuller
3rd Movement ...... Margaret Fuller
"A Day in Venice" .. Ethelbert Nevin a—"Dawn"
b—"Gondoliers"
c—"Venetian Love Song"
d—"Good Night"
Margaret Fuller
"Avalanche" .... Stephen Heller
Delores Grant
"Rustle of Spring" .... Sinding

Social Events Crowd Program Of Club Women

The charming social affairs planned for the entertainment of the delegates attending the state convention of the Louisiana Federated Business and Professional Women's club have been a delightful break in the business routine.

Outstanding was the al fresco luncheon in the beautiful gardens in the rear of the club house. Gayly colored umbrellas shaded the tables where members were grouped in friendly manner.

Mrs. Lizzie Morris presided in characteristic gracious manner and also introduced the entertainers. Miss Marjorie Lewis of Clarks contributed an accordian selection and Mrs. Robert Dennis of Houston rendered a beautiful voice number. Mrs. J. E. Doughtie of Shreveport, a favorite speaker, gave one of her intimate little talks. Prominent among the guests were Judge Grace Miles, national membership chairman of Independence, Kansas, and Dr. Mabel Fontane Wood, state president, of New Orleans. Mrs. Jessie Norton of Shreveport, past president of the state federation was also present.

Little Theater Notes

"Ask the man who owns one" has been the slogan of a well known motor car company for years, and if they were not certain of the merits of their product, you may be sure that they would never advertise in such a manner.

Knowing fully that self-praise is half scandal, we urge that if you are the least skeptical as to the merits of the Little Theater production "Hay Fever"—ask the man who saw it last Tuesday.

So insistent has been the demand for a second performance that we have arranged to present this delightful Noel Coward comedy again on Monday evening, May 20, at the Central Grammar school auditorium at 8:15 o'clock.

Many times doubt has assailed the members of our Little Theater as to whether our citizenship wishes to continue the support of an organization of this kind. We believe that an active Little Theater is an asset to the cultural life of any community. Our neighboring city, Shreveport, in a booklet sent out by its chamber of commerce advertising the advantages that the city offers to home seekers, features its Little Theater as one of its prized possessions, and we all know that "Le Petit Theater du Vieux Carre" of New Orleans is as well known as the Haunted house on Royal street. These two organizations have received national publicity because of the fact that they own and operate their own play houses, and not because they put on better productions than we have done.

In order to reach the goal we are striving for—that is, a Little Theater building of our own—we must have the active support of our people in taking out membership cards, or in attending the plays we offer. In all sincerity, we feel that we have done worthwhile work this past season, but in order to carry on, financial support is absolutely necessary. It isn't enough to say "I think that the Little Theater movement is a fine thing."

If we are to present plays that appeal, we must pay fairly large royalties, and in no other community in the country has so much been offered for such a reasonable fee.

In his recent book, "English Journey," which has received such favorable comment, J. B. Priestly has this to say of civic dramatic organizations:

"Many people do not realize that there is a chain of small intelligent repertory theaters stretching across the country.

"Most of them have to struggle along, hardly paying their own way; they have not as yet produced any brilliant new schools or drama or acting; they have probably not succeeded yet in creating a public of any real size for intelligent drama; but nevertheless I do not think my own personal interest in the theater is deluding me when I declare that this dramatic movement, which came into eistence after Hollywood had nearly wrecked the declining professional theater of the provinces, is of immense social importance. To begin with, it is a genuine popular movement, not something fostered by a few rich cranks. The people who work for these theaters are not by any means people who want to kill time. They are generally hard-working men and women—small business men, teachers, clerks, artisans—whose evenings are precious to them. And they are tremendously enthusiastic. These theaters are attracting to themselves the more eager, impressionable, intelligent younger people of the industrial communities, where depression has hung like a black cloud for the last few years. Some of them in various places have told me what this dramatic work has meant to them, and in many instances the persons in question have not been producing, designing scenery, playing big parts, but may only have been selling programs, taking tickets, or doing the accounts.

"These theaters are small, and have to fight for their very existence, but it would be easier to underestimate than over-estimate their significance. I see them as little campfires twinkling in a great darkness; opening windows into a world of ideas, color, fine movement and exquisite drama."

Miss Hamley Honored

Miss Agnes Hamley, whose marriage will be an interesting event of the week, was the inspiration for a charming gathering of friends at Lake Marie plantation, home of Mrs. R. R. Higgins, last week, with Miss Sue Pinkston, hostess.

Tables for bridge were grouped in the spacious reception suite, where beautiful garden flowers were placed with lavish hand. A feature of the evening was the presentation of beautiful trousseau gifts of a miscellaneous nature, to the lovely bride-to-be.

The serving of luscious refreshments at the beautifully appointed card tables brought the pleasure to conclusion for Miss Hamley and mesdames W. R. Gilfoil of Omega, J. C. Hamley, Roland Smith, B. R. Pinkston, Earl Evans, John Rodge, L. P. Thomas, Jr., and B. R. Burgoyne, and Misses Marianne Ward of Tallulah, Eula Gilfoil of Omega, Anna Mae Hamley, Effie Carlisle, Anyse Perry, Bernice Ethel Peek, and Bert Estelle Herzog.

LOVELY JUNE BRIDE

Miss Emma Sue Norris, charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Norris of Oak Ridge, La., whose engagement and approaching marriage to Mr. Clint Elmer Shepard of Piano, Texas, has just been announced. The wedding will be an interesting event of the twelfth of June.

GOMEZ ALLOWS TRIBE BUT 2 HITS, YANKS WIN 3-0

INDIANS LIMITED TO TWO SINGLES BY SOUTHPAW ACE

Gomez In Rare Form And Cleveland Is Blanked Second Straight

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP)—Lefty Gomez, the "hard luck guy" of the Yankees' pitching staff this season, finally got enough backing today to win a game after three straight defeats, but he had to turn in his best mound performance of the year to beat the Cleveland Indians 3 to 0. It was the third straight Yankee victory of the series and the second whitewashing for Cleveland.

Lefty Gomez

The triumph lifted the Yankees up two notches in the standing to second as they passed the defeated Indians and the Boston Red Sox, who also lost.

Gomez, who hasn't had more than three runs made behind him this spring, limited the Tribe to two hits—a pair of singles by Earl Averill, and struck out seven. The second blow was a scratch affair which glanced off Lou Gehrig's glove into right field.

Mel Harder, Cleveland curve ball pitcher, was touched for six hits in his seven inning stay on the hill but two of them were homers by Lou Gehrig and Bill Dickey that accounted for all the scoring. Gehrig connected for his third circuit smash of the season in the opening inning after Ben Chapman had singled. Dickey belted his third to start off the seventh frame.

The only other times the Yanks threatened were when Frank Crosetti and Red Rolfe clouted three-baggers. Crosetti's wallop followed Dickey's homer but he died on third when Harder made Gomez and Earle Combs hoist to Galatzer in left field. Rolfe opened the eighth with a triple off Lloyd Brown but the next three men were retired, Gehrig going down on strikes.

TIGERS BEAT NATS

WASHINGTON, May 18—(AP)—Alvin Crowder pitched the Detroit Tigers to a 6 to 4 win over Washington today to send the American league champions one up in the current series,

After scoring once in the first inning, the Tigers pushed across three runs in the sixth as Gehringer hit over the right field fence and Greenberg and Goslin scored on Owens'

THE MARBLE TOURNEY

When the boss told us a month or so ago that we would become the marble editor until June 29, we took the job with some misgivings. We figured it would be a lot of work (and it has been), but our job has been made much lighter by the fine cooperation of the school people throughout the territory.

When we asked for supervisors for the various school tournaments, the response was almost 100 per cent. Kids under 14 throughout northeast Louisiana suddenly became marble conscious, and a great deal of the credit belongs to these school teachers and principals who so willingly pitched in and helped supervise the eliminations.

So these few lines are written in appreciation of the assistance rendered by school men and women of this section. We know that your pupils appreciate your efforts to provide amusement and an opportunity to win a week's vacation in Gulfport, and we want you to know that The World and News-Star are grateful for your help.

THE ODDS COME DOWN

The surprising showing of the Chicago White Sox has made the betting commissioners haul down their odds and quickly adjust matters. At the start of the season, they would have bet you 500 to 1 that Mr. Dykes' young men wouldn't win the American league pennant. Now you probably can get 10 to 1. A corresponding shift has been made in the odds on place and show money.

The Cincinnati Reds also gave 'em a scare for awhile. And while the adds have been cut on the Rhinelanders, you can still get a much better price than the White Sox offer.

The Tigers' victory last year was good for baseball, and the reversal of form of the White Sox and Reds has helped revive interest in the game this season. Even if they both slip back into their old habits, their showing so far has given the hugs something to talk about.

TRACK PROSPECTS

Louisiana State university's track team will lose Slats Hardin and Buddy Blair, among others, this year but if they keep some strings on Northeast Center's budding luminaries, the Tigers will have some valuable replacements for the graduates.

The small band of Indian trackmen has been something of a sensation this season. Without benefit of cinders, the squad reached a point of efficiency where they offered some real competition for the more experienced and better conditioned teams of much larger schools. The natural ability of the athletes, plus the excellent guidance of Coach Jim Malone, produced some surprising results.

Daniel Rachal, the blond speedster of the squad, is an example of what was accomplished. According to Malone, Rachal never ran in a track meet in his life until he reported this year. His final effort of the season, at the A. A. U. meet in Memphis, shows just how far he advanced during the short period. He qualified in the 100 meter dash in a preliminary heat and then ran in the final. He duplicated the feat in the 200 meter race, pushing Ivan Fuqua, Indiana's great star, to 20.8 in the first heat. To climax a busy day, Rachal ran a 48.6 lap as a member of the relay team.

Day, Guin, Jefferies, Arnold and the other members of the small squad also turned in some excellent performances. Monroe fans had an opportunity to see what has been accomplished when the Indians trimmed Mississippi college's varsity here, and it was a pleasant surprise.

So Mr. Bernie Moore would do well to keep his eye on these Northeast Center athletes. L. S. U. can use 'em, and how!

COLUMBIA MEETS CLARKS IN BIG FOUR GAME TODAY

CLARKS, La., May 18.—(Special)—The Clarks Lumberjacks will meet the Columbia team on the local diamond Sunday. The rivalry existing between the two teams and the fact that Columbia is now leading the league, insures a large crowd for the game Sunday.

Delcour will probably be on the mound for Clarks with Smith catching, while for Columbia Coates or Blackmon will do the pitching with Fluitt catching. Other games scheduled in the Big Four league for Sunday are: Kelly at Sikes, and Chatham at Hodge. The following is the present standing of the clubs:

TOUCHSTONE TO MEET HARBERSON

H. K. Touchstone will meet Dr. R. T. Harberson in a 36-hole match at Lakeside Country club today for the championship of the club's annual spring handicap tournament.

With both finalists "on" their game, a close match is expected. The public is invited to watch the battle, Manager Shep Girault said last night, and a good-sized gallery is expected to follow the players. The first 18 holes will be played this morning, with the second half of the battle slated for the afternoon.

Touchstone defeated Harry Frazer in a close match last Sunday to enter the finals. The winner rallied on the second nine, after Frazer had held the advantage at the turn. Dr. Harberson defeated C. W. Wallace two weeks ago in their semi-final match.

Both Touchstone and Harberson are shooting excellent golf, Manager Girault said yesterday. Harberson had a 76 Friday and with the handicap he will enjoy in his match with Touchstone, he is expected to wage a real battle for the championship.

Five flights made up the tournament originally. Touchstone won the first flight, Frazer the second, Harberson the third and Wallace the fourth. Only the winners of the first four flights participated in the championship playoffs. Prizes were given for each flight victory and a trophy will be awarded the winner of the Touchstone-Harberson match.

BARONS SELL WILLETT TO LITTLE ROCK CLUB

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 18.—(AP)—President W. A. West of the Birmingham Barons today announced the sale of Harold Willett, outfielder and infielder, to the Little Rock Travelers.

Willett will leave here with his new club tonight, He joined the Barons in 1933, just after his graduation from high school, and was a regular from the start.

Carlos Moore, righthanded pitcher, was sent to the Greenwood club of the East Dixie league on option. He can be recalled on 24 hours notice.

Craig Wood One Of Chief Threats To Capture Open

Jersey Veteran Tired Of Running Second To Other Golf Pros

(By NEA Service)

DEAL, N. J., May 18.—Craig Wood never has been afraid of competition, even when it came from his assistants. That is one of the reasons the blond belter from the Hollywood Golf club, of this seashore resort, is on the short end of quoted odds for the National Open at Oakmont Country club, Pittsburgh, June 6-8.

In succession, Craig has had as aides in tutoring members such nationally famous golfers as Paul Runyan, Clarence Clark, and Dick Metz, now all full-fledged stars and pros in their own right.

There have been weeks when Craig couldn't handle the youngsters, when he has had to be up at 6 a. m. to get in practice that would help him catch up. But Craig stuck at it, and when one left for bigger ventures, he hired another of the same caliber.

Wood is confident that he is going to step out at Oakmont next month—reports from the Pittsburgh area have made him No. 1 public enemy of golfers—and blast for all time that "runner-upper" title that has been fastened on him.

Craig believes bad breaks cost him eternal credit in the links records, not breaks in his own fine game, but miracles uncorked by rivals.

"Just look at the records," he says "Denny Shute had to score an almost miraculous 73 in a terrific gale at St. Andrews in 1933 to tie me for the British Open. He won the playoff."

"Then last year in Buffalo I had Paul Runyan in the bag time and again in the final of the P. G. A championship. But each time he pulled one out of the sack that kept him going and finally he holed a 12-footer on the 38th hole to win.

"Then just a month ago at Augusta, I had Bobby Jones' masters' tournament all won, only to have Gene Sarazen hole out the finest spoon shot ever made on the par five 15th and card a double-eagle two. He just managed to tie me, and then won the playoff.

"But the fact that I am finishing second shows that I am up there. And if I am the guy they have to beat then I am one of the favorites. They won't always be pulling rabbits out of the hat, you know."

Wood uncorked some of the straightest long driving ever beheld by modern golfers on May 13 over the testy Baltusrol twin 18-hole layouts to qualify for the Open. He had to qualify, because last year at Merion he played a ball out of the rough where a fore-caddy had marked it on the 16th hole. After holing out in a par 4, Wood noticed that the ball was not hit. Under the rules he automatically was disqualified.

Playing mashie-niblicks and mashies where others were using No. 3's and No. 2's, Wood toured the Baltusrol layouts in 71 each time, one under par each way, on a course that will be the scene of next year's Open.

Craig glories in his ability to knock the hide off the apple. It is his strength in scoring. The big fellow has gone back to using his driver, after several years of brassieing from the tee, and is amazed to learn that he is straighter with the driver than with the brassie.

The secret of his distance is not in exaggeration of swing or conscious attempts to bat the ball out of sight. It comes from a pair of brawny forearms and mighty wrists that a blacksmith might envy.

Wood believes Henry Picard, lanky Hershey, Pa., pro, and Harry Cooper are a pair that will do well at Oakmont; Picard because of his length off the tee, and Cooper because of his uncanny accuracy from tee to green.

"Cooper will be overdue at Oakmont," asserts Wood. "He had the tournament won until Tommy Armour came in and hit a great iron to the 18th green in 1927. Armour birdied that hole, the 72nd of the Open, tied Harry, and beat him in the playoff.

"I don't believe Sarazen will get going at Oakmont like he did at Augusta. And unless some of the big hitters who are bound to be well-considered keep the ball on the fairway, they can't win. No one is going to win on that course coming out of the rough."

BASTROP CCC DEFEATS OAK GROVE IN SLUGFEST

OAK GROVE, La., May 18.—(Special)—The Bastrop civilian corps defeated Oak Grove in a hard slugging battle, 20 to 6.

Although both teams did some slugging, Langston kept the hits allowed scattered and only three runs after the first through the seventh, when he retired.

Linzay and Davis hit home runs.

Ross And McLarnin Both Confident Of Winning Title Battle

By John J. Romano

Debonair, jaunty Barney Ross has no illusion about his place with the immortals of the prize ring. The Chicagoan has learned a lot about the hard knocks of life in his upward climb to the heights of pugilism. But he made his way—a long and rocky way over a period of six years—pitting his skill and the weight of his wallop against sixty-one rivals who thought they were better than he. Three of them managed to score a point decision. But where are they? Among the limbo of forgotten fighters.

Ross, a double champion who recently renounced his lightweight crown to gamble his ability against Jimmy McLarnin, feels sure he is the master of the greatest puncher the game has known in some years.

Jimmy McLarnin is a veteran of twelve years in the ring. Although Ross started six years later than the Belfast Thumper, he has had but 12 less contests. Add to this the fact that McLarnin suffered one technical knockout against none of any kind experienced by Ross, and you have a good idea of Barneys confidence that he can score over McLarnin.

First Bout A Surprise

McLarnin is not one to take a rival lightly. He has had two meetings with the lad he meets on the 28th of the month.

In the first fight Jimmy was a prohibitive favorite to outscore or stop his ambitious rival from Chicago's West Side. The courageous Ross not only astonished his most rabid admirers by outboxing the veteran McLarnin but swapped blow for blow without once breaking ground and was awarded the decision. It was a close fight all the way and made boxing a spectacle worth watching. Came the second fight. Ross did his best, but it was a wee bit less than the efforts put forth by McLarnin, with the result that the welterweight crown was returned to the Irishman.

Jimmy McLarnin is not the "Baby Face" of his flyweight and bantamweight days. Those were the days when he was a ball of fire, fighting Pancho Villa, Fidel LaBarba, Bud Taylor, and the rest. Today Jimmy has a smile for everyone he meets but it is a quiet, assuring one, coming from a more matured young man who knows what it is all about. The cold glint in his eyes assures you that he has no false notion of taking too much for granted against a rival who tested his wallop and does not fear it.

Punching Power Made Friends

McLarnin has been inactive since last September. He is a quiet living chap, with no desire to step out and partake of the round of parties to which one of his standing is invited. It's not his nature to show himself to be a "prince of good fellows." Jimmy does not go in for that sort of thing. The potency of his punch made friends for him. Otherwise he might be ostracised—if he were just a fair fighter or a grand boxer. No matter what anyone may say, a PUNCHER commands the respect of the dyed-in-the-wool fight fan. That is why Jimmy McLarnin has been so popular.

McLarnin has only observed Ross in action but once since their last meeting. It was when Jimmy sat in to see what Barney could do against Henry Woods. Ross had things pretty much his own way that night and did not extend himself. After the fight Jimmy shook hands with Ross, and on being asked later what he thought of Barney's showing replied, "He was not as fast as he showed against me."

Ross To Change Style

McLarnin was right. Ross did not have to extend himself, and when he was asked to comment on Jimmy's remark said, "McLarnin is right. I was fighting a different sort of fighter. You cannot use the same tactics against every fighter. Each fight presents a different problem. When I meet McLarnin I will pattern my style according to the tactics employed by him. Otherwise I would be floundering around and possibly be knocked out. McLarnin is not judging me on the form I showed against Woods and I know it. I have what I think can whip McLarnin and I know Jimmy feels the same about me."

Ross and McLarnin express implicit confidence in themselves. This much can be expected from a pair of thoroughbred gamecocks who have proven their worth with the padded mittens.

McLarnin is one who does not lose without a gallant effort, even though his best days are behind him. Ross is just coming into his own. It is an assured fact that he means to go on to greater efforts. He has this all before him and it is up to him to make the best of his opportunity or Jimmy McLarnin will blast him out of the pugilistic picture.

WALKER SUBDUES BRAVES FOR 4TH WIN OF SEASON

Cardinal Southpaw Holds Boston Scoreless For Eight Innings

ST. LOUIS, May 18.—(AP)—Bill Walker racked up his fourth victory of the season today by pitching the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6 to 2 decision over Babe Ruth and the Boston Braves.

The stylish left-hander now has caught up with Dizzy and Paul Dean in games won and is the world champions' leading pitcher with only one defeat. Flint Rhem, a former Cardinal, started for Boston but lasted only seven innings.

Bill had a shutout in his hands until the ninth inning. The first eight he held the Braves to two hits.

Then Joe Mowry, who finishes games for Babe Ruth in left field, lined a single over Durocher's head, Thompson hit to Collins and the Ripper took the sure play at first instead of trying for a possible forceout at second. This moved Mowry to second and he scored when Lee doubled.

Coscarart followed with a single that scored Lee, but the game ended when Walker struck out Spohrer, and Mueller, batting for Smith, flied to Terry Moore.

Distinguished Visitor Addresses Enthusiastic Lakeside Dinner Guests

Dr. Mabel Fontane Wood, President Of State Women's Club Organization, Is Guest Speaker Saturday

One of the highlights of the three-day state convention of the Louisiana Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs in this city was the splendid address delivered by the state president, Dr. Mabel Fontane Wood of New Orleans, during the banquet hour at the Lakeside Country club Saturday night.

Dr. Wood, charmingly feminine and possessing a magnetic personality, held the undivided interest of the dinner guests during her address. She said in part:

"This past year I had the honor of leading what I believe is one of the greatest of all organizations, not only in past accomplishments but in its future possibilities.

"This evening I wish to look backward and forward with you. First, because the spotlight is so focussed on the present achievements of women as thinking citizens in business and professions, and second, because the present time is so pregnant with responsibility and opportunity.

"This year's work and this convention have been momentous, because significant paths have been laid out which interpret our genuine purpose in carrying out work outlined by our national body.

"Because no part of our work could ever be recorded as complete no matter how comprehensive and far-reaching unless we turned to our national leaders. It is to them we look for potential leadership. Supplementing, of course, our local leaderships.

"And as the year draws to a close and with it the thought that we surrender to other hands the task of caring for and nurturing our federation, I feel in a way like the soldier just outside of the battlefield this evening chatting for a loose moment with his comrades. I say battlefield, because today the commercial arena is our battlefield where we business and professional women interpret our objectives to the American public.

"In my childhood I was given to understand (as many other women who have worked their way through) that this world was no lotus garden, no paradise of serene sky and roses and merriment all the year round, but instead a cold and foggy world where nothing grew but robust men and women and only those of wonderful fiber and endurance. I am glad I learned this lesson in my youth. It is unquestionably true.

"Today each person, each business, each profession presents an individual problem, because each woman visualizes her oportunities differently, and let me caution you here not to overlook the possibilities that arise through personal development, because there are two classes of success to record:

"There are many things we learn more effectively when years have enriched us with experience. What does it matter if Edison invented electricity and neither you nor I have inventive genius? What does it matter that Kipling wrote a Recessional? That one can plead law and we cannot, as long as you and I can do well each individual undertaking?

"And today is a day of specialization. One must have definite knowledge and special experience. Don't ever say, "I can do almost anything," because what that really means, is that you can do nothing. The woman who advances today is one who masters the one thing that she is doing and who can do it better than anyone else.

"Aside from this we must encourage our leaders. We must encourage those women who have potential possibilities and help them to make the most of them, because they carry the weight on the shoulders. Leadership is a lonely business; it means responsibility, a combined one. It means lonely hours of reflection, of meditation, which necessarily reverts back to the fold. For after all it is true that the sun touches the tops of the mountains first and works its way downwards.

"This evening as we look into the future, because as leaders we must think and look into the future. Let us insist on professional standards for public service personnel.

"It will take vision, courage, sanity and intelligence to solve and work towards security, because security like happiness and respect must be earned, which takes us all right back to our educational program. The importance of studying. The real peril of the American young woman today is that she is too content to be of the average, rather than of the best.

"We find many women today waiting for conditions to better themselves. My advice to you is 'get 'going.' It can get worse.

"I believe today there are unlimited opportunities for the well trained woman in business and professions, provided they are courageous, have skillful ability and possess that rare quality of highmindedness so essential in public life today.

"And in closing I wish to leave with you two challenging questions:

"How can women preserve the value of her past experience and at the same time re-interpret her objective to meet the modern standards?

"What does the future hold?

"We find today women bent under loads that only their idealism and their concern for the future enable them to carry. Will the public take advantage of this idealism indefinitely? And let us remember that anything that lives for itself alone soon dies. Let us then educate the public to what we are doing, and I am sure that slowly but surely we can take them by the hand and guide them into our way of thinking."

Art Contests Suggested For Vacation Days

With the coming of vacation days with their hours of leisure, which club women will welcome as an opportunity to study, read and travel, or perhaps to enter some of the interesting contests sponsored by state chairmen of the Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs, attention is called to the short story contest by Mrs. Arthur F. Shuey, 902 Prospect avenue, Shreveport. Following are the rules: The contest is for a short-short story, 1,500 words is the limit, and stories may be much shorter if desired. Any type story may be submitted. All manuscripts must be typewritten with name and address of the writer on the story. All manuscripts must reach Mrs. Shuey by September 1, 1935. Enclose stamped, addressed envelope in order that stories may be returned.

Art, poetry, and scrap book contests have been submitted previously, and the drama, reading, and insurance contests will be given at an early date.

Should direct communication with state chairmen be desired, they are as follows: Art, Mrs. D. H. Christman, 255 Forest avenue, Shreveport; poety, Mrs. P. J. White, 2703 Fairfield avenue, Shreveport; scrap book, Mrs. Addison Thompson, Ruston; drama, Miss Catherine Winters, Louisiana State Normal college, Natchitoches; insurance, Mrs. Turner K. Butler, Ponchatoula; reading, Mrs. A. G. Reed, L. S. U., Baton Rouge.

Activities At Lakeside

Social life at Lakeside Country club will take on a different color with the advent of summer. Al fresco affairs will be featured now that barbecue pits have been completed on the club house grounds. On the evening of the fourth of July a barbecue will bring all members together with a dancing party to be held on the third of July, an event all members are anticipating eagerly, as the music will be supplied by Bud Scott and his orchestra. A golf tournament will be held on the fourth of July.

The regular monthly dancing party will take place next Thursday with Louis Clancy and his company of musicians furnishing the music.

Mrs. Reginald Field and Mrs. A. J. Emerson have returned from a two weeks' visit in Dallas, Texas, where they were the house guests of friends.

Mrs. Harold Heinberg has returned from a two weeks' visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Hiller, of Memphis, Tenn.

MRS. WILLIAM W. CHERRY

A wedding in which the interest of friends in this section of the state is centered was that of Miss Naomi Speakman, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lloyd Speakman, and Mr. William Wallace Cherry on the ninth of May. Following a honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Cherry are now comfortably established in their own home in this city, where they will be glad to welcome their friends.

Miss Haas And Fiance Are Guests Of Honor At Dinner In Home Mr. And Mrs. Haas

Dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Haas, always a delightful experience, was an unusually charming event Thursday night, when, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Lee Kuhn, they welcomed a few guests complimentary to Miss Shirley Haas and her fiance, Mr. David Snyder.

Flowers of pronounced beauty banked the reception suite, where cocktails and canapes were enjoyed during that gracious interlude before the serving of dinner. Miss Haas wore a lovely filmy frock of cerise chiffon.

The dinner table, covered with handsome gold-colored damask, was developed entirely in gold and white. An oblong plaque fashioned of Calla lilies, Shasta daisies and white roses, encircled with tall yellow tapers in siliver candlesticks, formed the central ornamentation. Beautiful Haviland and silver was used for the dinner service. A floral theme was also employed in the serving of the five-course dinner. The grapefruit, buried in a mound of green ice, flaunted graceful handles entwined with daisies. A floral note was sounded in each of the five delicious courses.

Fourteen guests were seated, including Miss Haas' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Haas, and Mr. Snyder's mother, Mrs. Charles Snyder of Bastrop.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Magnon will leave on Friday for a two weeks' motor trip in Mississippi, visiting along the gulf coast and in New Orleans and Morgan City. In Biloxi they will be the guests of their daughter, Miss Gladys Magnon, and guests in New Orleans of Mrs. Magnon's sister.

Joseph, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Moore, has resumed his studies at the Lida Benton school following an absence of several months due to illness.

'Now I Lay Me' Prayer Works Harm To Child

As a child you no doubt recited the prayer most children are taught in their infancy:

"Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray the Lord my soul to keep;
If I should die before I wake,
I pray the Lord my soul to take."

According to a well-known clergyman, this prayer should be absolutely tabooed, and in its place one should be taught that will carry a feeling of coziness and security—or one that gives assurance of a kind protecting power watching over children large and small. He talked about the apprehensiveness and fear created in the heart of a child by this time-honored prayer of early childhood.

Gladys Huntington Bevans, feature writer, said recently: "If you think about children it makes you unhappy to think of the thousands upon thousands of children who, through the years, have gone to sleep on the thought that they might die before morning and not see their mothers and fathers again—their pets, their toys and all the dear familiar things that mean happiness and sunshine and play and security."

"We who care and think and know something about children know that for the sake of the child's body and soul, to promote the sweet, relaxed sleep that 'knits up the raveled sleeve of care' which even little children often wear—to bring about the rest which brings health to the body, serenity to the mind, and poise to the emotions, we must try to see that our small ones, and our big ones too, go to that mysterious land of sleep happy and secure in the sense of being loved and protected. We accomplish this by giving them prayers which make them feel that a beneficent power watches over them. A prayer is bodly conceived which conveys the impression that a child needs to be guarded or protected from something evil during the night. It is most important that darkness—night—and sleep should be made to seem just one more pleasant, warm and friendly experience to a child."

For the young child the following prayer is ideal:

"Jesus, Gentle Shepherd, hear me,
Bless Thy little lamb tonight,
O Jesus, tender Shepherd,
I thank Thee for this day;
For friends and home and loved ones
I kneel just now to pray.

For the boy or girl a little older:

Father, we thank Thee for the night
And for the blessed morning light,
For rest and gladness and care,
And all that makes the world most fair;
Help us to do the things we should,
To be to others kind and good;
In all we do—in work or play—
To grow more loving every day."

Ancient Customs Observed By Brides Today Are Brought To Mind As June Draws Near

No doubt you have often wondered why June is regarded as the bride's month, why she wears white satin and why she enters the church to the strain of Lohengrin.

An authority on bridal customs tells us that June is always preferred by brides because it is the gayest month of the year. Flowers are blooming everywhere, gardens are knee-deep in beauty, and the whole world seems new. There is a sort of similarity between the change from spring to summer and a girl's becoming a matron.

The wedding party usually enters to Lohengrin and leaves the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March just because the tempo is convenient. Lohengrin's march is slow—just right for the entry; but faster music is needed for the recessional.

The bride's white gown is a symbol of purity; it is usually of satin because it always has been the formal court material and is regarded as the "Queen of Fabrics."

The veil dates from the ancient east where it was first worn to "hide the blushes of the bride." The ribbons in the bride's bouquet are a heritage from medieval England, when pieces of silk or lace were used to bind up the sprigs of rosemary worn at weddings.

Engagement and wedding rings have been used since ancient times as a symbolic tie band between the couple. Among some people the ring is a symbol of eternal union.

The bridegroom's best man and ushers are survivals of primitive man's "marriage by capture," when he strode to his bride's tent and dragged her by the hair to his own dwelling—with the aid of a few masculine friends.

The use of the canopy and a red carpet at the church and the strewing of the bride's path with flowers go back to an ancient superstition that dangers beset the bride, and that she must be protected overhead and underfoot.

It was felt that the bride would be unlucky if her feet touched the ground, hence the custom for the husband to carry his bride over the threshold of their new home.

Old shoes are a good luck token traceable to an old Jewish law which made the shoe the symbol of exchange; and the orange-blossom custom goes back to the early Saracens. Like rice, orange flowers represent fruitfulness in marriage. The Saracens so regarded them because the trees bear flowers and fruit at the same time.

Ancient Romans baked the first wedding cakes, but they were poor fare, being made only of salt, water and flour.

L. S. U. PILES UP 78 POINTS IN WINNING TRACK MEET

TIGER ATHLETES EASILY OUTCLASS 11 RIVAL TEAMS

Conference Events Featured By Showing Of Hardin And Neugass

By Kenneth Gregory
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

LEGION FIELD, BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 18.—(AP)—Louisiana State university's gallant band of athletes climaxed a spectacular season with further laurels this afternoon, thoroughly outclassing 11 southeastern conference schools to triumph by a one-sided margin in the annual track and field meet.

Slats Hardin

The Tigers from Baton Rouge, scoring in every event in which a contestant was entered and registering seven first places, collected a total of 78 points, exactly double those made by Alabama, which finished second.

Two records were broken and another equalled during the two-day meet, featured by the sterling performances of Glenn (Slats) Hardin of Louisiana State, who chalked up two first places, and Herman Neugass of Tulane, who duplicated the feat.

Neugass, a slender curly-haired youngster, cracked the 220-yard dash record during a qualifying trial, sprinting the distance in 20.9 seconds and wiping out the old mark of 21 seconds made by Sterling Dupree of Auburn in 1934. In qualifying for the finals of the 100-yard dash, the Green Wave speedster equalled the southeastern record of 9.6 seconds held by Perrin Walker of Georgia Tech.

The other record was shattered by Ted O'Neil of Louisiana State, who ran away from the field in the 880-yard run, finishing in 1 minute, 55.4 seconds, to clip two-tenths of a second off the conference mark made by Lehman of L. S. U. in 1934.

Hardin, one of the country's outstanding hurdlers and holder of the world 400-meter record, just missed equalling his southeastern record of 23.3 seconds in winning the 220-yard low hurdles finals in 23.4 seconds a short while before he left the field in his wake in the 400-yard dash, negotiating the distance in 47.2 seconds, four-tenths of a second slower than his present conference record.

It was a perfect afternoon and the track was lightning fast. Many expected Hardin and Neugass to establish new records in their chief events, but neither showed the hoped-for speed, although emerging victorious.

Neugass won Tulane's only first places, triumphing in the 100-yard dash in 9.8 seconds and barely nosing out Harry Anderson of Tennessee by a foot in a final spurt and leading the field past the finish line in the 220-yard dash in 21.7 seconds, as compared to his record-breaking 20.9 qualifying time.

Louisiana State's first places, aside from the victories of Hardin in the hurdles and the 440 and O'Neil's triumph in the 880, came in the javelin throw and broad jump, both of which were won by Nathan (Buddy) Blair, in the high jump, won by Kent, and in the two-mile run, won by Sanders.

Scores of other teams were as follows: Georgia, 21 1-2; Auburn, 20 1-2; Tulane, 15; Tennessee and Mississippi State, 14; Kentucky, 10; Georgia Tech, 8; Florida 5, Vanderbilt and Sewanee failed to score and Mississippi was not entered.

The University of Alabama collected three first places and three seconds. Hamp Lyons won the shot put with a toss of 46 feet, 3 inches; Kermit Riegels triumphed in the pole vault by clearing the bar at 13 feet, 1-2 inch, and the Crimson Tide ran away with the mile relay in 3 minutes, 23.1 seconds.

Don Hutson, Alabama's all-American football end competing on the track this season for the first time, closed fast in the 220-yard dash and was barely beaten by Neugass, less than a couple of steps separating them at the finish line. Edwards of Alabama was a close second to Spec Towns of Georgia in the 120-yard high hurdles, and Sheridan tied with McKenzie of Auburn for second place in the pole vault.

Georgia's squad annexed two firsts, Maurice Green winning the discus throw with a heave of 144 feet, 5 1-8 inches and Towns easily winning the 120-yard high hurdles. Harry Harmon finished second in the discus and high jump.

Davis of Mississippi State won the mile run under wraps in the good time of 4 minutes, 5 seconds, with Godbold of Louisiana State second. Carl Pihl, Auburn's captain who won this event last year, came in third.

In the javelin throw, Blair qualified yesterday with a toss of 195 feet, 9 3-4 inches. This mark was not bettered in the finals and first place went to the slender Louisiana State competitor. Stevens gave the Tigers additional points by finishing second with 191 feet, 11 1-2 inches. Later Blair added another first place in the broad jump, leaping a distance of 23 feet, 4 1-4 inches, considerably short of the conference record of 35 feet, 6 3-4 inches, made by Ed Hamm of Georgia Tech in 1928.

Alabama's relay team composed of [illegible] Kitchens, Doughty and Godfrey had little trouble winning this event and was clocked in 3 minutes, [illegible] seconds. Louisiana State, deciding at the last minute not to compete in this relay, holds the present conference record of 3 minutes, 21.3 seconds. The decision of L. S. U. not to run [illegible] relay came because of [illegible] O'Neil and Roberts had used up most of their energy in other events.

The University of Tennessee freshman relay team easily conquered Louisiana State's first-year quartet in the mile race to emerge victorious in the first annual meet for the conference frosh teams.

BEN FRIEND
JACK TORRANCE

Athletes who shatter records so completely as has gigantic Jack Torrance in the shot put ordinarily come along fewer than one per generation, but Louisiana State thinks it already has spotted the man to succeed Torrance, if anyone can, in 254-pound Freshman Ben Friend, from Biloxi, Miss.

By Quincy Ewing

BATON ROUGE, La., May 18.—(AP)—Who's going to succeed Baby Jack Torrance as world shot put record-setter?

Almost any track fan would be inclined to elevate the eyebrow at the mere suggestion that anybody would be needed to succeed Torrance—the fellow who in the last two years has upped the world 16-pound shot record by something like four feet, to the staggering mark of 57 feet 1 inch—in an event whose record had been improved by only two feet in 25 years previous to his arrival on the scene.

But track followers in these parts think a successorship to Torrance not only possible, but that Jack's alma mater, Louisiana State university, harbors the outstanding candidate for the job in 254-pound Ben Friend, a freshman.

Better As Freshman

A strapping youngster from Biloxi, Miss., Friend is a giant in his own right but still looks like a medium-sized man beside the 300-pound Torrance.

He's still developing, and at that is heaving the iron ball much farther right now than Jack did as a freshman, and Louisiana State's coaches believe he'll eventually come close to the champion's performances.

There's not so much difference between some of their important physical measurements, despite Torrance's greater maturity.

"Big Jack," who weighs 303 pounds, has a slightly shorter hand than Friend, measuring from heel to tip of the longest finger 8 5-16 inches to Ben's 8 3-4 inches. Jack's hand is slightly larger around than Ben's.

If He Improves—

Jack's shoulders are only an inch wider, but the differences are greater in other anatomical sections.

Torrance as a freshman pushed the shot only 40 feet in competition and 43 feet in practice, while Friend has done 47 feet in competition and 50 feet in practice.

In other words, Torrance increased his range a total of 17 feet in three years, hanging up a world's record of 57 feet 1 inch in 1934.

If Friend should do the same, adding 17 feet to his freshman minimum of 47, he'd turn in a mark that no fan dreamed was possible.

PELS WIN ANOTHER

NEW ORLEANS, May 18.—(AP)—The Memphis Chicks suffered their third straight defeat here today when Andy Messenger kept six hits well scattered and hurled a 3-to-0 shutout.

Boward forced in the first run with a base on balls with the bases loaded in the first. A two-bagger by Autry and Helf's single scored another run in the second and two-baggers by weatherly and Helf netted the other run in the seventh.

Memphis ....000 000 000—0 6 1
New Orleans .....010 001 10x—3 7 2

Boward and Powell; Messenger and Autry.

KELLY WINS SEVENTH

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 18.—(AP)—Harry Kelley, the old reliable, clicked off his seventh victory of the season here today as the Atlanta Crackers took the third game of the series with Nashville, 3 to 1.

The Vols' new first sacker, Buck McCormick, took over the bag formerly held by Manager Frank Brazill and got a double in three trips to the plate and handled 15 chances flawlessly.

Atlanta ....001 010 001—3 8 0
Nashville ....000 001 000—1 9 3

Kelly and Palmisano; Eiland, Gooch, Blaemire.

ROCKS WIN SERIES

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 18.—(AP)—The Little Rock Travelers hopped on Lefty Griffin for four runs in the first three innings here today, and won the third and deciding game of the series, 5 to 2.

Trapp, former Little Rock player, got three of Birmingham's six hits off Willoughby, and started the rally in the fifth which brought both Baron runs.

Score by innings:

Little Rock ....103 000 001—5 8 1
Birmingham ......020 000 000—2 6 1

Willoughby and Dickey; Griffin, Wilson and Epps.

MONROE MEETS ENGINEERS FOR SECOND PLACE

A battle for second place in the Ouachita Valley league will be fought when the Monroe Merchants and Sterling Engineers tie up on the Engineers' diamond this afternoon at 3:15 o'clock. Both the Merchants and the Engineers have won four games and lost three and are tied up for second place honors in the league standing.

While the Merchants and Engineers are trying to polish off each other, the Brown Paper mill aggregation, top-notch team of the loop, will be playing host to the fourth place Fairbanks club, and the tail-end Ruston club will be at Swartz.

The rejuvenated Monroe club, under the managership of Charlie Bruscato and Bob Avinger, player, does not expect to be stopped by the Sterlington nine this afternoon and plans to camp on the Brownies' trail until they have been overhauled.

The Brownies, however, still have a comfortable lead, although they received their first scare of the season Wednesday when the Swartz Carbon Blackers held them to a 1-to-1 tie in ten innings. In view of that "chiller," the Paper Makers are expected to handle the Fairbanks aggregation carefully this afternoon, while the invaders, gaining confidence after the showing the Carbon Blackers made against the leaders, hope to do what Swartz almost did.

The Monroe club is in good shape for today's battle, Manager Charlie Bruscato announced last night. The local batting order will be as follows: Bono, left field; N. Bruscato, shortstop; McClain, center field; Avinger, catcher; Trammell, second base; Myde or Fuqua, first base; Schoals or Young, third base; James, right field, and Demaron, pitcher.

U. S. BEATS MEXICO IN DOUBLES MATCH

MEXICO, D. F., May 18.—(AP)—Donald Budge and Gene Mako, youthful California doubles combination, slashed and drove their way to a straight-set victory over Alphonso Unda and Jose Llano today to qualify the United States Davis Cup tennis team for the interzone finals at Wimbledon later this summer.

The victory, gained by a 6-0, 6-2, 6-3 score, was the United States' third in succession over Mexico and clinched the American zone final series for the invaders.

Budge and Bryan Grant of Atlanta both had hung up straight set triumphs in the opening singles matches yesterday to get the United States squad away to a commanding lead. The final two singles matches will be played tomorrow although they can have no real bearing on the result.

Tomorrow's matches will send Grant against Daniel Hernandez and Budge against Esteban Reyes.

MAJOR LEAGUE BATTING MARKS TAKE BIG DROP

Walker Tops American Loop And Vaughan Heads National List

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP)—Tumbling averages of the leading major league batsmen during the past week left Floyd (Arky) Vaughan of Pittsburgh holding the National league lead today only because his rivals suffered almost as much as he did from the hit drouth and a newcomer, Gerald Walker, of Detroit, heading the American league list.

Walker, who missed a lot of the early action, wasn't listed as a "regular" a week ago but he swung into action at a good pace and built his average up to .433 after Friday's games. Meanwhile Jimmie Foxx of the Athletics, former pace setter in the junior circuit, made only two hits in nine times up and dropped off 21 points to .328 and thrid place, his teammate, Bob Johnson, held onto second at .391 as he held his loss to one point.

Vaughan suffered the biggest loss of any of the leaders, dropping from .455 to .398 with eight hits in 31 trips to the plate. He maintained a big lead in the senior league, however, as his leading rivals took drops of 20 to 31 points. Pepper Martin of the Cardinals, registering one of the few gains among the leaders, took second place at .354, moving up from seventh. He gained 14 points with 12 hits in 32 times at bat.

Records of the first ten regulars in each major league follows:

(NEA Service Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, May 18.—When Jesse Terrill Hill ankled into the St. Petersburg training camp of the New York Yankees this spring, he put this tag on himself:

"If I fail to make good this season, I'm through trying. I've been knocking around for five years, and if I'm not ready now I never will be. I'm finished with minor league baseball. There is no future in it."

To date, there is no reason why the 175-pound Hill should pack his bags and return to the Corona, Calif., high school, where he is the general athletic coach. Frankly, however, the principal reason for this is that the Yankees are acutely shy of outfielding talent.

Hill, playing left field, is hitting only .254. Going over the averages, that may turn out to be a respectable mark unless the powers that be decide to put a shot of jackrabbit in the ball again. Hill is lightning fast, has a fine arm, but is weak on ground balls.

Whether he clicks or flops as a major leaguer, Jesse Terrill Hill always will live among college men. He is one of America's outstanding all-round athletes.

With the Yankee's Newark farm last season, Hill played the entire schedule. He hit .349, being first with 205 hits, and one shy of tying for the stolen base championship with 24.

All-Round Athlete

Hill was a senior at the University of Southern California when Bill Essick, Pacific coast scout of the Yankees, picked him up.

Hill had played fullback for remarkable Southern California football teams for two seasons before Essick saw him. He had starred on the track team, among other things, winning an I. C. 4-A. running broad jump, with a mark of 23 feet 5 1-8 inches.

When Essick got wise to Hill he believed that the young man was a football and track luminary who suddenly had taken to baseball. This is why Hill is known as Bill Essick's synthetic ball player.

As a matter of fact, Hill played third base for the Corona town team three or four years before he entered the University of Southern California. The reason he did not play baseball for the Los Angeles institution was that he was in there on its peculiar football and track scholarship and did not go out for baseball until he had exhausted his eligibility in football and track.

The University of Southern California baseball coach stationed Hill at third base when he finally got hold of him in his senior year.

The reason that Jesse Terrill Hill now is an outfielder with the Yankees is that he broke all the windows in the vicinity of short right field at Bovard field, Los Angeles, trying to throw out runners as a third baseman.

If he makes good as a major leaguer, it will be strictly because he is a grade A competitive athlete. He was not endowed with too much latent baseball instinct. He is a football player and track man at heart.

Track Training Aids Chances

As a member of the Yankees this season he has value far beyond that of an ordinary recruit. At least two Yankees, Ben Chapman and Frank Crosetti, have come to learn the value of track as applied to baseball. Hill has been their post-graduate professor along this line.

Hill was cut out to be a college athletic coach and has priceless background in having been taught by two of the finest coaches in the history of athletics—Howard Jones, in football, and Dean B. Cromwell, in track.

Hill was born at Yates, Mo., Jan. 20, 1907. He weighs 175 pounds and stands 5 feet 10 inches. He bats and throws right-handed.

His biggest asset as an outfielder is that he can run a country mile to get a fly ball.

Hill is a strong, silent man. Recently 15 hard-boiled New York baseball writers interviewed him in a body. When they had finished they put their heads together and were forced to come to the conclusion that they knew no more about Hill than when they started.

Jesse Terrill Hill is just a football and track man trying to get along in baseball. Everybody who knows him hopes that he makes good.

Monroe Streets Peopled With Women Of Zeal

Resourcefulness, Patience And Sacrifice Has Placed Business Women In Front Ranks Of Every Activity

With the passing of the years, Monroe has spread her wings and her tentacles. Streets in every direction are peopled with men and women of zeal, strength, resourcefulness, patience and sacrifice. As the city has grown and prospered so have her citizens grown in tenacity of purpose. Prominent among the citizens who have kept abreast of the times are the business and professional women of this city.

The fullest, the richest experience for a woman is a career. You hear about sacrifices for fame. You hear about giving up the things that belong to a woman. But it is all nonsense—old-fashioned. There is nothing greater than having each day filled to the brim—nothing more stimulating than to find work piled upon your desk each morning. We feel sure that every business and professional woman in our city today for the annual convention would die without her work. If she is a successful business woman we venture to say she has never dragged herself out of bed in the morning and between stifled yawns exclaimed, "Oh, just another day."

We realized last night at Lakeside Country club where the banquet was held for visiting delegates and guests of the Business and Professional women's club that the old type of business and club woman has passed completely out of the picture. In place of the severe, spectacled woman with hair drawn back from her face and clothes of the mannish type, we have a company of well groomed, beautifully marcelled and charmingly gowned women who radiate happiness and good cheer. Their fingers are on the pulse of the nation and they are gloriously alive to the opportunities of today.

We are reminded to-day of the club woman's creed:

Keep us, O God, from pettiness;
Let us be large in thought, in word, in deed.
Let us be done with fault-finding and leave off self-seeking.
May we put away all pretense and meet each other face to face, without self-pity and without prejudice.
May we never be hasty in judgment and always generous.
Let us take time for all things; make us to grow calm, serene, gentle.
Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straightforward and unafraid.
Grant that we may realize it is the little things that create differences, that in the big things of life we are as one,
And may we strive to touch and to know the great, common woman's heart of us all, and
Oh, Lord God, let us not forget to be kind!

LITTLE THEATER WILL PRESENT PLAY AGAIN

The Monroe Little Theater play, "Hay Fever," which scored a signal success in its presentation last Tuesday night under direction of Mrs. Blanche G. Oliver, will be given again Monday night at the Central grammar school auditorium. Insistent popular demand for a repetition of the play, following its initial production, led the Little Theater board of directors to authorize a second presentation. A large proportion of the local public which did not see the play on its first offering urged that it be given again.

The same cast which cleverly interpreted the lines of "Hay Fever" last Tuesday night will appear in the offering Monday night. Miss Lallage Feazel, who scored a great triumph a week ago, will play the lead, and will be assisted by Cora Mae Calder, James Cavaness, Mrs. Edith Townes, Mrs. O. N. McNeil, Herman Chapman, John Daniel and Mrs. Walter Rhodes. The stage settings, which contributed to the success of the original production, will also be used again.

ATHENS GIRL WILL EDIT LOUISIANA TECH ANNUAL

RUSTON, La., May 18.—(Special)—Jean Craighead of Athens has been selected as editor-manager of the 1936 Lagniappe, Louisiana Tech annaul, by members of the faculty committee on student publications and accounts.

Miss Craighead will be a senior next year. She is a member of the Kappa Delta sorority and this year has been society editor of The Tech Talk.

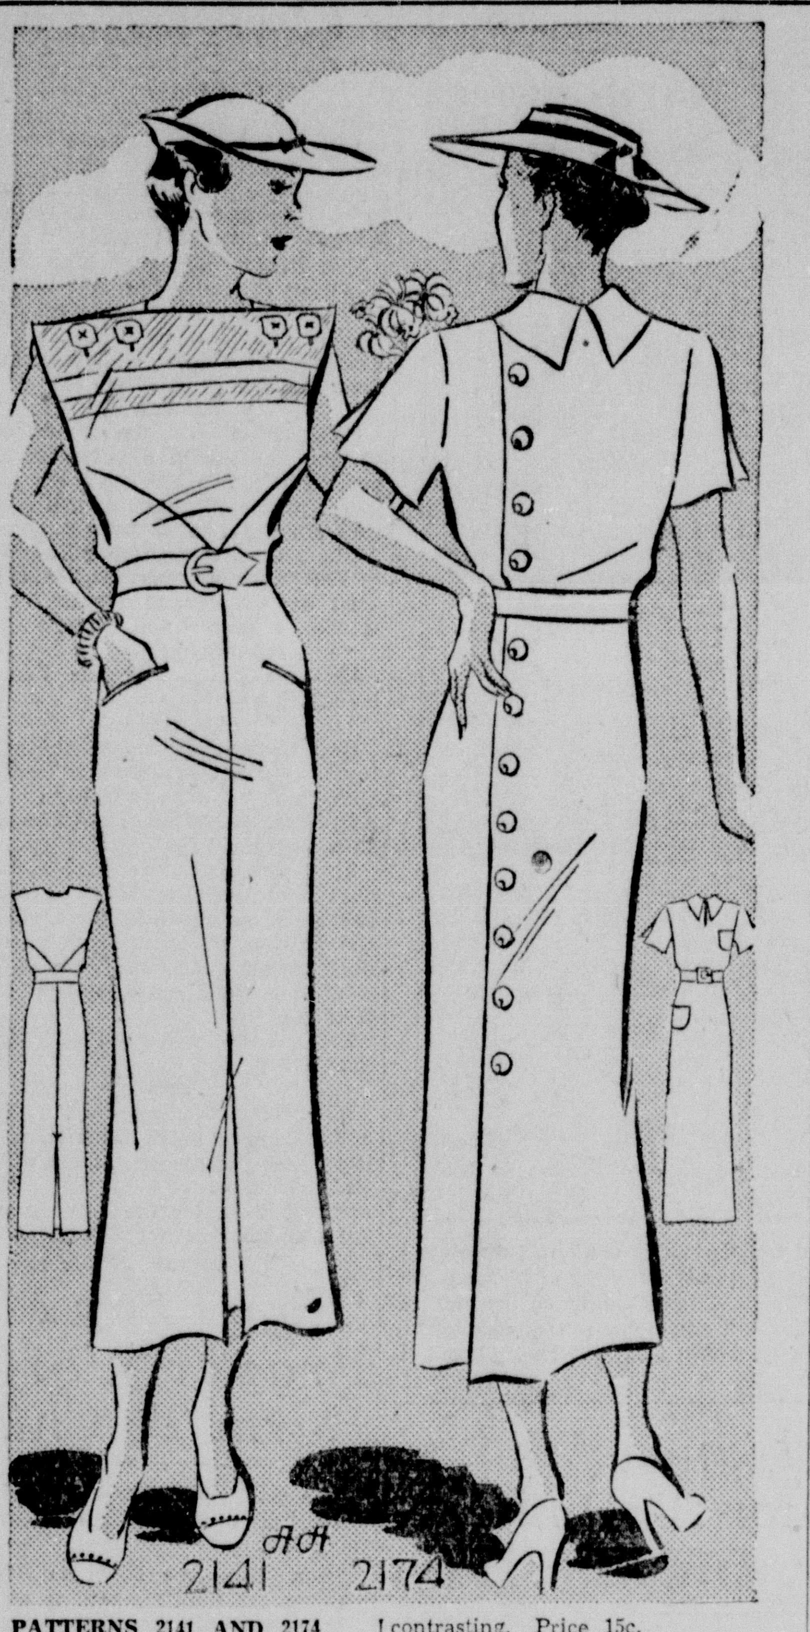
Plan To Defeat The Heat



PATTERNS 2141 AND 2174

The wise girl plans right now for the heat wave that's sure to come. Start with pattern 2141 because it's just about the simplest pattern you could pick for that nautical blue and white linen. The navy blue bands finish off the simple bodice with a note of crisp finality. Then choose white buttons with a blue star motif. Looming high on the fashion horizon is pattern 2174 with naively simple front and smart simulated back closing. But the buttons are real—real smart too, in brilliant contrast. Sports silk, shantung or linen are your best bet!

Pattern 2141 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 takes 3 1-4 yards 36 inch fabric and 1-4 yard contrasting. Price 15c.

Pattern 2174 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 3 1-4 yards 36 inch fabric. Price 15c. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Anne Adams pattern, THIRTY CENTS (30c) for both. Write name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

AND NOW . . . ANNE ADAMS SUMMER PATTERN BOOK IS READY! Between its covers, forty pages of fascinating fashion facts lie ready for your eager eyes to devour! Everyone's problem is solved . . . everyone from the bride with trousseau troubles . . . the matron with weighty problems . . . the much "dated" junior deb . . . tiny tots at play . . . And everyone on vacation! Not only will your every stitch be a smarter one, but you'll find you've developed a new smart point-of-view after digesting the absorbing special features! CHAPTER XIX

Vera Duchene whirled, regarding Millicent with eyes that were suddenly cold, hard and viciously vengeful.

"What are you doing, snooping around here?" she asked.

Millicent said, "I wasn't snooping. I came to warn you of something."

"Well, what was it?"

"This isn't going to be an ordinary investigation," Millicent said. "There are elements involved which are going to cause trouble. If you didn't get in until a late hour this morning, as you started to say, you'd better tell the police so now, because otherwise they'll check up on you."

"And what makes you think I didn't get in until this morning?"

"Because you started to say so down there at the table."

"And you came all the way up here just to tell me that?"

"Yes."

"Baloney!"

"All right. Why did I come up here?" Millicent demanded angrily.

"You came up here to snoop because Jarvis Happ has been suspicious of me ever since I started to work for his wife. Go back and tell him that his spying didn't work."

"Don't be too certain it didn't work," Millicent said. "I saw what you threw in the closet."

And with that, she turned around and banged the door angrily behind her.

She ran down the corridor and sought her own room, trying to analyze her conflicting emotions. Had she really gone to the room to spy on Vera Duchene?

Suddenly she realized that she had. She was suspicious of Vera Duchene, had been from the moment she had seen her. There was about Vera Duchene a suggestion of that power that some women wield over men, applied selfishly and consciously to advance their own ends.

Vera Duchene had been out the night before. She had returned early in the morning. She, then, must have been the one who had driven the sedan Millicent had encountered when leaving Felding's room. Had she also been the one who led Harry Felding on the chase which ended in his death?

Was Vera Duchene the woman in the black ermine coat?

Millicent could not, of course, be certain, but she did know that the form and figure of Vera Duchene were similar to the form and figure of the woman who had worn the black ermine, and the single swift glimpse Millicent had had of the woman in the tea room had shown her a cold, gray eye—scheming, hard, wary and watchful.

Vera Duchene's eye could well have taken on such an expression. Millicent, her self, had seen those eyes change. They had been filled with alluring invitation when they rested upon the officer. Then, later, when Millicent had entered her room and had glimpsed what apparently was a black ermine coat Vera Duchene was flinging in the closet, the eyes had become cold, hard, glittering and vengeful.

And where would Vera Duchene, a lady's maid, have secured the wherewithal to get an ermine coat? Or, rather, having interested someone sufficiently to secure an ermine coat, why should she continue to work as a maid?

Millicent determined that she would keep Vera Duchene in mind, and would pay closer attention to her comings and goings.

There was a discreet knock at the door.

"Who is it?" Millicent asked.

"Winton, the butler," said a mournful voice.

She opened the door.

The butler stood in wooden-faced dignity upon the threshold.

"The master would like to have you report to him in his study," he said. "And did you hear about the murder?"

She smiled up into his professionally lugubrious countenance and said, "I understand that the chauffeur was killed by bandits."

"He might have been killed by bandits," the butler said, "and then again he might not. You see, he must have borrowed Master Robert's car, run out of gasoline and walked home, but the police can't find the keys to the car.

"Master Robert is careless about his keys at times. He left all of his keys in the car—not only the keys to the car, but the keys he carries to the house and the garage."

"Well?" asked Millicent.

"If Harry Felding had left the car and locked it, where the police found it, he'd naturally have left the keys in his pocket."

"Perhaps he put them some place when he got to his room," Millicent said.

"I beg your pardon, but that's impossible," the butler said with mournful cadence. "He was killed just as he entered the room. Someone either had been lying in wait for him or had been robbing the place and was surprised."

"Why should anyone try to rob a chauffeur?" Millicent asked.

"That's the question—why should they? That's what the police want to know."

"Well," Millicent said, 'you'll have to excuse me. It's nothing I can speculate about. If Mr. Happ wants me, I must go at once."

Reluctantly the butler turned away. After he had gone a few steps, he paused and said, "Did the police question you?"

"They wanted to know where I was last night," she said.

He nodded.

Moved by some sudden inspiration, Millicent went on rapidly, "Were there visitors in the house last night, Winton?"

"Visitors?"

"Yes, you know—anyone other than the family and the servants?"

He hesitated a moment, then stepped nearer, lowered his voice, and almost whispered, "Mrs. Happ had a woman visitor last night."

"Did you see how she was dressed?"

"I'm sure I couldn't tell you that. She wore a black fur coat. That was all I saw."

"An ermine coat?"

"I don't know just what you'd call it. I happened to be passing Mrs. Happ's suite and I heard voices. I thought she'd called to me, so I knocked on the door and opened it a crack. A woman was standing there, wearing a black coat. The collar was turned up about her ears. I didn't see any more. Mrs. Happ called to me in a sharp voice to close the door and get away from there."

"Does Mrs. Happ have a black fur coat?"

"No, ma'am. Her fur coat is a brown, mink I believe. And then she has a white fur coat—it's Russian ermine I think."

Millicent made a mental note that the butler knew more about this woman in the black ermine coat than he had told her. Undoubtedly he knew that the woman had called upon Mrs. Happ before, but Millicent had no time to follow up the subject.

She walked rapidly down the hall to Mr. Happ's study, knocked at the door and in response to his "Come in," opened the door and entered the room.

Jarvis Happ, looking very grave, was seated at his desk. He nodded and said, "Sit down, Millicent. I want to ask you some questions."

She dropped into the chair, suddenly feeling that peculiar psychic commotion which Jarvis Happ's magnetic personality and keen, peering eyes always caused.

"Dick Gentry was in your room last night," he said.

She flushed and started to make an indignant denial.

"No, no," he said, "don't misunderstand me. I mean he accompanied you to your door with the suitcase."

"Oh, yes."

"What did he say at that time?"

"How do you mean?"

"You know what I mean," he told her, with gentle but firm insistence. "He told you something he didn't want me to hear."

"What makes you think that?"

"Because of the look on his face when he left this room. Because of the look on his face when he emerged from your room."

"Perhaps," she said, "it was confidential."

"You shouldn't keep secrets from your employer."

"Perhaps it was one of those propositions a man sometimes makes to a woman, a proposition he doesn't mean exactly, but which he holds out as a glittering promise for the purpose of securing some temporary advantage."

"Such as?" Happ asked.

"Need you ask?"

"Yes," he said, "because I think this was an advantage that had something to do with me personally."

"I gathered," she said slowly, "that there was something in the books he was afraid of. After all, Mr. Happ, I'm working for you and I should be loyal to you. I didn't want to make the accusation directly, but since you've asked me I've told you."

He got to his feet, nodded, and said, "Come on, we're going down and take a look at those books right now. They're in your room?"

Fortunately she did not have to answer the question. Happ acted on the assumption that they were. He led the way down the corridor.

She opened the door of her room.

"In the closet?" he asked her.

She nodded dumbly.

Happ opened the door of the closet stood there looking about him in frowning concentration.

"I don't see any suitcase here," he said.

She peered over his shoulder.

The dummy suitcase had disappeared.

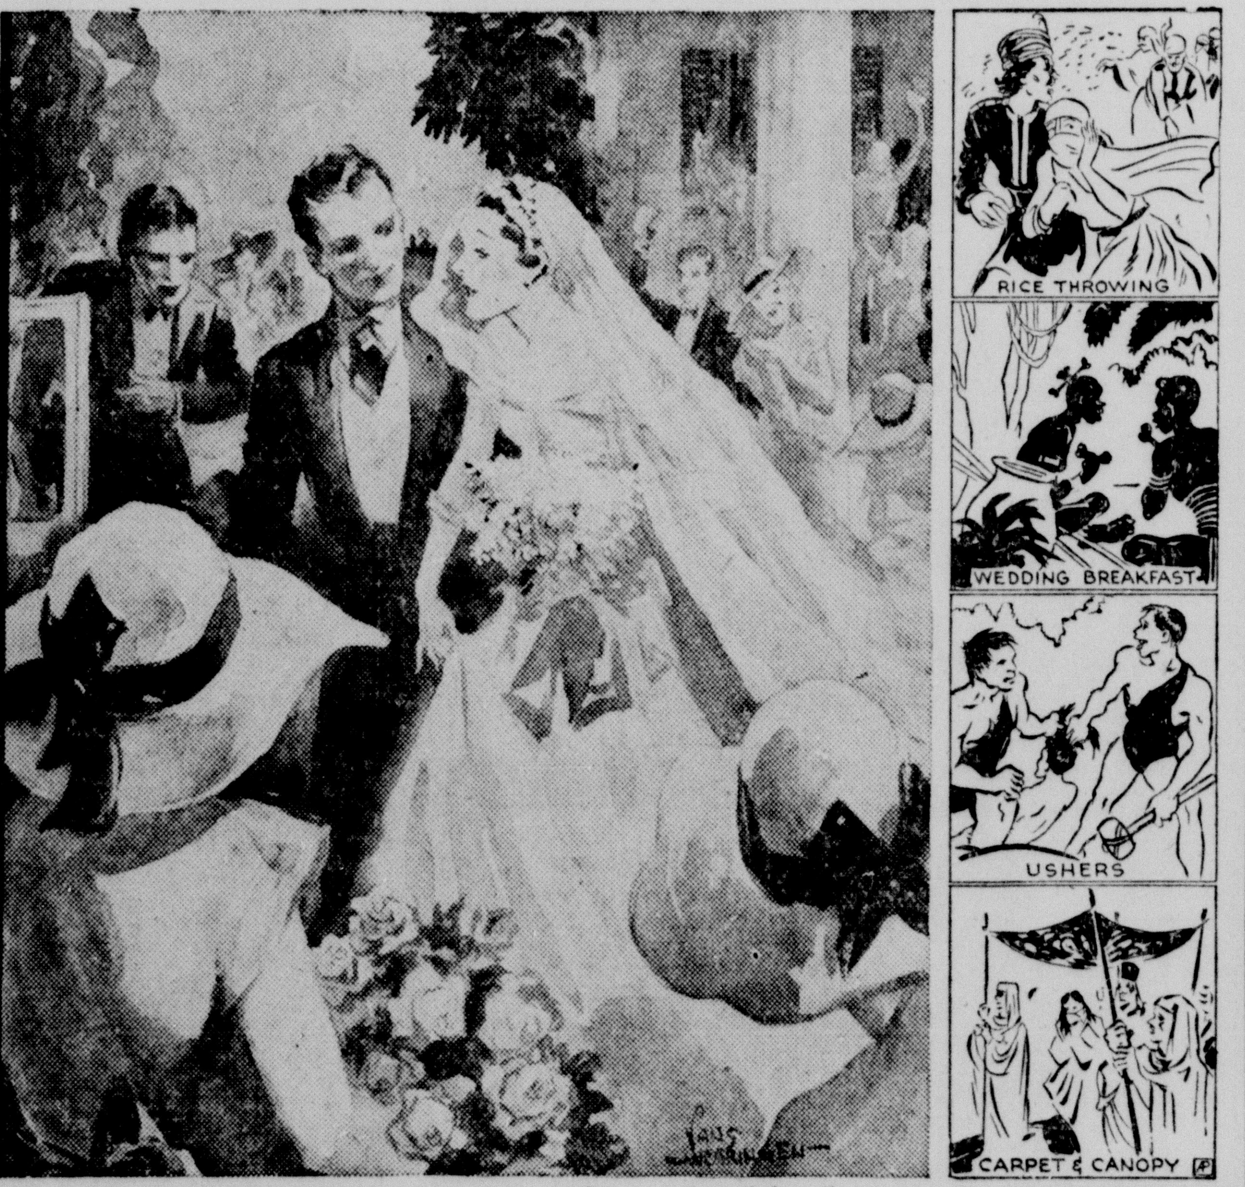
June Brides Will Find Ceremonies Still Ancient Custom Hodge-Podge



When June brides trip to the altar this year, it will be another little milestone in the survival of scores of ancient customs. The throwing of rice and old shoes, the wedding breakfast, the custom of having ushers and a best man, even the business of having a canopy and carpet at the church—all are survivals of customs from many lands.

By Mary Elizabeth Plummer

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP)—With June, "the month of brides," around the corner, the question arises, where did all the bridal customs begin?

Why can't the bride wear lemon blossoms? Why not throw an old stocking after a newly married pair instead of an old shoe? Why not have wedding pie instead of cake?

Most of our bridal traditions came from other countries and had their origin centuries ago; and although they're a hodge-podge, most of them have definite meaning.

Throwing of rice, for example, expresses a wish that the newly married pair will have children. The first nuptial rice-throwers were Persians; but other ancient countries threw cereals on their brides for the same reason.

A pleasant variation of the rice-throwing custom, once practiced in some countries, was to empty a plate of shortbread on the bride.

Wedding breakfasts began with the savages. It was part of their marriage rite for the bride and bridegroom to eat together.

The bridegroom's best man and ushers are survivals of primitive man's "marriage by capture," when he strode to his bride's tent and dragged her by the hair to his own dwelling—with the aid of a few masculine friends.

The use of a canopy and a red carpet at the church, and the strewing of the bride's path with flowers go back to an ancient superstition that dangers beset the bride, and that she must be protected overhead and underfoot.

It was felt that the bride would be unlucky if her foot touched the ground. Hence the custom for the husband to carry his bride over the threshold of their new home.

Instead of strewing the bride's path with flowers, some countries strew it with emblems of the bridegroom's calling. A carpenter's bride walks on shavings, a butcher's bride on sheepskin, and a blacksmith's bride on scraps of old iron.

Old shoes are a good luck token traceable to an old Jewish law which made the shoe the symbol of exchange; and the orange-blossom custom goes back to the early Saracens.

Like rice, orange flowers represent fruitfulness in marriage. The Saracens so regarded them because the trees bear flowers and fruit at the same time.

Ancient Romans baked the first wedding cakes, but they were poor fare, being made only of salt, water and flour.

KELLY AND STECHER HEADLINE DOUBLE MAIN EVENT

BEARDED MATMAN ALSO FEATURED ON STADIUM CARD

House Of David Entry To Meet Swede Holmberg, Ex-Grid Star

A double main event program, featuring Ernest Kelly and Joe Stecher in a scientific match and presenting a bewhiskered husky and a former football star in the other, has been booked for the weekly wrestling show at Roosevelt stadium next Wednesday night, Promoter Charlie Bruscato announced yesterday. Bruscato said he believes Wednesday's card will be the most spectacular ever presented at the stadium.

The bearded performer is Leo, of the House of David, and he weighs 240 pounds. The former football star is Oscar "Swede" Holmberg, who was an outstanding player at Fordham university during the golden regime of the late Major Frank Cananaugh.

Leo and Holmberg are newcomers here, and it will be the policy of the stadium in the future to provide new faces as often as possible, Promoter Bruscato said. Leo is said to be quite tough and his best hold is a right to the chin. He wears his beard and hair long as is common among members of the House of David. Holmberg won many wrestling honors during his college career. Following his graduation from Fordham, where he received a degree in chemical engineering, Holmberg found he could make more money in the mat game, and he's been at it since 1930.

The return match between Kelly and Stecher, however, is expected to overshadow the other affair, no matter how spectacular the first bout may be. The two have met here twice before, with Kelly taking the decision the second time after they had wrestled to a draw the previous week. The second match, however, wasn't a fair test for Stecher, because he was injured in the third fall just as he appeared to have the Tennessee lad on the run.

Stecher returned here last week and defeated Nick Elitch for the right to meet the popular Kelly. Wednesday night there will be a $25 bonus for the winner, according to Bruscato, and with the added incentive, the two youngsters should put out. Bruscato also announced that the stadium title will be at stake.

Both Kelly and Stecher are strictly scientific performers. According to Bruscato, Stecher has advised him that he'll be more cautious when he meets Kelly again. Joe was hurt when he went hurtling through the ropes as Kelly ducked a flying tackle, but the Nebraskan declares he won't make the same mistake twice.

Kelly is confident of beating the long-legged Stecher again, Bruscato said. Although it was an accident that cost Joe the decision two weeks ago, Kelly refuses to admit that Stecher had any the better of it while they were in there.

In view of the fact that it's a double main event program, each match will have a two-hour time limit. Both bouts will be best two out of three falls.

Bruscato said last night that a capable referee will be imported to handle the big show.

Blanton And Whitehead Will Join Elite Group If They Win 20 Games This Year

By John Stahr
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP)—Two freshman 20-game-winning pitchers in one season—one in each league?

That seems, indeed, to be the bright prospect that has turned the attention of both big leagues squarely on two rookie pitchers this season—Darrell Elijah "Cy" Blanton of the Pittsburgh Pirates and John Whitehead of the rampant Chicago White Sox.

Before the season was a full month old each of these sensations had produced five victories to top their respective leagues in games won and had satisfied all who came to see them pitch that they had the stuff to justify their low-hit performances.

Now 20-game-winning pitchers are rare enough in this day and age of large mound staffs and liberal use of relief hurlers, and fellows who can come up with 20 victories in their first season under the big top are naturally still scarcer. That's why talk of Blanton and Whitehead dominates all the baseball gabfests nowadays.

Alex Was All-Time High

Speculation as to just how far these newcomers will carry their first-season spurts more or less automatically puts them into some very fast company indeed, for if they crash the 20-games lists they can rank, in that respect at least, with such as Grover Cleveland Alexander, Wesley Cheek Ferrell and Vernon Lefty Gomez.

Alex, of course, with his 28 victories and 13 defeats for the Phillies when he broke in 'way back in 1911, has the all-time record for first-year victories. He turned out to be quite a pitcher, as his National league record of 696 games hurled in the 20 years from 1911 through 1930—several of them 30-games-won years—and his five years' leadership in earned run averages would indicate.

The two latter-day luminaries, Ferrell and Gomez, each carded 21 wins his first full year in the big show, Ferrell with Cleveland in 1929, Gomez with the Yanks two years later. Ferrell—whose current comeback may well be a sensation—went on from there to record four straight years of better than 20 victories each, while Gomez turned in 24 wins in '32, 16 in '33 and 26 last year, when he led American league hurlers in practically everything.

'Twas Dean, Curtis in '34

Last season the National league had the two prize pitching finds in Paul Dean and Curt Davis, each of whom copped 19 victories, though Davis, hurling for the lowly Phils, had to surmount more difficulties than the younger Dean, flinging for the champion Cards. Dizzy Dean broke in with 18 for the Cards his first season, 1931.

Just letting the figures speak for themselves on the first four weeks' work of the Messrs. Blanton and Whitehead.

CHISOX SHADE RED SOX

BOSTON, May 18.—(AP)—After being held scoreless and to three hits in eight innings, the league-leading Chicago White Sox put on a five-hit rally in the ninth to nose out the Boston Red Sox 3-2 today.

ONLY 44 ENTERED IN WOMEN'S GOLF MEET

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 18.—(AP)—Keen competition in the Women's Southern Golf tournament was indicated today as a field of some 30 entrants shot practice rounds at the Louisville Country club.

Among those entered were Miss Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., a slight favorite here to take the title; Miss Betty Jameson of Dallas, the 1934 winner; Miss Dorothy Kirby, Atlanta; Miss Lily Harper, Portsmouth, Va.; Mrs. Mark McGarry, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Mrs. David Gaut, Memphis; Miss Margaret Smith, Birmingham; Miss Virginia Williams, Houston; Mrs. Willard Johnson, Louisville; Mrs. J. T. Priddy, Richmond, Va.; Mrs. R. E. Winger, Fort Worth; Miss Elizabeth Steele, Lexington, Ky.; Mrs. Dan Chandler, former Texas champion and this year's Mexico titlist; and Miss Edna Saenger, Louisiana.

When the entries were supposed to have closed at noon today, only 44 including 13 local women had been recorded. As a result, the tournament committee extended the deadline to 9 o'clock Monday morning. A special effort is to be made to increase the field.

Medal play in the qualifying round will be held Monday.

LIST OF SCHOOL MARBLE CHAMPS GROWS RAPIDLY

Four More Titleholders Announced; Others Near Completion

The list of marble champions is growing by leaps and bounds. Today we give you the names of four new school champions, and you can bet they'll all be in there battling for the grand prize because they all defeated some sharpshooting rivals.

The new champs are Mayer Armstrong, of Waterproof school; Joe Kalil, of Georgia Tucker school of Monroe; Rex Harmon, of Crosley school of West Monroe, and C. M. (Mack) Ritchie, Jr., of Mound school.

And it won't be long now until details are given out concerning the parish and district tournaments. This information will be forwarded to the various supervisors of games at the schools, and also will be published in The World and News-Star.

In reporting Mayer Armstrong's victory at Waterproof, Miss Zula Pullin, who had charge of the tourney there, wrote:

"I have enjoyed the tournament so very much, as well as did the contestants. The final game was a 'knock-out.'"

And Miss Mabel Bittick, who supervised the Crosley school tourney, had this to say:

"In the last report we told you four boys refused to give up their chances for the marble championship. We have a little different news this time—three game little fighters really waged a battle and offered some interesting competition to our winner. The boys who played in the finals were Alton Cooper, Rex Harmon, Willie Lee Sandifer and Loy Scarborough. Rex and Loy came out as winners in their respective matches. Then a real battle ensued. After three rapid games, the score of two to one gave Rex the crown."

And, according to Miss Ruth M. Thomas, who had charge of the games at Mound, the competition was equally as spirited.

"The games were great and keen interest and excellent shooting was shown," Miss Thomas wrote.

From Fort Necessity comes word that the elimination games are about completed. J. L. Parker, who is supervising the tourney there, reports lots of interest down there. Important games have been won by Sam Gilmore, Jesse Frank Peoples and Tom Pollard.

"The heat of competition is intense," Mr. Parker wrote, "and much enthusiasm has been shown in the marble tournament. Eliminaiton games are well under way. We are going to send our marble champion to the national tournament."

And there's a real challenge, fellows. Mr. Parker says the Ft. Necessity champion is going to win that trip to Gulfport, and then hop an airplane for Ocean City, New Jersey, where the national championship will be held. Do you think he will?

The plan for the next elimination games is as follows:

Each parish comprises a district. The cities of Monroe and West Monroe will be divided into four districts, and that includes the Louisiana Baptist Children's home and the Louisiana Training institute. Schools in Ouachita parish but outside Monroe and West Monroe also comprise a district. If any one school has entered in a parish, that school's champion also is the parish titleholder. However, that's the case in only rare instances. Each parish or district champion will be awarded a gold medal and will be eligible to enter the grand finals to be held in Monroe about the middle of June.

Dates and other information concerning these next games will be published soon. All the school champions haven't been selected, and supervisors are urged to have their final school games played before the end of this week.

NORTH CAROLINA SQUAD WINS SOUTHERN CROWN

DUKE STADIUM, Durham, N. C., May 18.—(AP)—For the third straight year a well-balanced team from the University of North Carolina today won the Southern conference track and field championships here.

The team scores were: North Carolina 58, Maryland 49 3-4, Duke 47 1-2, Clemson 20 1-4, Virginia 19 1-4, Washington and Lee 10, Virginia Military institute 8, Virgina Polytechnic institute 63-4, N. C. State 5 and South Carolina 1-2.

Grover Everett, versatile trackster of Virginia, was individual high scorer and ran a beautiful race in the 220-yard low hurdles to set a new record at 23.6 seconds, one-tenth better than the mark set in 1933 by Brownlee of Duke.

SPRING FLOWER

Starting out with the same batting punch that kept him at the top of the American league heap for several weeks in early 1934, Rollie Hemsley, above, St. Louis Browns' catcher, is leading the junior loop's batters a merry chase. The playboy of the Browns is battling Jimmy Foxx for swatting honors.

Bobby Jones Says

Beyond the suggestion that the swing should be felt to originate in the center of the body, in order to get the backward windup started, little has been said about the handling of the body-weight during the backswing. Now we must see how the location of the player's center of gravity can affect his ability to direct his full power against the ball.

5-19

Fault In Foot, Leg Action

This is a fault whose root can immediately be located in the feet and legs. Giving the culprit the benefit of any doubt, we will assume that he began from a good address position, with his weight apportioned equally to his two feet, the toes of both turned slightly outward, and the ball located about opposite the instep of the left foot. But when he began to move, he bent his left knee stright out over the toe of his left foot, and so moved almost all of his weight over upon that leg.

Now, if we look at the correct method, we can visualize the movements which have brought this player to a good hitting position at the top. Notice where the pressure is upon the feet—on the inside of the toe of the left foot, and on the outside of the heel of the right. Since the weight was already back of the ball at the start there has been no shift either way. But in turning the right knee has moved back and the leg has been twisted slightly toward the right, while the left knee has described an arc of a circle in the same direction. This player is back of the ball and can move into his stroke instead of being faced with the horrible necessity of falling away from it as he attempts to hit it.

Body Turn Adds Power

From the starting position described, the proper wind-up consists only of a simple turn, the upper body rotating, about an inclined axis extending from the top of the head to the base of the spine. The left shoulder has not been raised or lowered except by so much as may have been caused by the inclination of the axis upon which it turned.

An ample backward wind-up by bringing into service the great muscles of the hips and back, immeasurably increases power without calling forth a noticeably greater effort. It is because he neglects to draw upon or mis-uses this source that the average golfer finds his drives yards behind the expert even when he hits them squarely.

By HARRY GRAYSON

Many great athletes are rank imitators.

Babe Ruth copied Joe Jackson's pigeontoed stance with both toes dug in, and became the most powerful batter in the history of baseball. The Bam saw how Jackson got his body in back of his tremendous smashes, and practiced until he could do the same thing.

Al Simmons mimicked Ty Cobb even to the swagger. Although he swats from the opposite side, the Milwaukee Pole has all of the Georgia Peach's mannerisms at the plate.

Jake Powell, Washington's new centerfielder, aped Goose Goslin even to the waddle and the arms spread out like wings in chasing flies. They'd be hard to tell apart if Powell didn't hit from the right side of the plate. Powell looks likes Goslin even to the prominent nose, and has done such a good job of impersonating the Jersey Jarrer that they call him Little Goose.

Jack Hayes worked on Lou Fonseca's wrist action with such fine results that he is hitting .368 this spring.

Johnny Whitehead, the new White Sox star, never saw Walter Johnson or Cleveland Alexander work, but patterned himself after their velvety style of which he had read.

Jack Dillon Put Ideas Into Dempsey's Head

Jack Dempsey first got the notion that he could win the heavyweight championship while serving as a sparring partner for Jack Dillon in Brooklyn. Dillon was preparing for the slaughter of Frank Moran.

Dillon obtained the jump on the bigger fellows and held it with the speed of his punches. Dempsey got it into his head that he could do the same thing, and realized that he would have the advantage of being a larger man than the Hoosier Bearcat.

Joe Gans was Benny Leonard's model. Leonard was the only fighter that I ever saw clip his socks at the tops of his shoes. I asked the famous lightweight about it.

"I read that Gans did that," explained Leonard. "He said that in going 45 rounds, as he did, water and perspiration in the top of the socks made the feet slightly heavier."

Along about the year of the exposition, a Greek youngster paid 50 cents for a gallery seat in the San Francisco auditorium to see Stanislaus Zbyszko. The young Greek peered intently from his perch 'way up there in the shadows.

The Greek still does everything just as the elder Zbyszko did them, even to the little bow in each direction as he enters the ring. He may not be as good a wrestler as the Pole, but he is a far better actor. His mat name is Jim Londos.

Jones Copied Vardon's Overlapping Grip

Golfers watch one another as closely as football coaches.

Bobby Jones copied Harry Vardon's overlapping grip with the v's formed by the thumbs and the first fingers pointing to the shoulders. Olin Dutra patterned his rhythmic swing after that of MacDonald Smith. Lighthorse Harry Cooper drives a lot like Walter Hagen used to—with a wide stance. Johnny Goodman putts like Jones. And so on down the line.

Harry Kipke, the Michigan coach, is a keen student of Percy Haughton. The Michigan system—"a punt, pass, and a prayer"—was employed at Harvard by Haughton years ago. Like Haughton teams, Kipke's kick and wait for the breaks.

Football men stick closer to their original teachings than any other class of athletes. Products of the better coaches usually reflect the work of the men who taught them. Rockne and Warner men, in particular, stick to the way the masters did it.

After all, there are worse formulas than following in the footsteps of men who met with great success.

'Monster Woman' Brought To Life In 'Bride Of Frankenstein'

Strange Pair Of Lovers In Thrill Film

Karloff Heads Cast Of Weird Drama Playing At Paramount

For this grotesque man and woman are unnatural creatures built up from parts of dead bodies—human beings, undoubtedly, but in reality grisly products of the graveyard! Burial crypts are robbed by a fanatical pair of half-mad scientists, crazed by their terrible experiments in actually creating life. A great laboratory on a hillside, filled with advanced electrical appliances, is the scene of their labors, and it is here that success crowns their efforts.

It was in the original "Frankenstein" that Karloff, "the Monster" of the story, was brought to life at the height of a crashing electrical storm, and in this sequel detailing his further adventures a mate is created for him in the person of Elsa Lanchester. Never before, it is said, has the screen shown scenes of such tremendous excitement as when the woman is brought to life. The storm rages and howls and flashes of lightning illuminate the interior of the great laboratory, already filled with darting flames and exploding balls of white smoke. The booming of the electrical apparatus rivals the crashing of thunder above, and the climax comes when the operating table bearing the lifeless form of the woman is lifted by long chains into an opening in the lofty roof, exposed to the fury of the elements. The electrical apparatus leaps into a final bedlam of explosions and brilliance and further impulses are brought down from huge kites at the end of copper wires, flying high in the very midst of the flashing lightning.

The "Monster Woman" is quickly lowered to the floor of the laboratory, and the trembling scientists swiftly unwrap the bandages in which she is encased. A finger moves, and she opens her great starring eyes. She's alive.

But a still greater climax is to follow, and the picture comes to an end on a high note that leaves the audience shaken and gasping.

Hollywood Close-Ups

By DAN THOMAS, NEA STAFF WRITER

A costume ball!

Naturally a city that is perennially on parade, Hollywood glories in an opportunity to abandon ordinary clothes in favor of brightly colored costumes for such occasions. And it doesn't make a bit of difference whether the party is a private affair or is staged for a scene in a picture. The same gay atmosphere prevails.

The scene was supposed to be a swanky affair given by New York's "Four Hundred" for hospital charities. The stage had been converted into a "circus night club"a huge ballroom with a sawdust ring and large circular slide in the center of the dance floor.

Miss Harding was wearing a simple but elegant black evening gown. Maureen O'Sullivan, her appearance completely changed by a white wig, was attired in a white Pierette outfit. Herbert Marshall and Louis Hayward, the other principals, wore a Pierrot garb and a tight-fitting harlequin costume, respectively.

As is the case on most large sets, there was much activity, but very little was being accomplished. Long delays, necessitated by camera and light setups and rehearsals of the players, separated each "take." But unlike the usual procedure, extras didn't wander off the set to play cards or amuse themselves in other ways during the long waits.

The spirit of the scene seemed to engross them so much that they actually were having a good time despite the hundred or more powerful lamps which cast a burning glare on them.

"Quiet, everybody, we'll try it once," called Director Edmund Goulding as I walked on the set.

James Wong Howe, Holywood's only Chinese cameraman, took his position behind the camera mounted on a huge crane that could be swung from one side of the set to the other.

After a few quick orders about changing certain lights slightly, he announced he was ready.

"Action!"

"Cut!"

Gouding beckoned Miss Harding and Hayward off to one side to explain a change in their action which he thought would improve the scene.

A dozen or more pretty girls attired in urses' costumes climbed to the top of the slide and came down in chains. A few were afraid to slide alone and all screamed with glee as they descended.

Well-dressed extras, who sat at the elaborate bar during the scene, begged the bartender for something to quench their thirst. He responded by drawing forth a real champagne bottle—and pouring out ginger ale! That's always substituted for champagne in pictures.

Movie moguls are afraid their players wouldn't work so well if given the real stuff.

A pretty blond wearing a costume made from strips of cellophane hurried over to a mirror to repair her makeup. She's supposed to be Lady Godiva in the picture. But censors insisted that she be a modest Godiva.

Tied just off the set, and a terrible temptation to extras with cigarets, was an enormous cluster of colored balloons to be dropped on the dancers at the proper time.

"All right, we'll try it again." That was Goulding's voice. The extras came to life, found their partners, and took their designated places on the dance floor.

The same scene was to be shot over again.

Four days were spent filming this sequence. It will run about five minutes in the finished picture.

Runyon Film Plays Today At Capitol

'Hold 'Em Yale' Is Termed Outstanding Laugh Attraction

Though you might suspect from its title that "Hold 'Em Yale" is another of those football pictures, you're very much mistaken if you do so, for football plays a very minor part in the production.

As a matter of fact, what "Hold 'Em Yale" is, is a picturization of Damon Runyon's quaint Broadway slang on the screen—a process in which none of the quaintness, none of the hilarity of the original stories is lost.

"Hold 'Em Yale" is the story of such amiable characters as Sam the Gonoph, Louie Liverlips, Sunshine Joe and a few other such Runyon Broadway types. It's the story of Clarice van Cleve, a dizzy little wisp of a blonde with a yen for any male in a uniform, and of her father, who pays off theater ushers, policemen and chauffeurs to keep his daughter from running off into matrimony with them.

When "Georgie the Gigolo," the smooth pal of Sam the Gonoph, Louie Liverlips, et al, discovers Clarice's weakness, he invests in the snappiest uniform he can buy, and begins paying suit.

Clarice is bowled over, and Georgie sees his way clear to fame and fortune. But when Clarice's father disinherits her, Georgie's ardor cools, and he ducks out, leaving his companions to Clarice's none-too-tender mercies. She begins trying to make gentlemen out of these tough muggs and they try to marry her off to a college football player, that being the only way they can think of to get rid of her. What follows is the maddest, craziest denouement you've ever seen.

Splendily acted by Patricia Ellis, Larry Crabbe as the football hero, Cesar Romero as Georgie the Gigolo, William Frawley, Warren Hymer, Andy Devine and George E. Stone as the Broadway muggs, and George Barbier as the father, "Hold 'Em Yale" is indeed the comedy classic of the season.

DUTIES ARE ASSIGNED BY 'FOLK SCHOOL' GROUP

JONESBORO, La., May 18.—(Special)—Several assignments of duties were made at the meeting of the Jackson parish "Folk School" council Tuesday. The gathering was called for the purpose of making defnite plans for the school, which will be held in Jonesboro July 31-August 2.

Miss R. V. Clayton and Mrs. John Dennis were chosen to take charge of the art and music department. A publicity committee, consisting of Thurl Walker, chairman, Mr. Moss of Chatham school, Mr. Clark of Quitman school and Mr. Kemp of Eros school, was appointed. Rev. J. L. Dodge, Leon Mitchell and Rev. G. A. Morgan were selected to arrange for an inspirational program for the school. S. Kirkland and Morrell were chosen to make arrangements for participation in the school by Boy Scouts of America.

The council decided to go to Rayville May 20 to discuss with the Richland Parish "Folk School" council detailed plans for the organization of the Jackson parish school. The Richland parish school has been in operation for three years.

RUNYON COMEDY AT CAPITOL

GREAT MUSICAL SHOW

The Baroness Cassini is intrigued by the gay Paris Revue star who gives such a fescinating impersonation of her husband, Merle Oberon, Walter Byron and Maurice Chevalier in "Folies Bergere," 20th Century's sparkling screen musical, released through United Artists and showing at the Paramount Theater for two days, Thursday and Friday.

Local Man Among Sailors Imprisoned In Submarine

M. W. Howell Tells Of Thrilling Experience Under Ocean

Caught in the so-called "Sailors' Hell Hole" in an undercurrent of waters in the Pacific off San Francisco, the U. S. submarine F-I was held captive like a chip on the sea. Its mechanism was powerless to cope with conditions. This was back in 1915; and when almost certain death stared the 18 members of the crew in the face, one of the number turned on the high pressure air blast and saved the lives of himself and his comrades.

All this is past and gone, yet few if any know that one of the 18 men, M. W. Howell, of 2917 Richmond street, Monroe, is one of the group. He is a man possessed of much modesty and dislikes to talk of his past experiences.

Howell, a Mississippian by birth, entered the navy in 1911 and traveled around the world. Listed among his experiences was a trip on the U. S. S. Perry, torpedo destroyer, which went to Alaska and other ports. Later he went into training for submarine work and was ultimately assigned to the F-I.

Shortly after his assignment, his boat was unwittingly caught in "Sailers' Hell Hole," the bane of all nautical men, for it marks the place, tradition says, where many years ago a ship loaded with gold was sunk with cargo and men and no trace was ever found of either. For some unaccountable reason, the ocean seems to possess violent undercurrents which no ship can withstand.

On the day in question, the F-I was precipitated into the vortex of these currents. All of a sudden the mercury blew out and depth gauges were suddenly destroyed. Steam gauges constructed so as to register only 250 feet were instantly put out of commission and as nearly as could be estimated the submarine went down to the incredible depth of 363 feet, which has possibly not been equalled before or since.

Men with faces blanched were unable to bring the boat under any control. Minutes seemed hours as men thought of their wives, families and sweethearts safely on land. But one veteran member of the crew possessed knowledge that others did not have. He turned on the high pressure air blast, of which there were 12, possessed of 2,200 pounds pressure. Like a gun of large size being discharged in a closed room, there was what seemed a terrific blast and instantly the craft tore loose from its entangling currents and began to rise like a shot out of a gun. To the surface it catapulated and even plunged above the surface of the waves.

The day had been saved and all hands still lived. The heroic treatment almost completely ruined the boat, rendering machinery useless and even the sides of the submarine were sprung and bulged out badly.

Once on the surface of the water, the boat lay helpless until some hours later the crew was towed into port.

Later the captain of the F-I was court martialed after an investigation of the accident had been conducted. The boat was rebuilt at a cost of $12,000 but it was later wrecked by accident.

Mr. Howell has had many exciting experiences before and during the World war in which he served in the navy. He has souvenirs consisting of parts of the Guyer, German gunboat interned by the Japanese at Honolulu. One of these is a steam gauge indicator. This and other souvenirs are carefully preserved in his home and one his somewhat unique houseboat which he maintains on the Ouachita river here.

Screen Life In Hollywood

By Hubbard Keavy

HOLLYWOOD.—An extraordinary father-and-son association, that began during the son's babyhood and continued as the boy grew up, ended when death took the father—Jack Coogan, Sr.—in a motor accident the other day.

While the elder Coogan was still in vaudeville, young Jack usually traveled with him, since father and mother were members of different acts. When young Jack became a screen star, his mother was his business manager and his father was his constant companion, on and off the set.

Jack saw as much of his mother as the average child does, but, due to the nature of their work and their great love for each other, father and son were in each other's company more than the average father and son. Friends say Jack wasn't spoiled, when he realized his importance in the world, because of his father's careful training.

Lesson For Jackie

When he completed "The Kid," Jackie was already a personality but not as famous as he later became. One day in a drugstore with his father, Jackie stepped over to the crowded soda fountain. Waiting to be served, he became impatient and began pounding the marble.

Getting the unimpressed clerk's attention, he said:

"I want a soda. Do you know who I am? I'm Jackie Coogan."

His father took a step to the boy's side and asked Jackie to repeat his remark. Jackie did. The father swung him around on the stool.

"Never, as long as I live, let me hear you say a thing like that again or I'll thrash you within an inch of your life. Who, in heaven's name, cares who you are? Get off that stool."

So far as anyone knows, Jackie never sinned again.

Golf Sticks And Guns

The elder Coogan's two hobbies were golf and hunting. Naturally, young Jack learned about both at an early age. It is said he was playing golf with his father when he was six and that, at seven, he knew how to handle a gun. It was while returning from a hunting trip that Mr. Coogan, Junior Durkin and two others were killed.

In his years of trouping, Father Coogan had seen many child actors and he knew how easy it was for them to become vain. In the early days of Jackie's success, his father never gave him spending money outright. Instead, he paid Jackie 50 cents for every movie "gag" he put on paper, which was about once a week. If the gag Jackie devised could be used in the picture, he was given $1. This method of making the boy "earn" his spending money proved very effective.

LEGION AUXILIARY MEETS

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., May 18.—(Special)—The May meeting of the Lake Providence chapter of the American Legion auxiliary was held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. C. A. Rose. Plans for the observance of annual Poppy Day May 25 with a sale of the flowers were completed. The auxiliary will be assisted in this event by the junior members. A committee was named to conduct a delicatessen sale for the organization on June 1. Mrs. Gene Fant Cohron, secretary, reported the emblem displayed by the auxiliary in the flower show won second place.

Sugar production in Cuba this year is more than twice that of 1934.

Cotton

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, May 18.—(AP)—Cotton futures today fluctuated narrowly in quite dealings and at the close of the two hour trading period prices were five to seven points net lower for the day.

A firm tone developed at the opening with initial bids 1 to 6 points above the previous close, but the steadiness failed to hold and prices began to ease.

Evening up of commitments for over the week-end and other routine business made up the major part of the trading.

At the finish July sold at 12.00, October at 11.80, December at 11.85 and January at 11.89.

Most traders remained on the sidelines and outside interest was almost totally lacking for the time being.

The weather forecast for the period ending May 25 predicted local showers in the east, central and western gulf states and parts of the western plains area.

Temperatures were expected to hold around seasonal averages.

Exports today were 13,214 bales.

New York

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP)—Cotton turned easier today under week-end liquidation and foreign selling. Fluctuations, however, were somewhat irregular owing to a further readjustment of differences between old and new crop positions. The market closed steady at a net decline of 4 to 10 points with July selling off from 12.19 to 11.99 and closing at 12.04.

Cotton futures closed steady, 4-10 lower.

New York Stocks

By Victor Eubank

(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP)—The stock market continued to back-track today as infation-minded traders, less sure of their position, took further profits. A few specialties bucked the trend, but the close was rather heavy. Transfers approximated 600,000 shares.

The fact that the activity shrunk perceptibly on the decline was helpful to bullish prognosticators. Also, it was pointed out, a technical correction was overdue. Hopes were expressed that the so-called "healthy" reaction would put the list in shape to resume its upward journey.

Grains sagged largely on news of better crop weather. Cotton was hesitant. Bonds were highly irregular, as were leading foreign exchanges. Sterling again pushed higher as continental funds moved toward London.

Shares of Columbia Pictures exhibited renewed strength with a gain of some 4 points. The company's nine-months earnings statement showed profits of $8.62 a share, about double those of the previous similar period. Peoples Drug declared an extra dividende of 25 cents, although the stock failed to do anything. Howe Sound got up a point, but the other metals were listless. National Distillers and other alcohols were steady. Aside from Public Service of New Jersey, which was off 1, the utilities were narrow.

Losses of around 1 to 2 points were suffered by U. S. Steel, Case, Chrysler, General Motors, American Agricultural Chemical, American Sugar Refining, International Business Machines, Air Reduction, Allied Chemical, Corn Products, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Union Pacific, Delaware & Hudson and Santa Fe.

The motors ignored estimates of automobile production for the week ending today which placed the total at 89,760 units compared with 87,395 last week and 75,550 in the corresponding week last year. Another increase next week was expected.

The financial sector appeared to be no longer in doubt that the administration was not talking with a wink regarding its disapproval of the Patman fiat money bonus bill. Announcement that the president would personally read his veto message to a joint session of congress brought conjectures as to whether he might take this occasion to say something on currency stabilization and further clarify the government's monetary program.

In line with this idea, brokers were interested in recent visits of British economists and financial analysts. Most of these, it was said, are bullish on American stocks and believe that if and when dollar stabilization is brought about a huge volume of European funds will seek outlet in the market here.

INDUSTRIAL--REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES

SALE OF SAVINGS CONTRACTS JUMPS

Living Protection Provided In Convenient Plan By Syndicate

By J. R. Matthews

(State Manager, Investors Syndicate)

During the first quarter of 1935 the sale of living protection contracts by the Investors Syndicate and Investors Syndicate, Ltd., of Canada, showed an increase of 110% over the same period in 1934. This is just a continuation of the substantial increase shown in 1934, which was the largest shown in 1934, which was the largest year in the entire forty-year history of the Investors Syndicate.

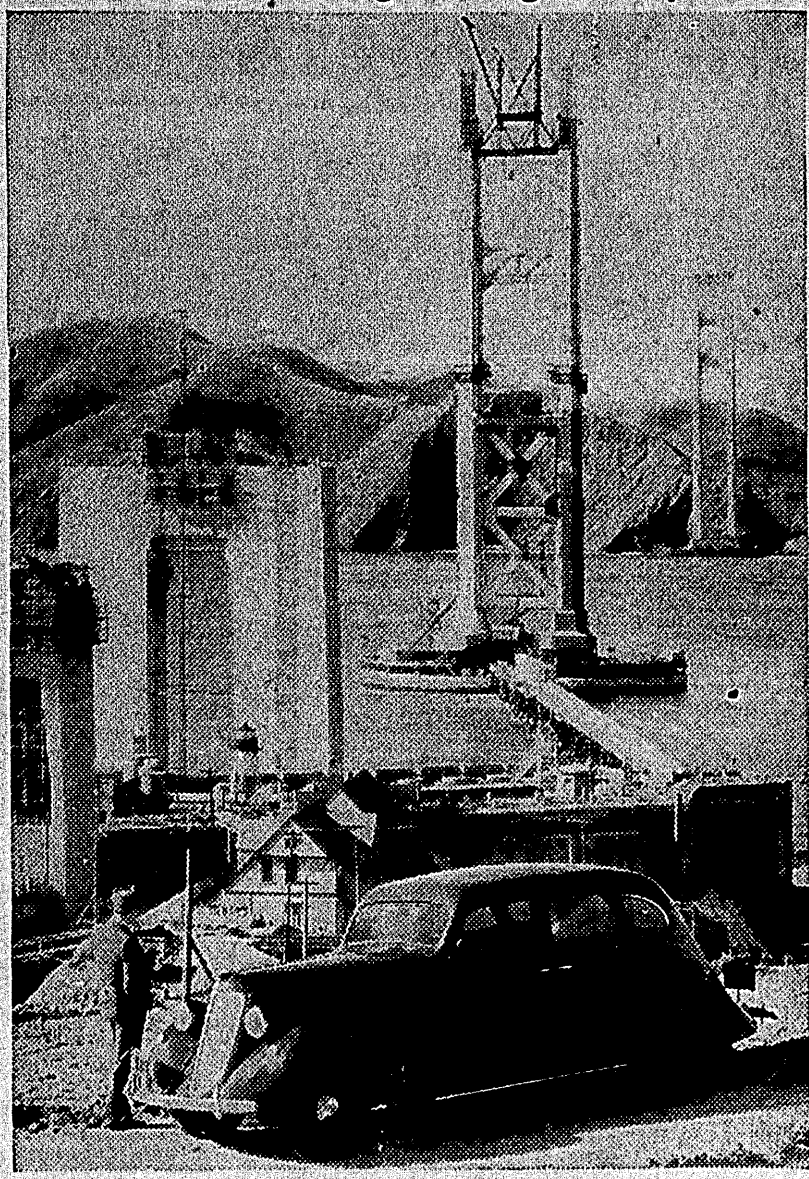
The need for living protection is possibly no greater today than it was twenty or fifty years ago, but people are more conscious of that need, and they are doing something about it, as our business shows. The depression has taught us things, one of which is, that our responsibility to ourselves, and to those dependent upon us is just as great if we live as it is if we die. We know today that we cannot "trust to the future" for money to educate our children, to protect our business, and to take care of us when we can no longer work and earn. We must build up cash reserves against these certain demands of the future by systematically setting aside part of our income as it is received. This is living protection.

During the lean years of the panic of 1893, the founders of Investors Syndicate observed everywhere the vital need for a new form of protection of his living requirements. As a result, the Investors Syndicate was established in 1894, with resources of $2,600.00. It has had a consistent growing an increase in resources every year, regardless of economic conditions. December 31, 1929, these resources had grown to more than $32,000,000.00. During the past five depression years they have increased from $32,000,000.00 to more than $62,000,000.00. During the same depression period the Investors Syndicate has paid its clients more than $40,000,000.00 cash. These thousands of checks, ranging in most cases from one thousand to ten thousand dollars, went into thousands of homes throughout the United States, at a most opportune time. A substantial amount of the money represented by these maturity checks is compound interest. For example, if all payments are made as originally planned, a check for $5,000.00 represents approximately $36,000.00 principal, the remaining $1,400.00 being compound interest. After the incentive is established, the habit of saving is early formed. We advocate saving a few cents of every dollar earned—not as a passing episode—but as a mode of living. Most of the people to whom we deliver maturity checks admit freely that: "I doubt if I would have had a dollar of this money if I had not started this systematic program."

The Investors Syndicate is well and conservatively managed and is the oldest and largest company of its kind in the world. Its Louisiana office is in the Canal Bank building.

A dry onion powder, for use in catsup, canned soups, and similar products, is now on the market.

Two Modern Engineering Triumphs



● Triumphs of modern engineering genius are the new $35,000,000 Golden Gate Bridge at San Francisco and the 1935 Aeroform Nash sedan shown in the foreground. When completed in 1937, the bridge will have a span of 4200 feet, longest in the world. The towers rise 750 feet, the distance between the bridge deck and the water level will be 250 feet, providing ample clearance for even the super-liners now under construction by France and England. The X-bracing principle employed in the bridge towers is also a feature used to give Nash chassis frames their strength and rigidity.

SAFETY PIN CUTS DOWN ACCIDENTS

Method Used As Symbol In Pontiac's Campaign For Safety

A safety pin has been put to work to reduce the number of motor car accidents: to save the lives of innocent children: to conserve property damage and personal injuries.

"The ordinary safety pin is something that is familiar to all of us," said Dewey Harbour, service manager of Union Motors, Inc.

"It was chosen as the symbol of the Pontiac Safety Drive for that very reason.

"Somehow, when we read of motor car accidents in the papers, particularly on Monday mornings when the week-end returns are in, the realities seldom come home to us. People killed and injured—wrecks piled up—pedestrians hurt—and yet, since we ourselves are safe and secure, we tend to fall into the belief that we'll always be so.

"Well, the figures don't bear out this assumption. Every year the number of accidents and deaths has been increasing, and this in spite of the greater safety that has been built into the cars themselves.

"In order to cooperate with the Safety movement which is attaining such large proportions, we have been inspecting free, for all motorists, the five safety factors which are all-important in keeping a car safe to drive.

"The Safety Pin, which we use as a symbol, should be a reminder to the car owner to drive safely in a car that's safe to drive. We all see enough safety pins to have that reminder driven home often. If we're reminded often enough, we'll acquire the habit of safe driving, and thus do our share toward reducing the terrible annual accident toll."

ALUMNI HOLD MEETING

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., May 18.—(Special)—At the final meeting of the Carroll Parishes unit of the Louisiana State Normal College Alumni association until next fall, Ashley W. Warlick, superintendent of schools of East Carroll parish, delivered the principal address. He spoke on "The Value of the Teacher." Miss Mary Mims, rural sociologist of Louisiana State university, and Miss Alexina Disch, West Carroll parish home demonstration agent, also contributed to the program with talks. The gathering took place in the auditorium of Lake Providence high school.

OLDSMOBILE SETS ALL-TIME RECORD

April Is Best Month In History For Deliveries Of New Cars

Setting a new all time record for retail sales in a single month, Oldsmobile delivered more cars in April than during the first four months of 1934.

The new peak was 18,554 cars, a substantially greater number than was delivered in the previous all time record month, March of this year. In the final ten days of the month Oldsmobile dealers delivered 6,272 units, an increase of 87 per cent over the corresponding period of 1934.

Retail deliveries for the year reached 51,916 on April 30, almost three times as many as in the first four months of last year.

A new all time production peak also was reached in April, when 20,311 cars were built and shipped in this single month. This was greater by 11 per cent than the previous monthly production record established in March.

From January 1 to April 30, 64,557 Oldsmobile have been produced as compared with 26,309 a year ago.

"The demand for Oldsmobiles continues to grow as the motoring public finds out what we mean by 'the car that has everything,'" said D. E. Ralston, Oldsmobile vice president and general sales manager, in announcing the April figures.

"In the final 10 days of April Oldsmobile dealers sold within three cars of the total number shipped to them.

"Dealers report that the beauty of the car and the presence of knee-action wheels super-hydraulic brakes, ride stabilizer, and other comfort and safety features, continue to be large factors in Oldsmobile's 1935 success."

To meet the new problem arising because of dust storms in the southwest, Oldsmobile is equipping all cars shipped into the areas most affected with oil bath air cleaners.

During the terrific sand storms which have swept the southwest states, dirt has been drawn into the lubricating systems of cars not so protected with the result that bearing surfaces are subjected to excessive wear by the abrasive formed of dirt and oil. This has meant decreased bearing life, decreased gasoline consumption and increased oil usage.

Examination of oil used less than a week, in cars not protected by special air cleaners, shows it to be filled with fine particles of dust.

With the new Oldsmobile oil bath air cleaner this condition is overcome. A sump in the lower portion of the cleaner is filler with oil. As air is drawn into the cleaner it passes on through the regular cleaning channel and into the carburetor.

Frequent cleaning of the sump, particularly during and after storms, is advised by Oldsmobile engineers. In this way the air is thoroughly cleaned and danger of motor trouble in even the worst of sand storms is minimized.

A study of samples of oil taken from cars which have operated in the southwest during the storms without special protection showed large quantities of dirt in every ounce of oil.

Through the use of a special oil bath air cleaner such as employed by Oldsmobile, all this dirt would have been trapped in the sump, Oldsmobile engineers pointed out.

NEW MODELS OF NASH CAR SHOWN

Companion Car To Present Nash Line To Be Introduced Here

Declared by those who have seen it, to incorporate more significant engineering improvements than any manufacturer has introduced on a new model in the past several years, the newest product of the Nash Motors company, a companion car to the present Nash line, will make its first public appearance here in the salesroom of Benoit-Nash company during the week of May 18.

Except for the fact it will carry the Nash name and will be priced between the company's present LaFayette and Nash Advanced Six, no definite information concerning the new car has been released to the public as yet by Nash officials. It is understood, however, that in developing this new automobile Nash engineers have achieved signal success with a principle that may revolutionize future automotive design.

It is reliably reported the engine used in the car is the most compact yet employed to power a production automobile and that it presents a radically different appearance from engines in current use. Other information establishes amazing operating economy as a result of the new design, while the expense of engine maintenance has been reduced considerably due to the greater accessibility of motor parts.

According to H. H. Benoit, who saw it at a recent meeting held in Kenosha, Monroe motorists are certain to receive the new Nash with enthusiasm.

WEAVER-ROGERS

TALLULAH, La., May 18.—(Special)—H. S. Weaver and Miss Connie Rogers, both of Tallulah, were married at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Sevier Thursday, the Rev. L. A. Materne, pastor of the Tallulah Baptist church, performing the ceremony. The couple left immediately for a trip to New Orleans. Mr. Weaver is manager of the Tallulah club and his bride operates a beauty parlor here. They will reside in Tallulah.

ALASKA REPORTS REPAIRING GAINS

Noteworthy Accomplishment Recorded By Land Of Midnight Sun

JUNEAU, Alaska.—Modernization volume throughout Alaska continued to show a noticeable increase during March, according to reports of the Territorial director. Total work reported to date amounts to $370,000.

Ground was broken here recently for construction of a $40,000 store and apartment building. The structure will be three stories high, with accommodations for two stores on the ground floor and modern apartments on the second and third floors.

Work has just begun on a $150,000 power-distribution plant for the Alaska Juneau Gold Mining Co. The project includes construction of several small dwellings.

A $75,000 airport is being built here by the Pacific Alaska Airways a subsidiary of the Pan-American Airways. This project also calls for the construction of several small homes.

Modernization activity is also reported on the salmon-packing industry. During the past week $20,000 was expended in improving packing plants at Cardova. Other plant improvements are under way at Taku Harbor, Craig, Waterfall, Wrangell and Ketchikan. The extent of this work has not yet been determined. Other outstanding modernization projects in Alaska include a $25,000 store and apartment building at Peterburg, a $25,000 swimming pool and recreation building here, and a $50,000 apartment building at Nome. Several other commercial and industrial improvements are being considered in other parts of the Territory.

Reports have reached the Territorial director that there is a crying need for new home and apartment construction here, in Ketchikan, Fairbanks and Nome. A demand is noted among the citizens for insured mortgage loans. Action is awaiting an adequate architectural set-up.

"QUALITY MARKED"

The spirit of the day is to improve, and to improve is the spirit of progress. You see it in homes, you see it in stores, you see it in factories and office buildings. It is just as true of your property in buildings, regardless of their shape, size or use, that simple improvement and modernization will afford you new advantages and greater opportunities. Whether you decide to improve your buildings inside or out, or both, three definite benefits are immediately acquired. First, your property increases in value. Second, its modern appearance creates new appeal and exacts more appreciation from friends, customers and prospective tenants. Third, its conveniences to occupants are increased, making way for extensive savings to you in operating costs.

We invite you to call on the following yards in the Twin Cities of Monroe and West Monroe to inspect our material and satisfy yourselves as to its high quality.

STUDENTS ENLIST IN ESSAY GROUP

Pupils Eager For Awards To Be Granted On Better Housing Theme

WASHINGTON, D. C.—High school students from every state of the Union are enrolling in the National Educational Better Housing contest, according to reports received by the Federal Housing administration.

Thousands of boys and girls, according to reports, are engaged in writing essays on "Better Housing and the Home," which are to be presented in both oral and written form—the winners, a boy and a girl, to go on the air over a coast-to-coast hookup.

In some places entire cities have entered the contest under the direction of the head of the school system. In the state of Texas, Dr. Will French, district superintendent, has presented the contest to the 47 high schools in his territory. This represents nearly 31,000 students who are eligible to enroll in the contest.

Erie, Pa., has enrolled eight high schools under Superintendent of Schools John C. Diehl. In California, Jay Keegan, associate director of the Federal Housing administration, has enlisted the support of the superintendent of high schools of San Francisco, John C. McGlade. Seven high schools have been entered in the contest by Mr. McGlade.

Regional directors, state directors, associate directors, and the field staff of the Federal Housing administration, as well as chairmen of better-housing program committees, are lending enthusiastic support to the contest. Through it they see an opportunity to focus the attention of the coming generation of home owners on housing conditions in their own communities. A sufficient diversity of topics has been allowed so that city, suburban, and farm homes may come under discussion. In this manner an important stimulus can be given toward raising individual standards of living and toward improving housing conditions through civic projects.

Cash prizes and gold medals will be awarded national winners. The contest is sponsored by a national industrial committee.

FHA BOOSTS BUSINESS OVER FORTY PER CENT

NEWARK, N. J.—The Paramount Home Improvement Corporation, operating in eight Eastern and Middle Western states, reports that it has financed not less than $75,000 worth of business through the Federal Housing Administration, according to Thomas E. Colleton, Associate Director of New Jersey.

Ernest Kohlsaat, president of the corporation, stated recently:

"Of our total volume of business, about 75 per cent is being financed through the Federal Housing Administration, whereas the balance is handled on a strictly cash basis.

"Before the Federal Housing Administration came into effect we, of course, were already handling through regular finance companies a large volume of business on the installment plan. However, with the introduction of the Federal Housing Administration and its low cost of financing, we feel that our installment volume has been increased at least 40 per cent, besides stimulating a considerable amount of cash business.

"In our opinion, the Federal Housing Administration offers wonderful possibilities; and, if only every builder and contractor throughout the country would take advantage of this plan, the building industry will do its share to lead this country slowly but surely toward better times."

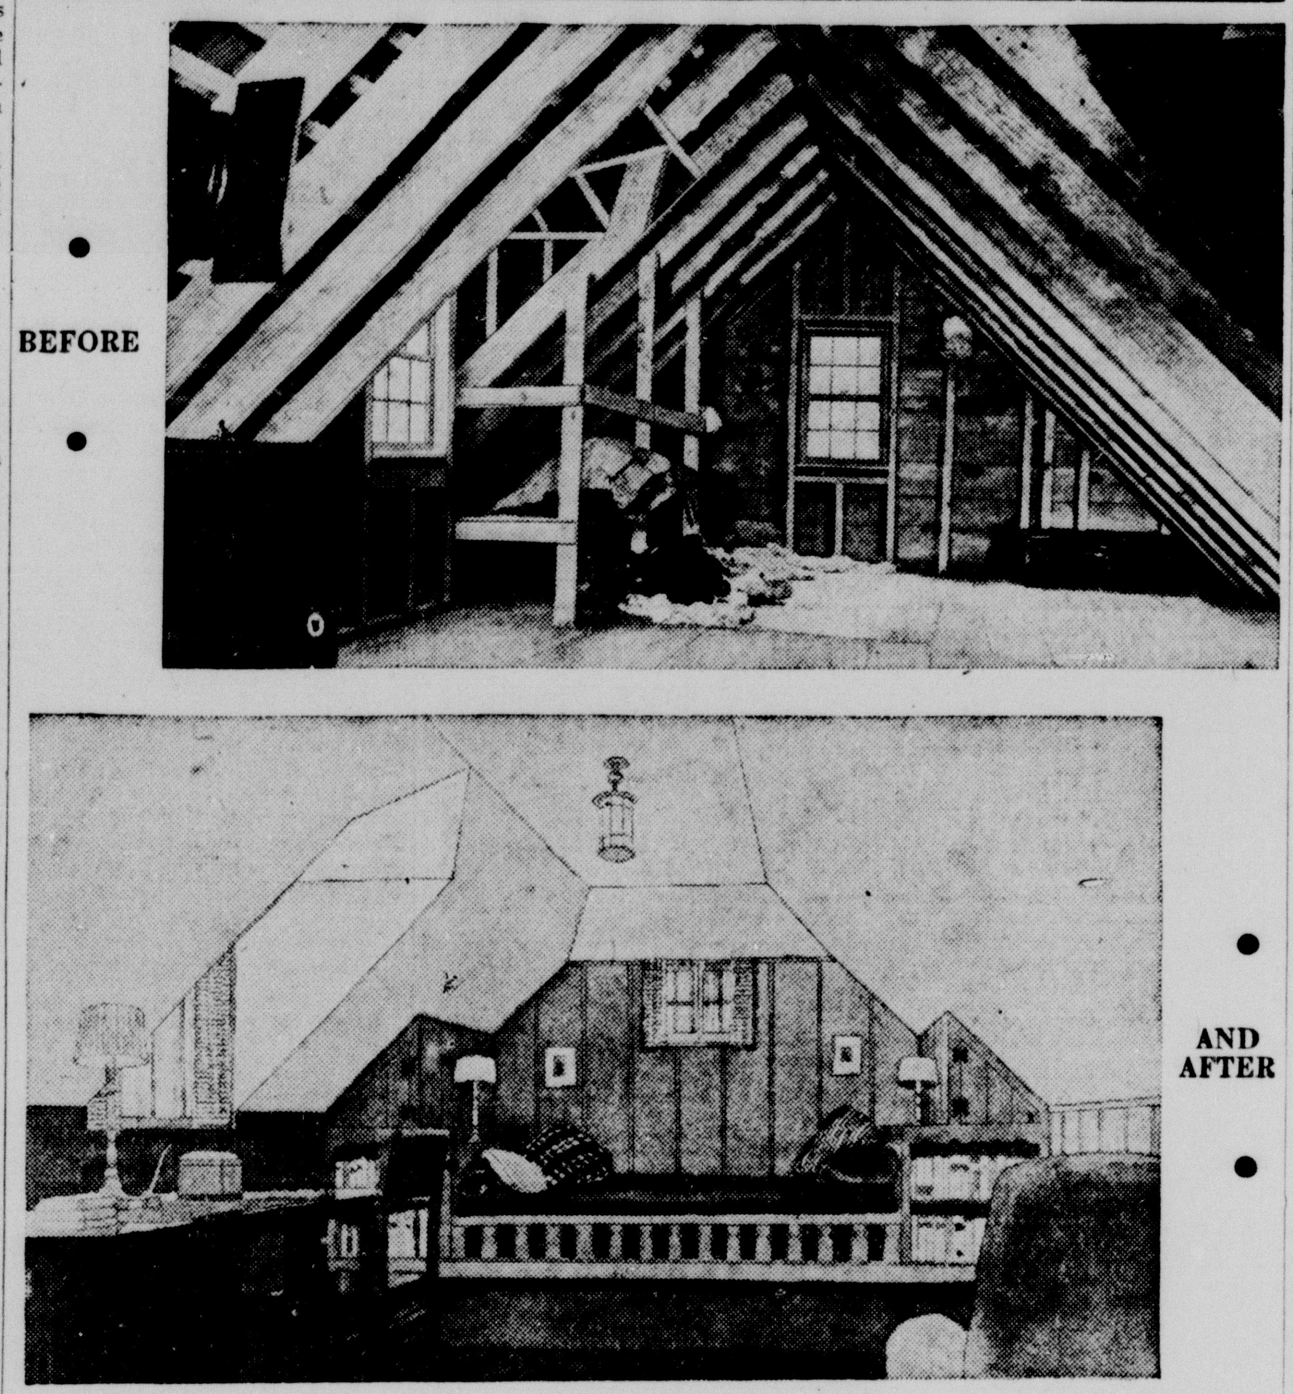
Make Additional Room by Utilizing Attic



When carefully planned, many interesting modernizations are possible in attic space. The above illustrations give an example how an unused attic may be converted into an attractive bedroom. Wallboard encloses the bare rafters in an effective wall and ceiling treatment. Built-in furniture may be included to advantage in this type of remodeling. The transformation of an attic provides the home with an extra bedroom, playroom, study, or whatever the owner wishes it to be. Insulation under the roof prevents much discomfort in Summer and makes the room adequate in Winter for all living purposes. Under the provisions of the Federal Housing Administration's Modernization Credit Plan funds are easily obtainable through approved lending institutions for attic modernization.

INCREASES RENTAL

TULSA, Okla.—Modernization of a rental property here materially increased its rental value to its owner.

A woman whose name is on file at the Tulsa better-housing office repaired and moderninzed a house she owned, being inspired by the better-housing program. Previous to modernization she had received $10 a month rent. Now she is getting $25 a month for the property and was recently offered $35 a month.

MODERNIZE HOTEL, REDUCE VACANCIES

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Vacancy percentage in a local hotel was reduced to a minimum by recent modernization.

The Oak Grove hotel was built 18 years ago. Until recently vacancies averaged 65 per cent. Not long ago the hotel changed ownership. The new owner invested $50,000 in modernizing the building. New refrigeration, lighting and heating systems, lobbies, and all kitchens were modernized, and the entire building redecorated.

Vacancies have been reduced to about 5 per cent as a result, according to the owner. Rentals are higher, and the hostelry is now considered one of the most modern of its kind in the city.

WILL ROGERS WIRES APPROVAL OF FHA

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—Will Rogers, noted humorist, added his approval to the better housing movement in a telegram recently to the Better Homes and Appliance exposition at New Haven, Conn.

Mr. Rogers said:

"Congratulations and best wishes. Hope your Better Homes exposition is big success. Life does not begin at forty. It commences when two get married and try to live as cheap as one. Your exposition should sure give the young folks ideas how to get the most out of a dollar. Good luck. —Will Rogers."

REMODEL IMPROVE

NOTABLE RISE IN LOADING OF CARS

Further Improvement Seen For Second Quarter Of Present Year

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Encouraging increases in carloadings of building materials during the first quarter in 1935 and forecasts of further increases is received from authoritative sources by the Federal Housing Administration.

Shippers' advisory boards anticipate that 72,449 more cars will be required for shipping building materials for the second quarter of 1935 than were needed in the same period last year. This represents an increase of 8.3 per cent. Experts consider this particularly noteworthy in view of the unusually large freight movement in June 1934. The forecast of carloadings of all other classifications, exclusive of building materials indicates a decrease of 69,953 cars.

N. Y. C. Reports Gain

The New York Central railroad reported a 35.6 per cent increase in carloadings of building materials handled by the road, excluding the Boston & Albany, during March 1935. There were 7,710 carloads of building materials handled during the month.

Carloads delivered to consignees totaled 4,464, an increase of 50.2 per cent over March 1934, according to railroad officials. This increase, they said, is all the more significant in view of the fact that total loadings and receipts during March decreased 7.5 per cent and total deliveries decreased 5.1 per cent.

Lumber orders during the first 14 weeks of 1935 were 18 per cent above orders of the same period in 1934, according to a report from the National Lumber Manufacturers association. Carloadings for 13 weeks were 114,918 cars, compared with 106,829 cars in the same period last year, an increase of 7.5 per cent.

WALL PAPER USEFUL FOR NEW PANELING

A new use has been found for the many new and artistically designed wall papers now on the market.

In rooms where a paneled effect is produced by wood trim, applied to break up large expanses of plain wall space, home owners are buying wall paper in quantities sufficient to fill one or more of these paneled spaces.

A variation of this idea is used where a room is papered in a flat color and some one point, such as a closed arch or sealed doorway, requires special accentuation. Careful selection of a strong, harmonizing design has been found to be effective, especially when the proper table or other piece of furniture is placed in correct relation to it.

PACIFIC COAST BANK MAKING HOUSE LOANS

PORTLAND, Ore.—The first National bank of Portland, Oreg., with resources of $60,821,000 and one of the largest banks in the Pacific northwest, began writing mortgages under the insured mortgage plan of the National Housing Act on April 1, 1935, the Federal Housing Administration is advised.

The bank has 16 branches throughout the state of Oregon. All other large banks in the state are expected to follow this action, according to the state director for Oregon.

The First National Bank of Portland is the oldest national bank west of the Rocky Mountains.

TECH GRADUATION PLANS ARE MADE

First Event Will Be Baccalaureate Sermon Next Sunday

RUSTON, La., May 18.—(Special)—Detailed arrangements for the 38th annual commencement activities at Louisiana Tech have been completed.

The first event on the program will be the baccalaureate sermon to be preached in the main auditorium at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, May 26, by Dr. L. R. Christie, pastor of the First Baptist church of Tallahassee, Fla.

At 6:30 p.m. Sunday, May 26, the annual vesper service will be conducted on the campus in front of the library building. This service will consist largely of music by the Tech glee clubs and orchestra, with a scripture reading by John L. Williams, a Tech student of El Dorado, Ark.

The faculty reception for members of the graduating class will be given on the lawn west of the home economics building at 8 p.m. Monday, May 27.

Activities on commencement day, Tuesday, May 28, will begin at 8 a.m., with the annual breakfast tendered the senior class by President and Mrs. G. W. Bond. This will be held on the lawn in front of the president's house.

The commencement exercises will be held Tuesday, at 10 a.m., in the main auditorium, with J. E. Keeny, former president of Tech, delivering the address.

The alumni-senior luncheon will be held on the lawn west of the science building at noon Tuesday. The alumni business meeting will be held in the auditorium at 2 p.m. Tuesday.

St. Joseph

The Presbyterian auxiliary met with Miss Ethel Keiber. A Bible lesson took place when all business was concluded. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served. The members present were Mrs. Molly D. Bonney, Mrs. Bessie Yarborough, Mrs. Curry MacPherson, Mrs. Louis Murdock, Mrs. Christopher Haddon, Mrs. Philip Watson and Mrs. Ida Jones.

Mr. Curry MacPherson, Jr., entertained at a picnic luncheon on Tensas river recently. The guests were the Joseph M. Davidson High school teachers, the senior class and some others. Swimming, boat rides on the river and an informal dance were enjoyed. A picnic lynch was served at the hunting lodge at noon.

Besides the host, Mr. MacPherson, his mother, Mrs. Curry MacPherson, his grandmother, Mrs. Ida Jones the guests included Mr and Mrs. Jack Crigler, Miss Myrtis King, Miss Mabel Skinner and Miss Olivia Scott, Misses Laura Dell Causey, Jackie Crigler, Rena Clay Carpenter, Mildred Harris, Lola Kate Clarke, Martha and Mary Baragona and Messrs. Frank MacPherson, Cecil Coor, William Clarke, Edward Berry, Hampton Smith, Leon Carpenter, Peter Schauf and Jimmie Smith.

The Wesley auxiliary met with Mrs. L. C. Roberts at her plantation home, Marydale. The meeting was opened with a devotional and minutes from the last meeting were read. The Bible study book, "Jesus Among Men," was read and the Bible lesson took place. Mrs. Holliman Cook closed the meeting with a prayer and a benediction. A social hour followed during which ice cream and cake was served. Members attending the meeting included Mrs. Samuel Yourtee, Mrs. Holliman Cook, Mrs. H. L. Biggs, Mrs. Bert Berry, Mrs. Fred Smith, Mrs. Jessie Smith, Mrs. Georgia Lyons, Mrs. Williamson, Mrs. William Spruell, Mrs. Claude Kirkpatrick and Mrs. Magruder Adams.

Mr. Carneal Goldman, Jr., Mr. Harry Goldman, Jr., Mr. Mitchell Butts, Mr. Earnest Price and Mr. Steve Harmon, members of the senior class of the Waterproof high school, entertained at a dance at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carneal Goldman, near Waterproof. During the evening, refreshments were served.

The guests were: Misses Fay Louise Rhodes, Jean Marron, Dorothy Marron, Lila Lanius, Lucille Hopkins, Frances Louise Fulton, Martha Long and Hazel Hopson, and Messrs. Paul Welch, Barker Higgins, Magruder Adams, J. B. Miller, J. B. Shelton, Alman Marron, B. S. Gibson, Robert Fife, Eustace Fulton, L. T. Collins, Jr., and Beverly Batterton.

From St. Joseph the guests included Misses Maurine Jackson, Vera Skinner, Louise Stubbs, Edna Neal Ryther, Lola Kate Clarke, Irene Reardon, Elizabeth Watson, Barbara Allen and Laura Dell Causey.

The Methodist Missionary society met with Mrs. W. Wynans Drake. The meeting was opened with a talk by Mrs. German Baker, the president. A Bible lesson followed a handkerchief shower at which Mrs. John Lloyd Lee was honored, was the principal feature of the afternoon. A parcel post package, delivered by a messenger boy, contained a number of gifts and was presented to Mrs. Lee. A plate luncheon concluded the meeting.

Those present were: Mrs. Albert Gay Bondurant, Mrs. German Baker, Mrs. John Lloyd Lee, Mrs. Katie Osborne, Mrs. Henry Ohlson, Mrs. Everett Smith, Mrs. Steve Smith, Mrs. Peter Nevil, Mrs. Gasperino Bruno, Mrs. Marvin Hoon and Mrs. V. C. Rives, Mrs. Alice Post, of Memphis, Tenn., was a guest of the society for this meeting.

Miss Susan Howard and Miss Marian Post entertained at Miss Howard's apartments with a shower honoring Miss Willie Mae Jackson, a bride of the month. Miss Jackson received many pretty and useful gifts. During the afternoon refreshments were served. There were many guests present.

The Cosmopolitan club held a social meeting at the last gathering for the year. A May party was enjoyed. Mrs. Christopher James, Mrs. Claude Earnest, Miss Willie Mae Jackson and Miss Lucille Reiber were those members forming the social committee.

Appropriate decorations were used in the clubroom and other rooms at the Farrar house, where the meeting was held. A guessing contest in which each member guessed the name of a flower was enjoyed and appropriate flower prizes were presented to the lucky contestants.

A pretty May basket was passed to each guest, who drew a prize as the basket was passed. Gifts to Mrs. John Lloyd Lee and Miss Willie Neal Jackson were presented.

The supper tables were pretty with May flowers and pastel tinted candles to which were attached pastel tinted ribbons with a corsage of sweet peas at the end. Each member received a corsage of sweet peas. A plate supper was served.

There were a great many of the club members present.

SPEND $394,000 FOR REPAIRING

Automobile Concern Improves 1,764 Homes Under Housing Program

DETROIT, Mich.—Real estate officers of the General Motors corporation reported recently to the Michigan director of the Federal Housing administration that they had spent $394,000 during the last year on the modernization of 1,764 homes in which General Motors is financially interested.

William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors, has also signed the "Declaration of Detroit," whereby 100 industrialists endorsed the better housing program of the Federal Housing administration.

The General Motors homes are under control of Modern Housing corporation, a subsidiary. During various housing shortages since the World war, this unit has financed and supervised the construction of 4,207 homes and has sold, rented, or leased them to employe sand others as follows: In Flint, 3,145 homes; in Pontiac, 822 homes; in Lansing, 27 homes; Jonesville, Wis., 212 homes. Thirty-five miles of paved streets were built by Modern Housing corporation in a 1,000-acre tract in Flint where better design and construction of small homes was encouraged.

General Motors' modernization bill on its rented property in Flint and Pontiac alone was apportioned to the building trades as follows:

	Flint	Pontiac
Exterior painting	$20,000	$25,000
Interior decorating	132,000	83,000
Repairs by carpenters, electricians	12,000	17,000
Plumbing	10,000	15,000
Heating	13,000	7,000
Miscellaneous	36,000	1,000

Modernization credit totaling $4,000 has been allowed recently to purchasers of homes in Flint sold by General Motors, it is reported; in Pontiac, $1,000.

Three large trucks were required to haul the paint used recently in painting 450 houses owned by the corporation.

"The regular maintenance of property is a good business proposition," Chester M. Bullard, Flint, general manager of the Modern Housing corporation, stated. "General Motors is not in the business of constructing homes. It is not building any at the present time. Those mentioned were only for special emergency purposes.

"The modernization program fostered by the Federal Housing administration encourages all home owners to protect and enhance their property. America, a nation of home owners, would mean America at its greatest economic goal."

SCHOOL BANKS SUGGEST HOUSING PLAN ECONOMY

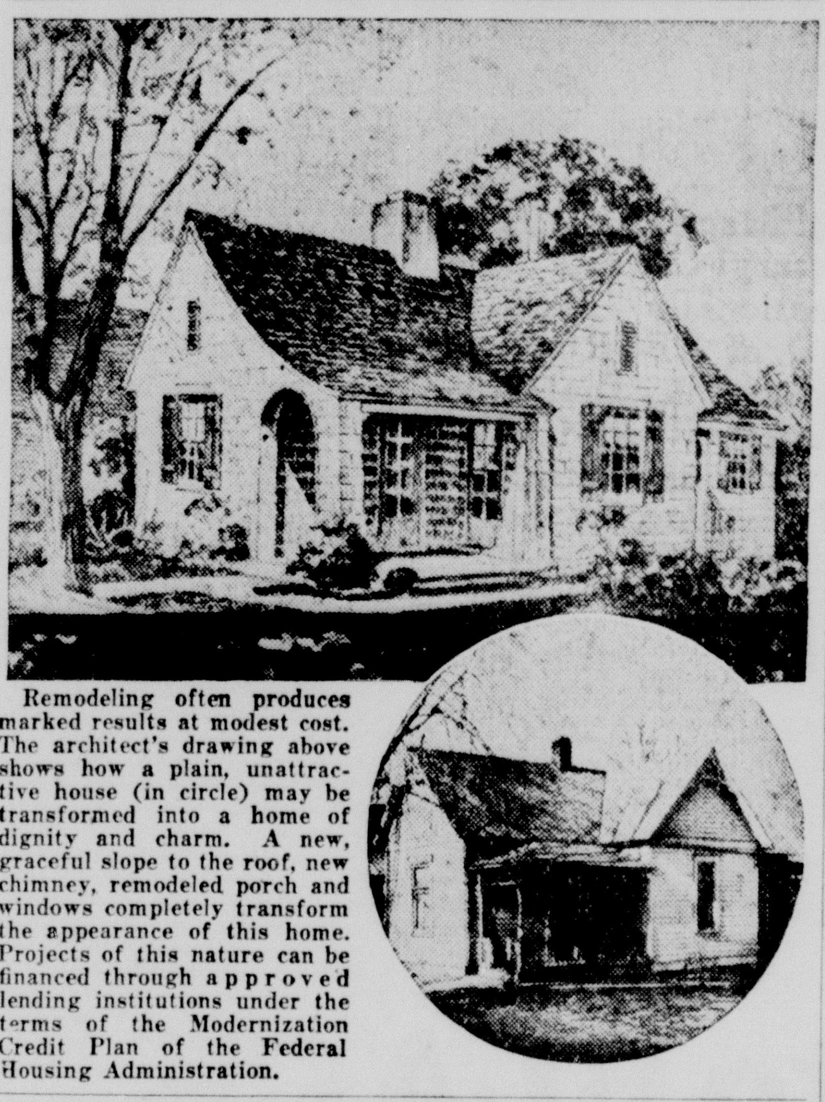
LOS ANGELES, Calif.—A new practice has been inaugurated here to further acquaint representatives of financial institutions with the mechanics of the mutual mortgage insurance plan of the Federal Housing administration.

Bankers' day has been instituted each week in the better housing headquarters. On a specified day representatives of certain banks are invited to send the member of their organization handling insured mortgage applications to better housing headquarters. There he is acquainted with the method of issuing commitments. He follows an application from the time it enters the office until it is definitely committed or rejected. The Los Angeles office of the Federal Housing Administration has given commitments on loans under the mutual mortgage insurance plan totaling $1,203,280. The average life of the loans is 16 years and 18 months for an average of 72.95 percent of the valuation of the property.

ALL EMPLOYED

FORT SMITH, Ark.—There is not one carpenter or painter remaining on relief rolls here, according to a report by the Associate Director for the state better-housing organization. This is the first time this condition has existed in many months, according to the director. A better-housing exhibit is being held in the heart of the business district, sponsored by building supply dealers, with a generous display of materials and fixtures. Widespread public interest is reported.

Economical Remodeling



Remodeling often produces marked results at modest cost. The architect's drawing above shows how a plain, unattractive house (in circle) may be transformed into a home of dignity and charm. A new, graceful slope to the roof, new chimney, remodeled porch and windows completely transform the appearance of this home. Projects of this nature can be financed through approved lending institutions under the terms of the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

Housing Question Box

Q.—I am building a new home and would like to know if the walls should be plastered after the wood floor and interior woodwork is installed.

A.—No. By all means have the rooms plastered and dried out as thoroughly as possible before installing the interior woodwork and the flooring. Otherwise the wood, which has been thoroughly dried, may absorb dampness from the plaster, causing it to swell. Furthermore, installing the wood after the plaster is dry will prevent any possibility of discoloration by the action of lime fumes. It is advisable to have all masonry as dry as possible before installing dry wood.

Q.—How can I keep rain and snow water which descends through the downspout from seeping down the outside of the basement walls and penetrating into the basement?

A.—It is desirable to connect the downspouts with a storm sewer. When this cannot be done, then splash blocks, consisting of concrete or other durable materials, should be placed under the end of the downspouts. They should slope away from the house and be of sufficient length so as to carry the water far from the wall.

Q.—How can I prevent my roof from sagging?

A.—Braces or collar ties should be added if the rafter span is too long. It is often necessary for rafters to support tremendous loads, especially in regions of heavy snowfalls. Unless the rafters are braced the roof may also sag because of structural weakening at the joints when subjected to heavy windstorms.

Q.—I have a kerosene heater attached to the hot-water tank. The tank is also connected to the furnace. I get good results with the kerosene heater but poor results from the furnace heat. How can this situation be corrected?

A.—It is a common practice to attach a hot-water tank to a furnace, but this is only considered good practice for certain types of installations. In some cases it interfered with the efficiency of the heating system. Also, unless the furnace is of sufficient size, the heat required for heating the hot water is often needed for heating the home. When the furnace is connected with the water tank the pipes, of course, must be properly installed as to location and slope. Sometimes, when there are minerals or chemicals in the water, such as calcium, the hot water pipe becomes clogged, interfering with the free circulation of the water. You will find details of hot-water-tank installations in United States Department of Agriculture Farmer's Bulletin 1426, entitled "Farm Plumbing." A copy of this may be obtained for 5 cents, cash or money order (stamps not accepted), from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C.

Q.—I have been informed that water-softening equipment will insure better functioning of the hot-water-heating equipment. How could this be possible? Can the installation of water-softening equipment be financed under the FHA plan?

A.—You have been correctly informed. Hard water tends to reduce the efficiency of water-heating equipment by the deposit of chemicals, such as lime, on the coils. In certain sections of the country it is necessary to have the coils cleaned out periodically. This expense can usually be avoided and a considerable amount of money on fuel saved by the installation of modern water-softening equipment, which can be financed under the modernization credit plan of the Federal Housing Administration. Soft water also results in the more satisfactory use of soap and protects fabrics in laundering.

A.—The best way to preserve shade trees that have started to decay is to cut out all the dead and decayed matter, making the cavities absulutely clean. A thick coating of hot tar should then be placed over each wound to act as an expansion joint. If the cavity is deep, concrete may be reinforced by driving 20-penny nails in the wood and tying on one-fourth-inch reinforcing bars. Mold the concrete to the shape of the trunk.

Q.—When stuccoing a house how should you specify the kind of surface finish you want?

A.—The desired finish should be specified by name. There are about 23 distinct finishes for portland-cement stucco, all of which may be variod by the use of color pigments in the finish coat. Before ordering a stucco "overcoat" on your house consult your contractor's samples or charts, which show how the finish appears when applied. The popular stucco finishes are Travertine, Italian, English Cottage, Colonial, American and Californian.

FIRE HAZARD

Quite often the smoke pipe opening into the flue has rough, irregular edges or the smoke pipe may be too small to fit snugly in the opening. If the crack around the pipe is not filled with asbestos cement, or some other suitable type of five-resistant material, a fire hazard exists. Furthermore, air drawn in the chimney through the cracks around the smoke pipe retards the draft which would normally be drawn through the furnace or other heating unit. Very hot fires which may have been kept in the heating unit during the winter may have caused the fire-resistant material in which the pipe is embedded in the flue opening to become cracked and loosened. It should be carefully inspected and defective material replaced.

FOOD STOREROOM IN REPAIR PLANS

Summer Is Ideal Time To Modernize Storage Places For Foodstuffs

The supply of fruits and vegetables of all kinds which many home owners store in the fall in anticipation of winter needs usually becomes exhausted in the spring.

When not consumed they often deteriorate rapidly during warm weather. Many decay to a certain extent during the winter when stocked in storage bins, especially when the storage room is not well insulated to keep out excessive cold, heat, or dampness.

When the storage room with its numerous bins, shelves, and other receptacles is comparatively empty, the home owner has an excellent opportunity to give it a thorough spring cleaning and so condition it that he may have proper storage for new supplies as they are canned, preserved, or stored. Decayed fruits and vegetables and all rubbish should be removed and the storage room scrubbed and ventilated to eliminate odors. Then shelves and bins may be repaired and additional ones installed if needed.

If the storage room is in one corner of the basement or adjoins a basement wall, it is possible that masonry needs repairing and damp-proofing. A new floor of wood or other suitable material laid over the basement floor with an air space in between the two will help keep the room dry. Then insulating the walls and installing a ceiling will assist in maintaining a uniform cool temperature throughout the year.

A small window protected against the direct rays of the sun is desirable for ventilation. Artificial light, of course, should be installed for quick use at all times.

After the room has been thoroughly cleaned, ventilated, dried out, and repaired a fresh coat of paint will brighten it up and assist in making it more sanitary and easily cleaned.

Fruit, vegetable, and other types of storage rooms may be conditioned and installed through funds obtained from an approved financial institution under the easy payment modernization credit plan of the Federal Housing administration.

BUSINESS SO BRISK BANK CAN'T REPORT

PHOENIX, Ariz.—The volume of new applications for modernization credit which have poured into the Valley National bank here has seriously hampered the bank in reporting applications for insurance to the Federal Housing administration.

Officials say that they consider it more important to approve new applications than to make immediate reports. So far the bank has approved more than 100 applications, with an additional 100 which have yet to be reported for insurance.

Although the bank has established a special department to care for modernization credit and insured-mortgage applications, and has also increased its personnel, the volume of business has made it impossible to report all the applications. Officials express their intention of issuing $500,000 in modernization credit by September 1.

Like water off a duck's back!

J-M Roof Coatings make old roofs absolutely water-shedding

WATER runs off a roof treated with Johns-Manville Roof Coating like water off a duck's back. Even leaky composition or metal roofs may become absolutely water-shedding when treated with J-M Roof Coating. Not a drop of rain, sleet or melted snow can seep through!

When the roof has cracks or small holes, use J-M Fibrous Enamel. Its heavy asbestos fibre content bridges gaps and forms a protective membrane over the entire roof area. Regal Roof Coating, a similar material, but without the asbestos, can be used when the roof is in better condition.

All J-M Roof Coatings can be applied with a large brush. A simple treatment—yet it will make your old roof good for many more years. Full directions on every container.

PLANS ARE MADE FOR FOLK SCHOOL

Educational Event Slated To Take Place July 15, 16 And 17

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., May 18. —(Special)—Plans have been made for a "Folk School" in East Carroll parish on July 15, 16, and 17. Miss Mary Mims, extension sociologist of Louisiana State university, presided at the meeting last week at Monticello High school for the purpose of selecting officers and making definite plans for a program.

The Folk School will be held at Monticello high school. It will be operated strictly for adults. There will be lectures and demonstrations in the fields of economics, government, health, agriculture, home making, art, and music. The children's department will be operated solely for those children who come with their parents.

The officers selected were: Chairman, Ashley W. Warlick, parish superintendent of schools; co-chairman, H. D. Raley, school board member from the seventh ward; secretary, Mrs. W. B. Hawkins. The superintendents and co-superintendents selected were: Home making, Mrs. H. D. Raley, superintendent, Miss Eunyce Howard, co-superintendent; agriculture, Jesse King, superintendent, C. A. Rose, co-superintendent; health, Mrs. Lewis Futrell, superintendent, Dr. Franklin V. Boyd, co-superintendent; government and economics, W. B. Hawkins, superintendent, Ashley W. Warlick, co-superintendent; art, Miss Virgle Myers, superintendent, Mrs. Vera Cohron, co-superintendent.

The superintendents of the several departments for children will be selected at a later date.

SITE FOR SOIL EROSION CCC CAMP IS SELECTED

HOMER, La., May 18.—(Special)—A site one mile south of Homer was selected as the location for a Civil Conservation corps camp whose personnel of more than 200 youths will carry out a soil erosion project. The selection was made by army officials and Guy Fletcher of Minden, who is connected with the federal soil erosion service.

The camp will be located on the Homer-Minden highway, and the project to be undertaken will be carried out on tract of 25,000 acres on the M. B. Henry plantation. Bayou D'Arbonne watershed is included in the project.

SKYTRAIN FLIES TO CUBA

Epps Town Council Votes To Prohibit Public Dancing

EPPS, La., May 18.—(Special)—Public dances in this little West Carroll parish village have been banned by action of the mayor and town council.

Declaring public dances to be a nuisance, the ordinance passed by the board of aldermen fixes a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100 for violation of the new law.

It was pointed out that the action was not taken because the town is addicted to "blue laws," but because of rowdiness which developed at these dances.

Neither was the ordinance passed because of the fact that two women are members of the board of aldermen. The two feminine councilmen are Mrs. M. L. Crow and Mrs. T. G. Wall. The mayor is J. T. Hicks.

Private dances are not banned.

RELEASED UNDER BOND

DARNELL, La., May 18.—(Special)—Charley Hankins and Felton Hankins, brothers charged with larceny, were released from jail here under bond. Charley Hankins was arrested at Jackson, Miss., at the request of West Carroll parish authorities, who returned him to Darnell. The two men, together with Carl Simmons, who has not been apprehended, are accused of having stolen a crate of chickens from Henry Whomack.

DISTRICT COURT PENALTIES GIVEN

Six Defendants Enter Guilty Pleas And Receive Sentences

Penalties were imposed in the district court in the cases of five defendants who entered pleas of guilty yesterday, and one defendant who had previously pleaded guilty. One other defendant who pleaded guilty was remanded to jail to await sentence.

Floyd Hollis, negro, charged with larceny of property valued at $359.87, in connection with the theft of the delivery truck of A. D. Hanks, tobacco salesman, was sentenced to serve from six to 18 months in the state penitentiary. Hollis had previously pleaded guilty.

Lee P. Johnson, negro, charged with shooting at with intent to commit murder, was sentenced to serve one year in jail.

A sentence of six months in jail was imposed in the case of James Haley, who pleaded guilty to larceny of a pistol valued at $30.

Fred Williams, negro, alias Fred Munson, was sentenced to serve four months in jail from the date of his incarceration, for assault with intent to rape.

Oscar Green, negro, charged with larceny of property valued at $5.30, was sentenced to serve 60 days in jail.

Thirty days in jail was imposed in the case of Leon Johnson, negro, for assault and battery.

After pleading guilty to larceny of two pairs of hose valued at $2, Jim Little, negro, was remanded to jail to await sentence.

Travel Fever Breaks Out In Sections Of Society

The Rustle Of Organdy And The Vibrant Voices Of Budding Young Orators Heard Over The Land

By Eve C. Bradford

Like the walrus, we have many things to talk of this beautiful May morning . . . for instance, have you noticed a certain something in the air these days? . . . something besides sweet flower odors, gently falling rain and a peculiar sort of Maytime malady known as vernal fever. . . . Ask any debonair high school senior and you will receive a vivid answer . . . you have only to bow down your ear and you will hear the musical rustle of crisp organdy and vibrant voices of budding young orators rehearsing the highly improbable class prophesy, the class will and the poignantly sweet valedictory . . . of course there is always that highly important question of food for the alumni banquet. . . .

Caught a glimpse of Monita Melgrum being whirled to the roof of the Virginia, where she is working out details for the Neville alumni banquet on the twenty-ninth . . . . Mrs. Paul Keller is equally as busy selecting a menu partified enough to match the gayety of the St. Matthew's senior banquet on the Cherokee Terrace of the Frances hotel on the night of the twenty-third. . . . In addition to that strange vernal fever, travel fever has broken out in certain sections of society . . . the urge to go somewhere is upon us and the most recent victims are Malbel Hood and Dora Anish . . . every spare moment is spent bending over travel maps, where their pencil has encircled such glamorous places as Lake Louise, Banff and Alaska . . . first they will attend the International Business and Professional Women's convention in Seattle and then on to Canada's deep blue waters, the perfect paradise for vacationist. . . . Malbel's sister, Lillian Mitchell, has made a distinct contribution toward her wardrobe—that smart blue ensemble that you have seen her wear recently. . . .

And now hold on to your bonnet—here is some breezy news. . . . Beryl Madison and her mother, Mrs. Flood Madison, will sail for England early in June for the silver jubilee of King George and Queen Mary . . . some people get all the breaks, but even so, we are glad Beryl is globe trotting because we can look forward to a pot-pourri of brilliant talk when she returns . . . with her natural talent for repartee, her delightful sense of humor and her gift for observing every detail, she will bring us back a real story with all the trimmings. . . . We never seem to tire of hearing her tell of the magic lands visited during her European tour several years ago. . . . It's smart to be busy these days . . . almost every woman has her avocation. . . . In grandmother's day it was proper for the daughters in the house to learn all the domestic arts but all venture into the world outside was left to the sons . . . . We are reminded today of the change in late years by the number of business and professional women in our midst . . . the state president of the Business and Professional Women's club, is a dentist, if you please—and a most successful one. . . . No doubt she soothes the savage breast of her patient with her feminine charm. . . . We venture to say several delegates who attended the dinner at Lakeside Country club were late for the introductory remarks, as we saw them trailing chiffon gowns over the cocktail lounge at the Frances hotel just before the dinner hour . . . the music, the flowers, the bright lights and the gay throngs of the opening of this smart rendezvous held them enthralled . . .

Land O'Goshen but we're tired! . . . We've been searching for a couple of misplaced superlatives . . . they are needed to tell you about the Little Theater play, "Hay Fever," last week . . . we are going back to see it again Monday night because we simply fell in love with Corre Mae Calder's deep throated voice and the grace and ease of her movements. . . . Lallage Feazel's dramatic ability and dynamic personality is still another reason. . . .

We do not pretend to any poetic insight into the articulation of trees, but the glorious old burdock tree in Helen and John Sherrouse's yard most certainly waves its arms against the sky, murmurs in the spring breeze and cries out in stormy weather. . . . Walking 'neath its spreading boughs the other day, Helen told us that it seemed almost like desecration to even trim the branches that gently tap her bedroom windows. . . . In years to come we will look back with profound pleasure on that pleasant hour spent with Helen walking under those century-old trees in the quietude of the beautiful gardens of her home . . . the radiance of her personality is reflected in every winding walk, every rose that grows along the margin of the swimming pool and in the spacious environs of her hospitable home. . . .

With prow dipping into the purple twilight the "Goofus" ploughed up the river Friday night with Alden and Pauline Shotwell, the genial hosts . . . a good time was assured, as on board were Tot and Prioleau Ellis, and Harry and Harriet Walton, plus their interesting little families . . . just before the "Goofus" weighed anchor we saw W. A. and Minalee Walker with Minalee's mother, Mrs. Kennedy of Memphis, in tow, hurrying to cross the gang plank . . . their arrival made the party quite complete. . . . More riverfront news: The "Bitter-Sweet" is being polished and primed for waters of the gulf . . . the Henry Biedenharns will shove off next week. . . .

Violet Meyer is now in excellent form for the golf links at Lake Placid this summer . . . she defeated Lida Oliver in the championship tournament at Lakeside club last week . . . with one more opponent to defeat, she will enter the finals. . . . Violet has an enthusiastic gallery that is lending moral support. . . . Monroe Lakeside club members certainly walked away with all the laurels at the Shreveport Country club golf and bridge tournament last week. . . . Bernice Girault captured the golf trophy and Satchie Cooper the bridge trophy, to say nothing of the lesser prizes brought home by our Monroe golfers and bridge players. . . . Just heard of a faux pas committed by a young bride . . . she arranged a centerpiece of lilies for her dinner table, and when the guests were seated, promptly at six o'clock, and the hostess just a trifle flustrated, the lilies gently closed their petals to the world . . . they, of course, belonged to the day blooming instead of the night blooming variety. . . .

Designed For Pool Purposes

Sweet girl graduates are occupying the center of the stage with Miss Mary Minta Moore, lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Moore of Winnsboro, the first to be feted in this city. Miss Moore's aunt, Mrs. J. B. Vaughan, was hostess at luncheon at the Lotus club on Friday, with Miss Moore's most cherished friends comprising the guest list.

Every variety of blossom in the lap of early summer was gathered for the exquisite central plaque of the beautifully appointed table. Orchid and pink sweet peas, yellow roses, blue Japanese iris and purple delphinium were combined in the most artistic manner. Floral place cards at every cover created a chain of lovely pastel coloring around the table. Clever favors reminiscent of graduation days were also found at each cover.

The guests in addition to Miss Moore were Miss Thelma Berry, Miss Zelma Berry, Miss Earl Pott, Miss Gussye Short, Miss Laurie McBride, Miss Betty Frances Reily.

Miss Moore is a member of the Winnsboro High school senior class and is one of the honor students. She ranks first in average scholarship. Miss Moore also won high literary honors in the recent rally in Ruston.

Bride Complimented

Beautiful flowers created a festive atmosphere in the reception suite, where the guests were welcomed and the pleasures of the evening enjoyed. Diversion was supplied by the interesting contests of bridal significance introduced by Miss Lucyle Godwin. A distinct feature of the evening was the "shower" of beautiful gifts bestowed upon Mrs. Cherry.

A luscious confectionery course was served to Mrs. S. H. Williams, Miss Ruth Thomas, Miss Hattie Haddick, Mrs. Wallace Wood, Mrs. E. C. Wood, Mrs. Fred Speakman, Mrs. W. F. Thurmon, Mrs. Gus Hoge, Mrs. L. V. Tarver, Miss Avis Ponder, Miss Katie Mae Moore, Mrs. Culbert Lee, Mrs. George Bruce, Mrs. Maurice Lindsey, Mrs. Otto Passman, Miss Natallie Hudnall, Mrs. R. E. Club Women From All Parts Of Country Will Assemble In Detroit For Convention

"Prove all things, hold fast to that which is good," first Thessalonians, 5-21, is the theme of the triennial meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs to be held in Detroit, June 4 to 12. Around this theme the entire program is built.

While the convention will have its political aspect, as all national officers are to be elected, with subsequent appointments of chairmen and committees, there will be much of intellectual opportunity for all club women. The major departments of the federation are vieing with each other in presenting the nation's greatest speakers.

There will be three important forums at which speakers of national renown will be featured in an effort to determine what "is good." The first forum will be "Present Day Economic Trends;" the second will be "Present Day Political Trends;" the third "The Foreign Policy of the United States, Membership in the World Court, and Membership in the League of Nations."

The department of fine arts, which has majored in art during the past three years, will conduct art tours to the art museums of Detroit, with special lecturers from the department of education. In the Detroit Institute of Arts, Detroit has one of the most important museums in America. Here is to be found the finest collection of contemporary German paintings in the country. Outstanding among the exhibitions of modern art are the frescoes of the Mexican painter, Diego Rivera. The art institute is also particularly noted for its collections of of Flemish and Dutch paintings.

Club institutes will be conducted every morning by Mrs. Earl B. Padget, national chairman, and parliamentary law classes will be conducted by Mrs. Emma A. Fox.

"These United States" has been the theme of the present administration, and it is very fitting that it should close in pageantry and song, the title of which is "Frontiers in These United States." The singing of the songs will constitute the assembly singing.

On Sunday afternoon there will be memorial services for federation leaders who have passed away during the last three years. In the evening, through the courtesy of Henry A. Ford, the Detroit Symphony orchestra will give a concert which will be nationally broadcast. The eighth day will be play day, including a trip to Greenwich Village, a three-hour boat ride on the Detroit river, landing at Belle Isle for the evening concert. There will be garden tours, dinners and teas. On the final evening of the convention, prior to the evening session, a dinner will be tendered Mrs. Poole, the retiring president.

Announcement of Louisiana delegates will be made by the state president, Mrs. Agate of Lafayette.

Miss Margaret Fuller, a young pianist of unusual ability, was presented in recital by her teacher, Mrs. O. A. Hill, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Fuller on South Second street.

The young artist, wearing an exquisite evening model of gold taffeta gave a splendid exhibition of her skill in a group of piano numbers rendered with true musicianship and splendid technique. She was assisted by Miss Dolores Grant, a young musician who possesses unusual talent.

The following program was rendered:

LOVELY JUNE BRIDE

Miss Emma Sue Norris, charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Norris of Oak Ridge, La., whose engagement and approaching marriage to Mr. Clint Elmer Shepard of Plano, Texas, has just been announced. The wedding will be an interesting event of the twelfth of June.

Social Events Crowd Program Of Club Women

The charming social affairs planned for the entertainment of the delegates attending the state convention of the Louisiana Federated Business and Professional Women's club have been a delightful break in the business routine.

Outstanding was the al fresco luncheon in the beautiful gardens in the rear of the club house. Gayly colored umbrellas shaded the tables where members were grouped in friendly manner.

Mrs. Lizzie Morris presided in characteristic gracious manner and also introduced the entertainers. Miss Marjorie Lewis of Clarks contributed an accordian selection and Mrs. Robert Dennis of Houston rendered a beautiful voice number. Mrs. J. E. Doughtie of Shreveport, a favorite speaker, gave one of her intimate little talks. Prominent among the guests were Judge Grace Miles, national membership chairman of Independence, Kansas, and Dr. Mabel Fontane Wood, state president, of New Orleans. Mrs. Jessie Norton of Shreveport, past president of the state federation was also present.

Little Theater Notes

"Ask the man who owns one" has been the slogan of a well known motor car company for years, and if they were not certain of the merits of their product, you may be sure that they would never advertise in such a manner.

Knowing fully that self-praise is half scandal, we urge that if you are the least skeptical as to the merits of the Little Theater production "Hay Fever"—ask the man who saw it last Tuesday.

So insistent has been the demand for a second performance that we have arranged to present this delightful Noel Coward comedy again on Monday evening, May 20, at the Central Grammar school auditorium at 8:15 o'clock.

Many times doubt has assailed the members of our Little Theater as to whether our citizenship wishes to continue the support of an organization of this kind. We believe that an active Little Theater is an asset to the cultural life of any community. Our neighboring city, Shreveport, in a booklet sent out by its chamber of commerce advertising the advantages that the city offers to home seekers, features its Little Theater as one of its prized possessions, and we all know that "Le Petit Theater du Vieux Carre" of New Orleans is as well known as the Haunted house on Royal street. These two organizations have received national publicity because of the fact that they own and operate their own play houses, and not because they put on better productions than we have done.

In order to reach the goal we are striving for—that is, a Little Theater building of our own—we must have the active support of our people in taking out membership cards, or in attending the plays we offer. In all sincerity, we feel that we have done worthwhile work this past season, but in order to carry on, financial support is absolutely necessary. It isn't enough to say "I think that the Little Theater movement is a fine thing."

If we are to present plays that appeal, we must pay fairly large royalties, and in no other community in the country has so much been offered for such a reasonable fee.

In his recent book, "English Journey," which has received such favorable comment, J. B. Priestly has this to say of civic dramatic organizations:

"Many people do not realize that there is a chain of small intelligent repertory theaters stretching across the country.

"Most of them have to struggle along, hardly paying their own way; they have not as yet produced any brilliant new schools or drama or acting; they have probably not succeeded yet in creating a public of any real size for intelligent drama; but nevertheless I do not think my own personal interest in the theater is deluding me when I declare that this dramatic movement, which came into eistence after Hollywood had nearly wrecked the declining professional theater of the provinces, is of immense social importance. To begin with, it is a genuine popular movement, not something fostered by a few rich cranks. The people who work for these theaters are not by any means people who want to kill time. They are generally hard-working men and women—small business men, teachers, clerks, artisans—whose evenings are precious to them. And they are tremendously enthusiastic. These theaters are attracting to themselves the more eager, impressionable, intelligent younger people of the industrial communities, where depression has hung like a black cloud for the last few years. Some of them in various places have told me what this dramatic work has meant to them, and in many instances the persons in question have not been producing, designing scenery, playing big parts, but may only have been selling programs, taking tickets; or doing the accounts.

"These theaters are small, and have to fight for their very existence, but it would be easier to underestimate than over-estimate their significance. I see them as little campfires twinkling in a great darkness; opening windows into a world of ideas, color, fine movement and exquisite drama."

Miss Hamley Honored

Miss Agnes Hamley, whose marriage will be an interesting event of the week, was the inspiration for a charming gathering of friends at Lake Marie plantation, home of Mrs. R. R. Higgins, last week, with Miss Sue Pinkston, hostess.

Tables for bridge were grouped in the spacious reception suite, where beautiful garden flowers were placed with lavish hand. A feature of the evening was the presentation of beautiful trousseau gifts of a miscellaneous nature, to the lovely bride-to-be.

The serving of luscious refreshments at the beautifully appointed card tables brought the pleasure to conclusion for Miss Hamley and mesdames W. R. Gilfoil of Omega, J. C. Hamley, Roland Smith, B. R. Pinkston, Earl Evans, John Rodge, L. P. Thomas, Jr., and B. R. Burgoyne, and Misses Marianne Ward of Tallulah, Eula Gilfoil of Omega, Anna Mae Hamley, Effie Carlisle, Anyse Perry, Bernice Ethel Peek, and Bert Estelle Herzog.

Distinguished Visitor Addresses Enthusiastic Lakeside Dinner Guests

Dr. Mabel Fontane Wood, President Of State Women's Club Organization, Is Guest Speaker Saturday

One of the highlights of the three-day state convention of the Louisiana Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs in this city was the splendid address delivered by the state president, Dr. Mabel Fontane Wood of New Orleans, during the banquet hour at the Lakeside Country club Saturday night.

Dr. Wood, charmingly feminine and possessing a magnetic personality, held the undivided interest of the dinner guests during her address. She said in part:

"This past year I had the honor of leading what I believe is one of the greatest of all organizations, not only in past accomplishments but in its future possibilities.

"This evening I wish to look backward and forward with you. First, because the spotlight is so focussed on the present achievements of women as thinking citizens in business and professions, and second, because the present time is so pregnant with responsibility and opportunity.

"This year's work and this convention have been momentous, because significant paths have been laid out which interpret our genuine purpose in carrying out work outlined by our national body.

"Because no part of our work could ever be recorded as complete no matter how comprehensive and far-reaching unless we turned to our national leaders. It is to them we look for potential leadership. Supplementing, of course, our local leaderships.

"And as the year draws to a close and with it the thought that we surrender to other hands the task of caring for and nurturing our federation, I feel in a way like the soldier just outside of the battlefield this evening chatting for a loose moment with his comrades. I say battlefield, because today the commercial arena is our battlefield where we business and professional women interpret our objectives to the American public.

"In my childhood I was given to understand (as many other women who have worked their way through) that this world was no lotus garden, no paradise of serene sky and roses and merriment all the year round, but instead a cold and foggy world where nothing grew but robust men and women and only those of wonderful fiber and endurance. I am glad I learned this lesson in my youth. It is unquestionably true.

"Today each person, each business, each profession presents an individual problem, because each woman visualizes her oportunities differently, and let me caution you here not to overlook the possibilities that arise through personal development, because there are two classes of success to record:

"There are many things we learn more effectively when years have enriched us with experience. What does it matter if Edison invented electricity and neither you nor I have inventive genius? What does it matter that Kipling wrote a Recessional? That one can plead law and we cannot, as long as you and I can do well each individual undertaking?

"And today is a day of specialization. One must have definite knowledge and special experience. Don't ever say, "I can do almost anything," because what that really means, is that you can do nothing. The woman who advances today is one who masters the one thing that she is doing and who can do it better than anyone else.

"Aside from this we must encourage our leaders. We must encourage those women who have potential possibilities and help them to make the most of them, because they carry the weight on the shoulders. Leadership is a lonely business; it means responsibility, a combined one. It means lonely hours of reflection, of meditation, which necessarily reverts back to the fold. For after all it is true that the sun touches the tops of the mountains first and works its way downwards.

"This evening as we look into the future, because as leaders we must think and look into the future. Let us insist on professional standards for public service personnel.

"It will take vision, courage, sanity and intelligence to solve and work towards security, because security like happiness and respect must be earned, which takes us all right back to our educational program. The importance of studying. The real peril of the American young woman today is that she is too content to be of the average, rather than of the best.

"We find many women today waiting for conditions to better themselves. My advice to you is 'get 'going.' It can get worse.

"I believe today there are unlimited opportunities for the well trained woman in business and professions, provided they are courageous, have skillful ability and possess that rare quality of highmindedness so essential in public life today.

"And in closing I wish to leave with you two challenging questions:

"How can women preserve the value of her past experience and at the same time re-interpret her objective to meet the modern standards?

"What does the future hold?

"We find today women bent under loads that only their idealism and their concern for the future enable them to carry. Will the public take advantage of this idealism indefinitely? And let us remember that anything that lives for itself alone soon dies. Let us then educate the public to what we are doing, and I am sure that slowly but surely we can take them by the hand and guide them into our way of thinking."

Art Contests Suggested For Vacation Days

With the coming of vacation days with their hours of leisure, which club women will welcome as an opportunity to study, read and travel, or perhaps to enter some of the interesting contests sponsored by state chairmen of the Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs, attention is called to the short story contest by Mrs. Arthur F. Shuey, 902 Prospect avenue, Shreveport. Following are the rules: The contest is for a short-short story, 1,500 words is the limit, and stories may be much shorter if desired, Any type story may be submitted. All manuscripts must be typewritten with name and address of the writer on the story. All manuscripts must reach Mrs. Shuey by September 1, 1935. Enclose stamped, addressed envelope in order that stories may be returned.

Art, poetry, and scrap book contests have been submitted previously, and the drama, reading, and insurance contests will be given at an early date.

Should direct communication with state chairmen be desired, they are as follows: Art, Mrs. D. H. Christman, 255 Forest avenue, Shreveport; poety, Mrs. P. J. White, 2703 Fairfield avenue, Shreveport; scrap book, Mrs. Addison Thompson, Ruston; drama, Miss Catherine Winters, Louisiana State Normal college, Natchitoches; insurance, Mrs. Turner K. Butler, Ponchatoula; reading, Mrs. A. G. Reed, L. S. U., Baton Rouge.

Activities At Lakeside

Social life at Lakeside Country club will take on a different color with the advent of summer. Al fresco affairs will be featured now that barbecue pits have been completed on the club house grounds. On the evening of the fourth of July a barbecue will bring all members together with a dancing party to be held on the third of July, an event all members are anticipating eagerly, as the music will be supplied by Bud Scott and his orchestra. A golf tournament will be held on the fourth of July.

The regular monthly dancing party will take place next Thursday with Louis Clancy and his company of musicians furnishing the music.

Mrs. Reginald Field and Mrs. A. J. Emerson have returned from a two weeks' visit in Dallas, Texas, where they were the house guests of friends.

Mrs. Harold Heinberg has returned from a two weeks' visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Hiller, of Memphis, Tenn.

MRS. WILLIAM W. CHERRY

A wedding in which the interest of friends in this section of the state is centered was that of Miss Naomi Speakman, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lloyd Speakman, and Mr. William Wallace Cherry on the ninth of May. Following a honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Cherry are now comfortably established in their own home in this city, where they will be glad to welcome their friends.

Miss Haas And Fiance Are Guests Of Honor At Dinner In Home Mr. And Mrs. Haas

Dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Haas, always a delightful experience, was an unusually charming event Thursday night, when, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Lee Kuhn, they welcomed a few guests complimentary to Miss Shirley Haas and her fiance, Mr. David Snyder.

Flowers of pronounced beauty banked the reception suite, where cocktails and canapes were enjoyed during that gracious interlude before the serving of dinner. Miss Haas wore a lovely filmy frock of cerise chiffon.

The dinner table, covered with handsome gold-colored damask, was developed entirely in gold and white. An oblong plaque fashioned of Calla lilies, Shasta daisies and white roses, encircled with tall yellow tapers in siliver candlesticks, formed the central ornamentation. Beautiful Haviland and silver was used for the dinner service. A floral theme was also employed in the serving of the five-course dinner. The grapefruit, buried in a mound of green ice, flaunted graceful handles entwined with daisies. A floral note was sounded in each of the five delicious courses.

Fourteen guests were seated, including Miss Haas' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Haas, and Mr. Snyder's mother, Mrs. Charles Snyder of Bastrop.

'Now I Lay Me' Prayer Works Harm To Child

As a child you no doubt recited the prayer most children are taught in their infancy:

"Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray the Lord my soul to keep;
If I should die before I wake,
I pray the Lord my soul to take."

According to a well-known clergyman, this prayer should be absolutely tabooed, and in its place one should be taught that will carry a feeling of coziness and security—or one that gives assurance of a kind protecting power watching over children large and small. He talked about the apprehensiveness and fear created in the heart of a child by this time-honored prayer of early childhood.

Gladys Huntington Bevans, feature writer, said recently: "If you think about children it makes you unhappy to think of the thousands upon thousands of children who, through the years, have gone to sleep on the thought that they might die before morning and not see their mothers and fathers again—their pets, their toys and all the dear familiar things that mean happiness and sunshine and play and security."

"We who care and think and know something about children know that for the sake of the child's body and soul, to promote the sweet, relaxed sleep that 'knits up the raveled sleeve of care' which even little children often wear—to bring about the rest which brings health to the body, serenity to the mind, and poise to the emotions, we must try to see that our small ones, and our big ones too, go to that mysterious land of sleep happy and secure in the sense of being loved and protected. We accomplish this by giving them prayers which make them feel that a beneficent power watches over them. A prayer is bodly conceived which conveys the impression that a child needs to be guarded or protected from something evil during the night. It is most important that darkness—night —and sleep should be made to seem just one more pleasant, warm and friendly experience to a child."

For the young child the following prayer is ideal:

"Jesus, Gentle Shepherd, hear me,
Bless Thy little lamb tonight.
O Jesus, tender Shepherd,
I thank Thee for this day;
For friends and home and loved ones
I kneel just now to pray.
For the boy or girl a little older:
Father, we thank Thee for the night
And for the blessed morning light,
For rest and gladness and care,
And all that makes the world most fair;
Help us to do the things we should,
To be to others kind and good;
In all we do—in work or play—
To grow more loving every day."

Miss Louise Gray, junior at Brenau college, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. P. Gray of 115 Louisville avenue, this city, has been elected to Tau Kappa Alpha, national honorary forensic fraternity. Miss Gray, a member of Delta Delta Delta, national social sorority, is vice-president of her class and is a popular student, having represented Brenau in debate several times this winter.

Ancient Customs Observed By Brides Today Are Brought To Mind As June Draws Near

No doubt you have often wondered why June is regarded as the bride's month, why she wears white satin and why she enters the church to the strain of Lohengrin.

An authority on bridal customs tells us that June is always preferred by brides because it is the gayest month of the year. Flowers are blooming everywhere, gardens are knee-deep in beauty, and the whole world seems new. There is a sort of similarity between the change from spring to summer and a girl's becoming a matron.

The wedding party usually enters to Lohengrin and leaves the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March just because the tempo is convenient. Lohengrin's march is slow—just right for the entry; but faster music is needed for the recessional.

The bride's white gown is a symbol of purity; it is usually of satin because it always has been the formal court material and is regarded as the "Queen of Fabrics."

The veil dates from the ancient east where it was first worn to "hide the blushes of the bride." The ribbons in the bride's bouquet are a heritage from medieval England, when pieces of silk or lace were used to bind up the sprigs of rosemary worn at weddings.

Engagement and wedding rings have been used since ancient times as a symbolic tie band between the couple. Among some people the ring is a symbol of eternal union.

The bridegroom's best man and ushers are survivals of primitive man's "marriage by capture," when he strode to his bride's tent and dragged her by the hair to his own dwelling—with the aid of a few masculine friends.

The use of the canopy and a red carpet at the church and the strewing of the bride's path with flowers go back to an ancient superstition that dangers beset the bride, and that she must be protected overhead and underfoot.

It was felt that the bride would be unlucky if her feet touched the ground, hence the custom for the husband to carry his bride over the threshold of their new home.

Old shoes are a good luck token traceable to an old Jewish law which made the shoe the symbol of exchange; and the orange-blossom custom goes back to the early Saracens. Like rice, orange flowers represent fruitfulness in marriage. The Saracens so regarded them because the trees bear flowers and fruit at the same time.

Ancient Romans baked the first wedding cakes, but they were poor fare, being made only of salt, water and flour.

Monroe Streets Peopled With Women Of Zeal

Resourcefulness, Patience And Sacrifice Has Placed Business Women In Front Ranks Of Every Activity

With the passing of the years, Monroe has spread her wings and her tentacles. Streets in every direction are peopled with men and women of zeal, strength, resourcefulness, patience and sacrifice. As the city has grown and prospered so have her citizens grown in tenacity of purpose. Prominent among the citizens who have kept abreast of the times are the business and professional women of this city.

The fullest, the richest experience for a woman is a career. You hear about sacrifices for fame. You hear about giving up the things that belong to a woman. But it is all nonsense—old-fashioned. There is nothing greater than having each day filled to the brim—nothing more stimulating than to find work piled upon your desk each morning. We feel sure that every business and professional woman in our city today for the annual convention would die without her work. If she is a successful business woman we venture to say she has never dragged herself out of bed in the morning and between stifled yawns exclaimed, "Oh, just another day."

We realized last night at Lakeside Country club where the banquet was held for visiting delegates and guests of the Business and Professional women's club that the old type of business and club woman has passed completely out of the picture. In place of the severe, spectacled woman with hair drawn back from her face and clothes of the mannish type, we have a company of well groomed beautifully marcelled and charmingly gowned women who radiate happiness and good cheer. Their fingers are on the pulse of the nation and they are gloriously alive to the opportunities of today.

We are reminded to-lay of the club woman's creed:

Keep us, O God, from pettiness;
Let us be large in thought, in word, in deed.
Let us be done with fault-finding and leave off self-seeking.
May we put away all pretense and meet each other face to face, without self-pity and without prejudice.
May we never be hasty in judgment and always generous.
Let us take time for all things; make us to grow calm, serene, gentle.
Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straightforward and unafraid.
Grant that we may realize it is the little things that create differences, that in the big things of life we are as one,
And may we strive to touch and to know the great, common woman's heart of us all, and
Oh, Lord God, let us not forget to be kind!

LITTLE THEATER WILL PRESENT PLAY AGAIN

The Monroe Little Theater play, "Hay Fever," which scored a signal success in its presentation last Tuesday night under direction of Mrs. Blanche G. Oliver, will be given again Monday night at the Central grammar school auditorium. Insistent popular demand for a repetition of the play, following its initial production, led the Little Theater board of directors to authorize a second presentation. A large proportion of the local public which did not see the play on its first offering urged that it be given again.

The same cast which cleverly interpreted the lines of "Hay Fever" last Tuesday night will appear in the offering Monday night. Miss Lallage Feazel, who scored a great triumph a week ago, will play the lead, and will be assisted by Cora Mae Calder, James Cavaness, Mrs. Edith Townes, Mrs. O. N. McNeil, Herman Chapman, John Daniel and Mrs. Walter Rhodes. The stage settings, which contributed to the success of the original production, will also be used again.

ATHENS GIRL WILL EDIT LOUISIANA TECH ANNUAL

RUSTON, La., May 18.—(Special)—Jean Craighead of Athens has been selected as editor-manager of the 1936 Lagniappe, Louisiana Tech annual, by members of the faculty committee on student publications and accounts.

Miss Craighead will be a senior next year. She is a member of the Kappa Delta sorority and this year has been society editor of The Tech Talk.

The Tech annual this year was edited by Edwin E. Slater of Sibley.

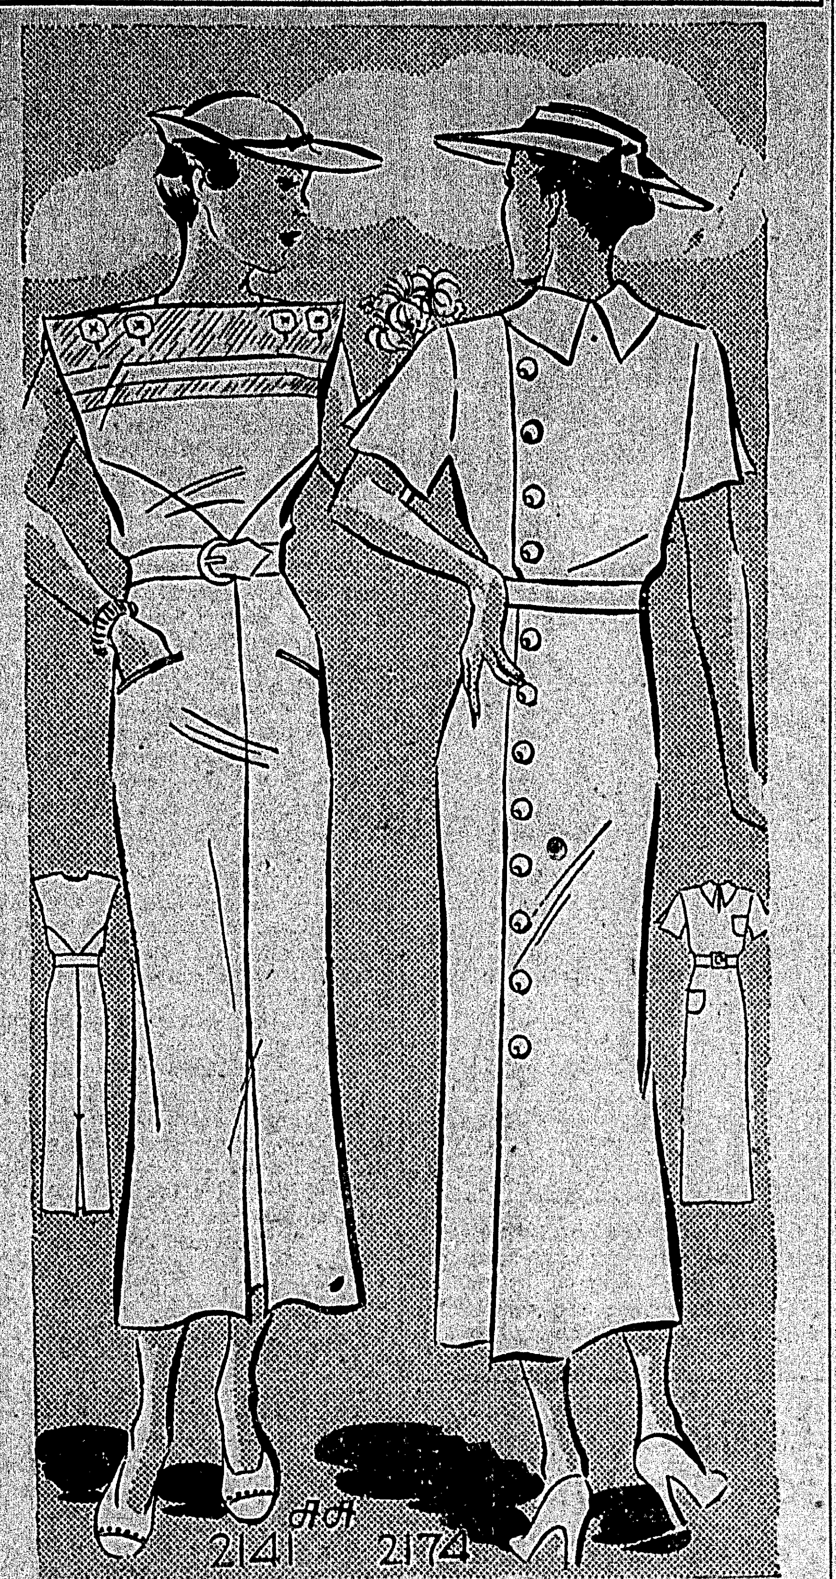
Plan To Defeat The Heat



PATTERNS 2141 AND 2174

The wise girl plans right now for the heat wave that's sure to come. Start with pattern 2141 because it's just about the simplest pattern you could pick for that nautical blue and white linen. The navy blue bands finish off the simple bodice with a note of crisp finality. Then choose white buttons with a blue star motif. Looming high on the fashion horizon is pattern 2174 with naively simple front and smart simulated back closing. But the buttons are real—real smart too, in brilliant contrast. Sports silk, shantung or linen are your best bet!

Pattern 2141 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 takes 3 1-4 yards 36 inch fabric and 1-4 yard contrasting. Price 15c.

Pattern 2174 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 3 1-4 yards 36 inch fabric. Price 15c. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Anne Adams pattern, THIRTY CENTS (30c) for both. Write name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

AND NOW . . . ANNE ADAMS SUMMER PATTERN BOOK IS READY! Between its covers, forty pages of fascinating fashion facts lie ready for your eager eyes to devour! Everyone's problem is solved . . . everyone from the bride with trousseau troubles . . . the matron with weighty problems . . . the much "dated" junior deb . . . tiny tots at play . . . June Brides Will Find Ceremonies Still Ancient Custom Hodge-Podge

When June brides trip to the altar this year, it will be another little milestone in the survival of scores of ancient customs. The throwing of rice and old shoes, the wedding breakfast, the custom of having ushers and a best man, even the business of having a canopy and carpet at the church—all are survivals of customs from many lands.

By Mary Elizabeth Plummer

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP)—With June, "the month of brides," around the corner, the question arises, where did all the bridal customs begin?

Why can't the bride wear lemon blossoms? Why not throw an old stocking after a newly married pair instead of an old shoe? Why not have wedding pie instead of cake?

Most of our bridal traditions came from other countries and had their origin centuries ago; and although they're a hodge-podge, most of them have definite meaning.

Throwing of rice, for example, expresses a wish that the newly married pair will have children. The first nuptial rice-throwers were Persians; but other ancient countries threw cereals on their brides for the same reason.

A pleasant variation of the rice-throwing custom, once practiced in some countries, was to empty a plate of shortbread on the bride.

Wedding breakfasts began with the savages. It was part of their marriage rite for the bride and bridegroom to eat together.

The bridegroom's best man and ushers are survivals of primitive man's "marriage by capture," when he strode to his bride's tent and dragged her by the hair to his own dwelling—with the aid of a few masculine friends.

The use of a canopy and a red carpet at the church, and the strewing of the bride's path with flowers go back to an ancient superstition that dangers beset the bride, and that she must be protected overhead and underfoot.

It was felt that the bride would be unlucky if her foot touched the ground. Hence the custom for the husband to carry his bride over the threshold of their new home.

Instead of strewing the bride's path with flowers, some countries strew it with emblems of the bridegroom's calling. A carpenter's bride walks on shavings, a butcher's bride on sheepskin, and a blacksmith's bride on scraps of old iron.

Old shoes are a good luck token traceable to an old Jewish law which made the shoe the symbol of exchange; and the orange-blossom custom goes back to the early Saracens.

Like rice, orange flowers represent fruitfulness in marriage. The Saracens so regarded them because the trees bear flowers and fruit at the same time.

Ancient Romans baked the first wedding cakes, but they were poor fare, being made only of salt, water and flour.

CHAPTER XIX

Vera Duchene whirled, regarding Millicent with eyes that were suddenly cold, hard and viciously vengeful.

"What are you doing, snooping around here?" she asked.

Millicent said, "I wasn't snooping. I came to warn you of something."

"Well, what was it?"

"This isn't going to be an ordinary investigation," Millicent said. "There are elements involved which are going to cause trouble. If you didn't get in until a late hour this morning, as you started to say, you'd better tell the police so now, because otherwise they'll check up on you."

"And what makes you think I didn't get in until this morning?"

"Because you started to say so down there at the table."

"And you came all the way up here just to tell me that?"

"Yes."

"Baloney!"

"All right. Why did I come up here?" Millicent demanded angrily.

"You came up here to snoop because Jarvis Happ has been suspicious of me ever since I started to work for his wife. Go back and tell him that his spying didn't work."

"Don't be too certain it didn't work," Millicent said. "I saw what you threw in the closet."

And with that, she turned around and banged the door angrily behind her.

She ran down the corridor and sought her own room, trying to analyze her conflicting emotions. Had she really gone to the room to spy on Vera Duchene?

Suddenly she realized that she had. She was suspicious of Vera Duchene, had been from the moment she had seen her. There was about Vera Duchene a suggestion of that power that some women wield over men, applied selfishly and consciously to advance their own ends.

Vera Duchene had been out the night before. She had returned early in the morning. She, then, must have been the one who had driven the sedan Millicent had encountered when leaving Felding's room. Had she also been the one who led Harry Felding on the chase which ended in his death?

Was Vera Duchene the woman in the black ermine coat?

Millicent could not, of course, be certain, but she did know that the form and figure of Vera Duchene were similar to the form and figure of the woman who had worn the black ermine, and the single swift glimpse Millicent had had of the woman in the tea room had shown her a cold, gray eye—scheming, hard, wary and watchful.

Vera Duchene's eye could well have taken on such an expression. Millicent, her self, had seen those eyes change. They had been filled with alluring invitation when they rested upon the officer. Then, later, when Millicent had entered her room and had glimpsed what apparently was a black ermine coat Vera Duchene was flinging in the closet, the eyes had become cold, hard, glittering and vengeful.

And where would Vera Duchene, a lady's maid, have secured the wherewithal to get an ermine coat? Or, rather, having interested someone sufficiently to secure an ermine coat, why should she continue to work as a maid?

Millicent determined that she would keep Vera Duchene in mind, and would pay closer attention to her comings and goings.

There was a discreet knock at the door.

"Who is it?" Millicent asked.

"Winton, the butler," said a mournful voice.

She opened the door.

The butler stood in wooden-faced dignity upon the threshold.

"The master would like to have you report to him in his study," he said. "And did you hear about the murder?"

She smiled up into his professionally lugubrious countenance and said, "I understand that the chauffeur was killed by bandits."

"He might have been killed by bandits," the butler said, "and then again he might not. You see, he must have borrowed Master Robert's car, run out of gasoline and walked home, but the police can't find the keys to the car.

"Master Robert is careless about his keys at times. He left all of his keys in the car—not only the keys to the car, but the keys he carries to the house and the garage."

"Well?" asked Millicent.

"If Harry Felding had left the car and locked it, where the police found it, he'd naturally have left the keys in his pocket."

"Perhaps he put them some place when he got to his room," Millicent said.

"I beg your pardon, but that's impossible," the butler said with mournful cadence. "He was killed just as he entered the room. Someone either had been lying in wait for him or had been robbing the place and was surprised."

"Why should anyone try to rob a chauffeur?" Millicent asked.

"That's the question—why should they? That's what the police want to know."

"Well," Millicent said, 'you'll have to excuse me. It's nothing I can speculate about. If Mr. Happ wants me, I must go at once."

* * *

Reluctantly the butler turned away. After he had gone a few steps, he paused and said, "Did the police question you?"

"They wanted to know where I was last night," she said.

He nodded.

Moved by some sudden inspiration, Millicent went on rapidly, "Were there visitors in the house last night, Winton?"

"Visitors?"

"Yes, you know—anyone other than the family and the servants?"

He hesitated a moment, then stepped nearer, lowered his voice, and almost whispered, "Mrs. Happ had a woman visitor last night."

"Did you see how she was dressed?"

"I'm sure I couldn't tell you that. She wore a black fur coat. That was all I saw."

"An ermine coat?"

"I don't know just what you'd call it. I happened to be passing Mrs. Happ's suite and I heard voices. I thought she'd called to me, so I knocked on the door and opened it a crack. A woman was standing there, wearing a black coat. The collar was turned up about her ears. I didn't see any more. Mrs. Happ called to me in a sharp voice to close the door and get away from there."

"Does Mrs. Happ have a black fur coat?"

"No, ma'am. Her fur coat is a brown, mink I believe. And then she has a white fur coat—it's Russian ermine I think."

Millicent made a mental note that the butler knew more about this woman in the black ermine coat than he had told her. Undoubtedly he knew that the woman had called upon Mrs. Happ before, but Millicent had no time to follow up the subject.

She walked rapidly down the hall to Mr. Happ's study, knocked at the door and in response to his "Come in," opened the door and entered the room.

Jarvis Happ, looking very grave, was seated at his desk. He nodded and said, "Sit down, Millicent. I want to ask you some questions."

* * *

She dropped into the chair, suddenly feeling that peculiar psychic commotion which Jarvis Happ's magnetic personality and keen, peering eyes always caused.

"Dick Gentry was in your room last night," he said.

She flushed and started to make an indignant denial.

"No, no," he said, "don't misunderstand me. I mean he accompanied you to your door with the suitcase."

"Oh, yes."

"What did he say at that time?"

"How do you mean?"

"You know what I mean," he told her, with gentle but firm insistence. "He told you something he didn't want me to hear."

"What makes you think that?"

"Because of the look on his face when he left this room. Because of the look on his face when he emerged from your room."

"Perhaps," she said, "it was confidential."

"You shouldn't keep secrets from your employer."

"Perhaps it was one of those propositions a man sometimes makes to a woman, a proposition he doesn't mean exactly, but which he holds out as a glittering promise for the purpose of securing some temporary advantage."

"Such as?" Happ asked.

"Need you ask?"

"Yes," he said, "because I think this was an advantage that had something to do with me personally."

"I gathered," she said slowly, "that there was something in the books he was afraid of. After all, Mr. Happ, I'm working for you and I should be loyal to you. I didn't want to make the accusation directly, but since you've asked me I've told you."

He got to his feet, nodded, and said, "Come on, we're going down and take a look at those books right now. They're in your room?"

Fortunately she did not have to answer the question. Happ acted on the assumption that they were. He led the way down the corridor.

She opened the door of her room.

"In the closet?" he asked her.

She nodded dumbly.

Happ opened the door of the closet stood there looking about him in frowning concentration.

"I don't see any suitcase here," he said.

She peered over his shoulder.

The dummy suitcase had disappeared.

'Monster Woman' Brought To Life In 'Bride Of Frankenstein'

Strange Pair Of Lovers In Thrill Film

THE strangest pair of lovers in the history of the screen are seen in "The Bride of Frankenstein," the weirdly thrilling Universal drama now at the Paramount theater.

For this grotesque man and woman are unnatural creatures built up from parts of dead bodies—human beings, undoubtedly, but in reality grisly products of the graveyard! Burial crypts are robbed by a fanatical pair of half-mad scientists, crazed by their terrible experiments in actually creating life. A great laboratory on a hillside, filled with advanced electrical appliances, is the scene of their labors, and it is here that success crowns their efforts.

It was in the original "Frankenstein" that Karloff, "the Monster" of the story, was brought to life at the height of a crashing electrical storm, and in this sequel detailing his further adventures a mate is created for him in the person of Elsa Lanchester. Never before, it is said, has the screen shown scenes of such tremendous excitement as when the woman is brought to life. The storm rages and howls and flashes of lightning illuminate the interior of the great laboratory, already filled with darting flames and exploding balls of white smoke. The booming of the electrical apparatus rivals the crashing of thunder above, and the climax comes when the operating table bearing the lifeless form of the woman is lifted by long chains into an opening in the lofty roof, exposed to the fury of the elements. The electrical apparatus leaps into a final bedlam of explosions and brilliance and further impulses are brought down from huge kites at the end of copper wires, flying high in the very midst of the flashing lightning.

The "Monster Woman" is quickly lowered to the floor of the laboratory, and the trembling scientists swiftly unwrap the bandages in which she is encased. A finger moves, and she opens her great starring eyes. She's alive.

But a still greater climax is to follow, and the picture comes to an end on a high note that leaves the audience shaken and gasping.

Hollywood Close-Ups

By DAN THOMAS, NEA STAFF WRITER

A costume ball!

Naturally a city that is perennially on parade, Hollywood glories in an opportunity to abandon ordinary clothes in favor of brightly colored costumes for such occasions. And it doesn't make a bit of difference whether the party is a private affair or is staged for a scene in a picture. The same gay atmosphere prevails.

This cheerfulness was evident when some 200 players, mostly extras, gathered on one of the huge Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer stages for filming of a costume ball sequence in "The Flame Within," Ann Harding's new picture.

The scene was supposed to be a swanky affair given by New York's "Four Hundred" for hospital charities. The stage had been converted into a "circus night club"a huge ballroom with a sawdust ring and large circular slide in the center of the dance floor.

Miss Harding was wearing a simple but elegant black evening gown. Maureen O'Sullivan, her appearance completely changed by a white wig, was attired in a white Pierette outfit. Herbert Marshall and Louis Hayward, the other principals, wore a Pierrot garb and a tight-fitting harlequin costume, respectively.

As is the case on most large sets, there was much activity, but very little was being accomplished. Long delays, necessitated by camera and light setups and rehearsals of the players, separated each "take." But unlike the usual procedure, extras didn't wander off the set to play cards or amuse themselves in other ways during the long waits.

The spirit of the scene seemed to engross them so much that they actually were having a good time despite the hundred or more powerful lamps which cast a burning glare on them.

"Quiet, everybody, we'll try it once," called Director Edmund Goulding as I walked on the set.

James Wong Howe, Holywood's only Chinese cameraman, took his position behind the camera mounted on a huge crane that could be swung from one side of the set to the other.

After a few quick orders about changing certain lights slightly, he announced he was ready.

"Action!"

"Cut!"

Gouding beckoned Miss Harding and Hayward off to one side to explain a change in their action which he thought would improve the scene.

A dozen or more pretty girls attired in urses' costumes climbed to the top of the slide and came down in chains. A few were afraid to slide alone and all screamed with glee as they descended.

Well-dressed extras, who sat at the elaborate bar during the scene, begged the bartender for something to quench their thirst. He responded by drawing forth a real champagne bottle—and pouring out ginger ale! That's always substituted for champagne in pictures.

Movie moguls are afraid their players wouldn't work so well if given the real stuff.

A pretty blond wearing a costume made from strips of cellophane hurried over to a mirror to repair her makeup. She's supposed to be Lady Godiva in the picture. But censors insisted that she be a modest Godiva.

Tied just off the set, and a terrible temptation to extras with cigarets, was an enormous cluster of colored balloons to be dropped on the dancers at the proper time.

"All right, we'll try it again." That was Goulding's voice. The extras came to life, found their partners, and took their designated places on the dance floor.

The same scene was to be shot over again.

Four days were spent filming this sequence. It will run about five minutes in the finished picture.

Runyon Film Plays Today At Capitol

'Hold 'Em Yale' Is Termed Outstanding Laugh Attraction

THE Yales take the Harvards at football and half a dozen very delightful people take the cake in Damon Runyon's "Hold 'Em Yale," which plays today at the Capitol theater. This highly entertaining picture definitely rates as one of the outstanding laugh attractions of the year.

Though you might suspect from its title that "Hold 'Em Yale" is another of those football pictures, you're very much mistaken if you do so, for football plays a very minor part in the production.

As a matter of fact, what "Hold 'Em Yale" is, is a picturization of Damon Runyon's quaint Broadway slang on the screen—a process in which none of the quaintness, none of the hilarity of the original stories is lost.

"Hold 'Em Yale" is the story of such amiable characters as Sam the Gonoph, Louie Liverlips, Sunshine Joe and a few other such Runyon Broadway types. It's the story of Clarice van Cleve, a dizzy little wisp of a blonde with a yen for any male in a uniform, and of her father, who pays off theater ushers, policemen and chauffeurs to keep his daughter from running off into matrimony with them.

When "Georgie the Gigolo," the smooth pal of Sam the Gonoph, Louie Liverlips, et al, discovers Clarice's weakness, he invests in the snappiest uniform he can buy, and begins paying suit.

Clarice is bowled over, and Georgie sees his way clear to fame and fortune. But when Clarice's father disinherits her, Georgie's ardor cools, and he ducks out, leaving his companions to Clarice's none-too-tender mercies. She begins trying to make gentlemen out of these tough muggs and they try to marry her off to a college football player, that being the only way they can think of to get rid of her. What follows is the maddest, craziest denouement you've ever seen.

Splendily acted by Patricia Ellis, Larry Crabbe as the football hero, Cesar Romero as Georgie the Gigolo, William Frawley, Warren Hymer, Andy Devine and George E. Stone as the Broadway muggs, and George Barbier as the father, "Hold 'Em Yale" is indeed the comedy classic of the season.

DUTIES ARE ASSIGNED BY 'FOLK SCHOOL' GROUP

JONESBORO, La., May 18.—(Special)—Several assignments of duties were made at the meeting of the Jackson parish "Folk School" council Tuesday. The gathering was called for the purpose of making defnite plans for the school, which will be held in Jonesboro July 31-August 2.

Miss R. V. Clayton and Mrs. John Dennis were chosen to take charge of the art and music department. A publicity committee, consisting of Thurl Walker, chairman, Mr. Moss of Chatham school, Mr. Clark of Quitman school and Mr. Kemp of Eros school, was appointed. Rev. J. L. Dodge, Leon Mitchell and Rev. G. A. Morgan were selected to arrange for an inspirational program for the school. S. Kirkland and Morrell were chosen to make arrangements for participation in the school by Boy Scouts of America.

The council decided to go to Rayville May 20 to discuss with the Richland Parish "Folk School" council detailed plans for the organization of the Jackson parish school. The Richland parish school has been in operation for three years.

RUNYON COMEDY AT CAPITOL

The Baroness Cassini is intrigued by the gay Paris Revue star who gives such a fescinating impersonation of her husband, Merle Oberon, Walter Byron and Maurice Chevalier in "Folies Bergere," 20th Century's sparkling screen musical, released through United Artists and showing at the Paramount Theater for two days, Thursday and Friday.

Local Man Among Sailors Imprisoned In Submarine

M. W. Howell Tells Of Thrilling Experience Under Ocean

Caught in the so-called "Sailors' Hell Hole" in an undercurrent of waters in the Pacific off San Francisco, the U. S. submarine F-I was held captive like a chip on the sea. Its mechanism was powerless to cope with conditions. This was back in 1915; and when almost certain death stared the 18 members of the crew in the face, one of the number turned on the high pressure air blast and saved the lives of himself and his comrades.

All this is past and gone, yet few if any know that one of the 18 men, M. W. Howell, of 2917 Richmond street, Monroe, is one of the group. He is a man possessed of much modesty and dislikes to talk of his past experiences.

Howell, a Mississippian by birth, entered the navy in 1911 and traveled around the world. Listed among his experiences was a trip on the U. S. S. Perry, torpedo destroyer, which went to Alaska and other ports. Later he went into training for submarine work and was ultimately assigned to the F-I.

Shortly after his assignment, his boat was unwittingly caught in "Sailers' Hell Hole," the bane of all nautical men, for it marks the place, tradition says, where many years ago a ship loaded with gold was sunk with cargo and men and no trace was ever found of either. For some unaccountable reason, the ocean seems to possess violent undercurrents which no ship can withstand.

On the day in question, the F-I was precipitated into the vortex of these currents. All of a sudden the mercury blew out and depth gauges were suddenly destroyed. Steam gauges constructed so as to register only 250 feet were instantly put out of commission and as nearly as could be estimated the submarine went down to the incredible depth of 363 feet, which has possibly not been equalled before or since.

Men with faces blanched were unable to bring the boat under any control. Minutes seemed hours as men thought of their wives, families and sweethearts safely on land. But one veteran member of the crew possessed knowledge that others did not have. He turned on the high pressure air blast, of which there were 12, possessed of 2,200 pounds pressure. Like a gun of large size being discharged in a closed room, there was what seemed a terrific blast and instantly the craft tore loose from its entangling currents and began to rise like a shot out of a gun. To the surface it catapulated and even plunged above the surface of the waves.

The day had been saved and all hands still lived. The heroic treatment almost completely ruined the boat, rendering machinery useless and even the sides of the submarine were sprung and bulged out badly.

Once on the surface of the water, the boat lay helpless until some hours later the crew was towed into port.

Later the captain of the F-I was court martialed after an investigation of the accident had been conducted. The boat was rebuilt at a cost of $12,000 but it was later wrecked by accident.

Mr. Howell has had many exciting experiences before and during the World war in which he served in the navy. He has souvenirs consisting of parts of the Guyer, German gunboat interned by the Japanese at Honolulu. One of these is a steam gauge indicator. This and other souvenirs are carefully preserved in his home and one his somewhat unique houseboat which he maintains on the Ouschita river here.

Screen Life In Hollywood

By Hubbard Keavy

HOLLYWOOD.—An extraordinary father-and-son association, that began during the son's babyhood and continued as the boy grew up, ended when death took the father—Jack Coogan, Sr.—in a motor accident the other day.

While the elder Coogan was still in vaudeville, young Jack usually traveled with him, since father and mother were members of different acts. When young Jack became a screen star, his mother was his business manager and his father was his constant companion, on and off the set.

Jack saw as much of his mother as the average child does, but, due to the nature of their work and their great love for each other, father and son were in each other's company more than the average father and son. Friends say Jack wasn't spoiled, when he realized his importance in the world, because of his father's careful training.

Lesson For Jackie

When he completed "The Kid," Jackie was already a personality but not as famous as he later became. One day in a drugstore with his father, Jackie stepped over to the crowded soda fountain. Waiting to be served, he became impatient and began pounding the marble.

Getting the unimpressed clerk's attention, he said:

"I want a soda. Do you know who I am? I'm Jackie Coogan."

His father took a step to the boy's side and asked Jackie to repeat his remark. Jackie did. The father swung him around on the stool.

"Never, as long as I live, let me hear you say a thing like that again or I'll thrash you within an inch of your life. Who, in heaven's name, cares who you are? Get off that stool."

So far as anyone knows, Jackie never sinned again.

Golf Sticks And Guns

The elder Coogan's two hobbies were golf and hunting. Naturally, young Jack learned about both at an early age. It is said he was playing golf with his father when he was six and that, at seven, he knew how to handle a gun. It was while returning from a hunting trip that Mr. Coogan, Junior Durkin and two others were killed.

In his years of trouping, Father Coogan had seen many child actors and he knew how easy it was for them to become vain. In the early days of Jackie's success, his father never gave him spending money outright. Instead, he paid Jackie 50 cents for every movie "gag" he put on paper, which was about once a week. If the gag Jackie devised could be used in the picture, he was given $1. This method of making the boy "earn" his spending money proved very effective.

LEGION AUXILIARY MEETS

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., May 18.—(Special)—The May meeting of the Lake Providence chapter of the American Legion auxiliary was held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. C. A. Rose. Plans for the observance of annual Poppy Day May 25 with a sale of the flowers were completed. The auxiliary will be assisted in this event by the junior members. A committee was named to conduct a delicatessen sale for the organization on June 1. Mrs. Gene Fant Cohron, secretary, reported the emblem displayed by the auxiliary in the flower show won second place.

ALASKA REPORTS REPAIRING GAINS

Noteworthy Accomplishment Recorded By Land Of Midnight Sun

JUNEAU, Alaska.—Modernization volume throughout Alaska continued to show a noticeable increase during March, according to reports of the Territorial director. Total work reported to date amounts to $370,000.

Ground was broken here recently for construction of a $40,000 store and apartment building. The structure will be three stories high, with accommodations for two stores on the ground floor and modern apartments on the second and third floors.

Work has just begun on a $150,000 power-distribution plant for the Alaska Juneau Gold Mining Co. The project includes construction of several small dwellings.

A $75,000 airport is being built here by the Pacific Alaska Airways a subsidiary of the Pan-American Airways. This project also calls for the construction of several small homes.

Modernization activity is also reported on the salmon-packing industry. During the past week $20,000 was expended in improving packing plants at Cardova. Other plant improvements are under way at Taku Harbor, Craig, Waterfall, Wrangell and Ketchikan. The extent of this work has not yet been determined. Other outstanding modernization projects in Alaska include a $25,000 store and apartment building at Peterburg, a $25,000 swimming pool and recreation building here, and a $50,000 apartment building at Nome. Several other commercial and industrial improvements are being considered in other parts of the Territory.

Reports have reached the Territorial director that there is a crying need for new home and apartment construction here, in Ketchikan, Fairbanks and Nome. A demand is noted among the citizens for insured mortgage loans. Action is awaiting an adequate architectural set-up.

STUDENTS ENLIST IN ESSAY GROUP

Pupils Eager For Awards To Be Granted On Better Housing Theme

WASHINGTON, D. C.—High school students from every state of the Union are enrolling in the National Educational Better Housing contest, according to reports received by the Federal Housing administration.

Thousands of boys and girls, according to reports, are engaged in writing essays on "Better Housing and the Home," which are to be presented in both oral and written form—the winners, a boy and a girl, to go on the air over a coast-to-coast hookup.

In some places entire cities have entered the contest under the direction of the head of the school system. In the state of Texas, Dr. Will French, district superintendent, has presented the contest to the 47 high schools in his territory. This represents nearly 31,000 students who are eligible to enroll in the contest.

Erie, Pa., has enrolled eight high schools under Superintendent of Schools John C. Diehl. In California, Jay Keegan, associate director of the Federal Housing administration, has enlisted the support of the superintendent of high schools of San Francisco, John C. McGlade. Seven high schools have been entered in the contest by Mr. McGlade.

Regional directors, state directors, associate directors, and the field staff of the Federal Housing administration, as well as chairmen of better-housing program committees, are lending enthusiastic support to the contest. Through it they see an opportunity to focus the attention of the coming generation of home owners on housing conditions in their own communities. A sufficient diversity of topics has been allowed so that city, suburban, and farm homes may come under discussion. In this manner an important stimulus can be given toward raising individual standards of living and toward improving housing conditions through civic projects.

Cash prizes and gold medals will be awarded national winners. The contest is sponsored by a national industrial committee.

FHA BOOSTS BUSINESS OVER FORTY PER CENT

NEWARK, N. J.—The Paramount Home Improvement Corporation, operating in eight Eastern and Middle Western states, reports that it has financed not less than $75,000 worth of business through the Federal Housing Administration, according to Thomas E. Colleton, Associate Director of New Jersey.

Ernest Kohlsaat, president of the corporation, stated recently:

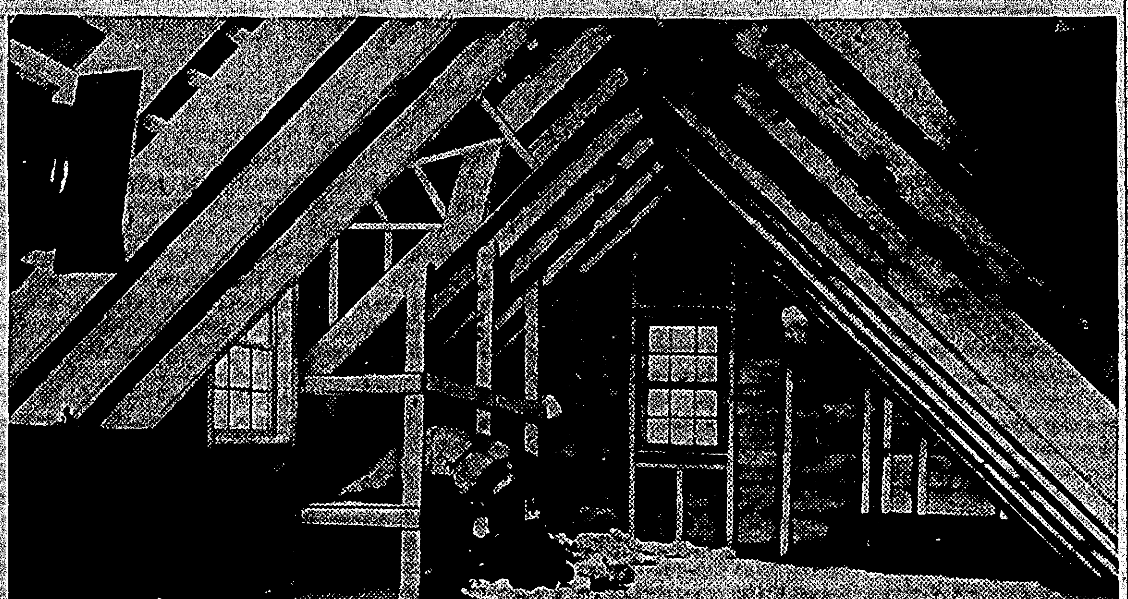
"Of our total volume of business, about 75 per cent is being financed through the Federal Housing Administration, whereas the balance is handled on a strictly cash basis.

"Before the Federal Housing Administration came into effect we, of course, were already handling through regular finance companies a large volume of business on the installment plan. However, with the introduction of the Federal Housing Administration and its low cost of financing, we feel that our installment volume has been increased at least 40 per cent, besides stimulating a considerable amount of cash business.

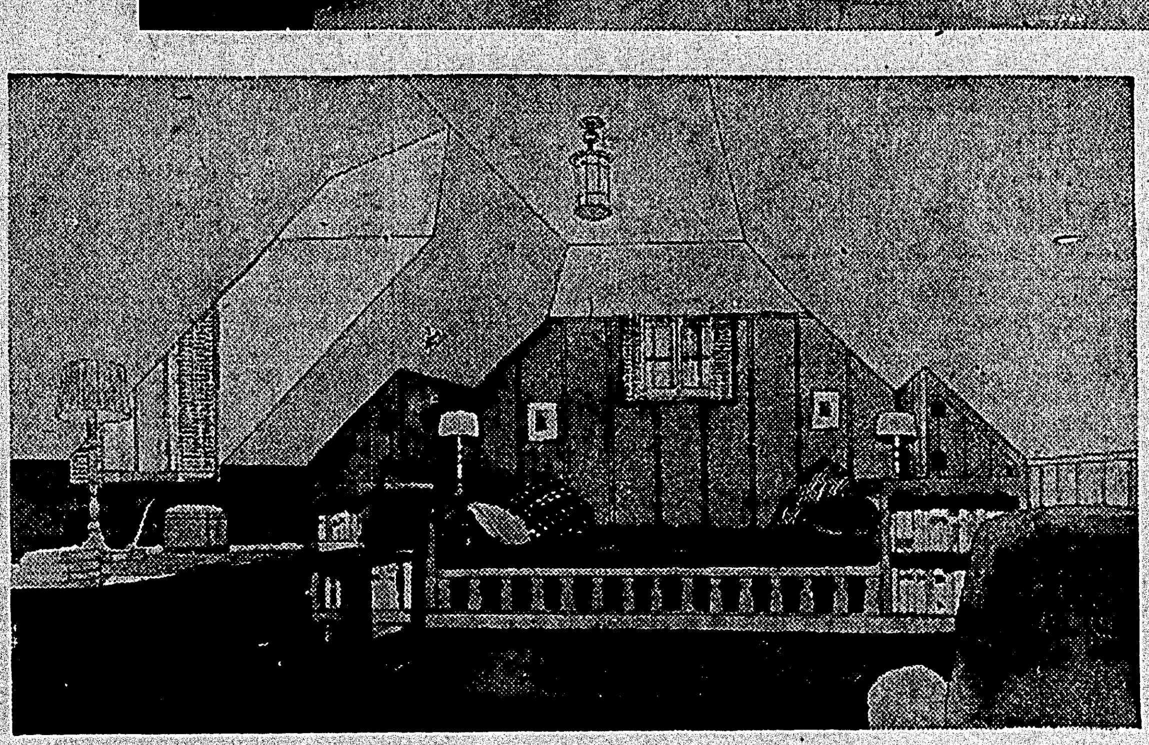
"In our opinion, the Federal Housing Administration offers wonderful possibilities; and, if only every builder and contractor throughout the country would take advantage of this plan, the building industry will do its share to lead this country slowly but surely toward better times."

Make Additional Room by Utilizing Attic

BEFORE



AND AFTER



When carefully planned, many interesting modernizations are possible in attic space. The above illustrations give an example how an unused attic may be converted into an attractive bedroom. Wallboard encloses the bare rafters in an effective wall and ceiling treatment. Built-in furniture may be included to advantage in this type of remodeling. The transformation of an attic provides the home with an extra bedroom, playroom, study, or whatever the owner wishes it to be. Insulation under the roof prevents much discomfort in Summer and makes the room adequate in Winter for all living purposes. Under the provisions of the Federal Housing Administration's Modernization Credit Plan funds are easily obtainable through approved lending institutions for attic modernization.

INCREASES RENTAL

TULSA, Okla.—Modernization of a rental property here materially increased its rental value to its owner.

A woman whose name is on file at the Tulsa better-housing office repaired and moderninzed a house she owned, being inspired by the better-housing program. Previous to modernization she had received $10 a month rent. Now she is getting $25 a month for the property and was recently offered $35 a month.

MODERNIZE HOTEL, REDUCE VACANCIES

The Oak Grove hotel was built 18 years ago. Until recently vacancies averaged 65 per cent. Not long ago the hotel changed ownership. The new owner invested $50,000 in modernizing the building. New refrigeration, lighting and heating systems, lobbies, and all kitchens were modernized, and the entire building redecorated.

Vacancies have been reduced to about 5 per cent as a result, according to the owner. Rentals are higher, and the hostelry is now considered one of the most modern of its kind in the city.

WILL ROGERS WIRES APPROVAL OF FHA

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—Will Rogers, noted humorist, added his approval to the better housing movement in a telegram recently to the Better Homes and Appliance exposition at New Haven, Conn.

Mr. Rogers said:

"Congratulations and best wishes. Hope your Better Homes exposition is big success. Life does not begin at forty. It commences when two get married and try to live as cheap as one. Your exposition should sure give the young folks ideas how to get the most out of a dollar. Good luck. —Will Rogers."

PLEDGE $15 PER CAPITA

ROME, Ga.—Indications here are that pledges for modernization and repair will average between $15 and $20 per capita by the time the local better-housing canvass is completed. Rome's population is 21,000. To date $210,569 in modernization and repair pledges have been obtained.

NOTABLE RISE IN LOADING OF CARS

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Encouraging increases in carloadings of building materials during the first quarter in 1935 and forecasts of further increases is received from authoritative sources by the Federal Housing Administration.

Shippers' advisory boards anticipate that 72,449 more cars will be required for shipping building materials for the second quarter of 1935 than were needed in the same period last year. This represents an increase of 8.3 per cent. Experts consider this particularly noteworthy in view of the unusually large freight movement in June 1934. The forecast of carloadings of all other classifications, exclusive of building materials indicates a decrease of 69,953 cars.

N. Y. C. Reports Gain

The New York Central railroad reported a 35.6 per cent increase in carloadings of building materials handled by the road, excluding the Boston & Albany, during March 1935. There were 7,710 carloads of building materials handled during the month.

Carloads delivered to consignees totaled 4,464, an increase of 50.2 per cent over March 1934, according to railroad officials. This increase, they said, is all the more significant in view of the fact that total loadings and receipts during March decreased 7.5 per cent and total deliveries decreased 5.1 per cent.

Lumber orders during the first 14 weeks of 1935 were 18 per cent above orders of the same period in 1934, according to a report from the National Lumber Manufacturers association. Carloadings for 13 weeks were 114,918 cars, compared with 106,829 cars in the same period last year, an increase of 7.5 per cent.

WALL PAPER USEFUL FOR NEW PANELING

A new use has been found for the many new and artistically designed wall papers now on the market.

In rooms where a paneled effect is produced by wood trim, applied to break up large expanses of plain wall space, home owners are buying wall paper in quantities sufficient to fill one or more of these paneled spaces.

A variation of this idea is used where a room is papered in a flat color and some one point, such as a closed arch or sealed doorway, requires special accentuation. Careful selection of a strong, harmonizing design has been found to be effective, especially when the proper table or other piece of furniture is placed in correct relation to it.

PACIFIC COAST BANK MAKING HOUSE LOANS

PORTLAND, Ore.—The first National bank of Portland, Oreg., with resources of $60,821,000 and one of the largest banks in the Pacific northwest, began writing mortgages under the insured mortgage plan of the National Housing Act on April 1, 1935, the Federal Housing Administration is advised.

The bank has 16 branches throughout the state of Oregon. All other large banks in the state are expected to follow this action, according to the state director for Oregon.

The First National Bank of Portland is the oldest national bank west of the Rocky Mountains.

"QUALITY MARKED"

The spirit of the day is to improve, and to improve is the spirit of progress. You see it in homes, you see it in stores, you see it in factories and office buildings. It is just as true of your property in buildings, regardless of their shape, size or use, that simple improvement and modernization will afford you new advantages and greater opportunities. Whether you decide to improve your buildings inside or out, or both, three definite benefits are immediately acquired. First, your property increases in value. Second, its modern appearance creates new appeal and exacts more appreciation from friends, customers and prospective tenants. Third, its conveniences to occupants are increased, making way for extensive savings to you in operating costs.

We invite you to call on the following yards in the Twin Cities of Monroe and West Monroe to inspect our material and satisfy yourselves as to its high quality.

SPEND $394,000 FOR REPAIRING

Automobile Concern Improves 1,764 Homes Under Housing Program

DETROIT, Mich.—Real estate officers of the General Motors corporation reported recently to the Michigan director of the Federal Housing administration that they had spent $394,000 during the last year on the modernization of 1,764 homes in which General Motors is financially interested.

William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors, has also signed the "Declaration of Detroit," whereby 100 industrialists endorsed the better housing program of the Federal Housing administration.

The General Motors homes are under control of Modern Housing corporation, a subsidiary. During various housing shortages since the World war, this unit has financed and supervised the construction of 4,207 homes and has sold, rented, or leased them to employe sand others as follows: In Flint, 3,145 homes; in Pontiac, 822 homes; in Lansing, 27 homes; Jonesville, Wis., 212 homes. Thirty-five miles of paved streets were built by Modern Housing corporation in a 1,000-acre tract in Flint where better design and construction of small homes was encouraged.

General Motors' modernization bill on its rented property in Flint and Pontiac alone was apportioned to the building trades as follows:

	Flint	Pontiac
Exterior painting	$20,000	$25,000
Interior decorating	132,000	83,000
Repairs by carpenters, electricians	12,000	17,000
Plumbing	10,000	15,000
Heating	13,000	7,000
Miscellaneous	36,000	1,000

Modernization credit totaling $4,000 has been allowed recently to purchasers of homes in Flint sold by General Motors, it is reported; in Pontiac, $1,000.

Three large trucks were required to haul the paint used recently in painting 450 houses owned by the corporation.

"The regular maintenance of property is a good business proposition," Chester M. Bullard, Flint, general manager of the Modern Housing corporation, stated. "General Motors is not in the business of constructing homes. It is not building any at the present time. Those mentioned were only for special emergency purposes.

"The modernization program fostered by the Federal Housing administration encourages all home owners to protect and enhance their property. America, a nation of home owners, would mean America at its greatest economic goal."

SCHOOL BANKS SUGGEST HOUSING PLAN ECONOMY

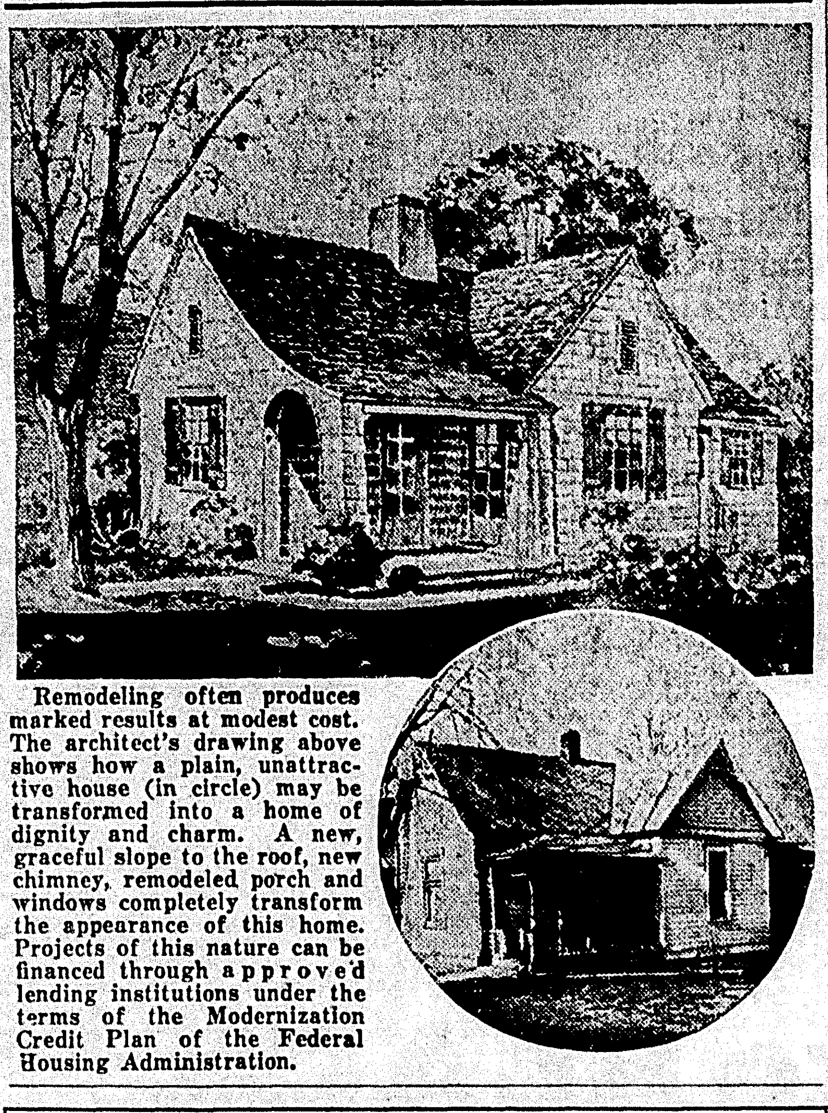
LOS ANGELES, Calif.—A new practice has been inaugurated here to further acquaint representatives of financial institutions with the mechanics of the mutual mortgage insurance plan of the Federal Housing administration.

Bankers' day has been instituted each week in the better housing headquarters. On a specified day representatives of certain banks are invited to send the member of their organization handling insured mortgage applications to better housing headquarters. There he is acquainted with the method of issuing commitments. He follows an application from the time it enters the office until it is definitely committed or rejected. The Los Angeles office of the Federal Housing Administration has given commitments on loans under the mutual mortgage insurance plan totaling $1,203,280. The average life of the loans is 16 years and 18 months for an average of 72.95 percent of the valuation of the property.

ALL EMPLOYED

FORT SMITH, Ark.—There is not one carpenter or painter remaining on relief rolls here, according to a report by the Associate Director for the state better-housing organization. This is the first time this condition has existed in many months, according to the director. A better-housing exhibit is being held in the heart of the business district, sponsored by building supply dealers, with a generous display of materials and fixtures. Widespread public interest is reported.

Economical Remodeling



Remodeling often produces marked results at modest cost. The architect's drawing above shows how a plain, unattractive house (in circle) may be transformed into a home of dignity and charm. A new, graceful slope to the roof, new chimney, remodeled porch and windows completely transform the appearance of this home. Projects of this nature can be financed through approved lending institutions under the terms of the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

Housing Question Box

Q.—I am building a new home and would like to know if the walls should be plastered after the wood floor and interior woodwork is installed.

A.—No. By all means have the rooms plastered and dried out as thoroughly as possible before installing the interior woodwork and the flooring. Otherwise the wood, which has been thoroughly dried, may absorb dampness from the plaster, causing it to swell. Furthermore, installing the wood after the plaster is dry will prevent any possibility of discoloration by the action of lime fumes. It is advisable to have all masonry as dry as possible before installing dry wood.

Q.—How can I keep rain and snow water which descends through the downspout from seeping down the outside of the basement walls and penetrating into the basement?

A.—It is desirable to connect the downspouts with a storm sewer. When this cannot be done, then splash blocks, consisting of concrete or other durable materials, should be placed under the end of the downspouts. They should slope away from the house and be of sufficient length so as to carry the water far from the wall.

Q.—How can I prevent my roof from sagging?

A.—Braces or collar ties should be added if the rafter span is too long. It is often necessary for rafters to support tremendous loads, especially in regions of heavy snowfalls. Unless the rafters are braced the roof may also sag because of structural weakening at the joints when subjected to heavy windstorms.

Q.—I have a kerosene heater attached to the hot-water tank. The tank is also connected to the furnace. I get good results with the kerosene heater but poor results from the furnace heat. How can this situation be corrected?

A.—It is a common practice to attach a hot-water tank to a furnace, but this is only considered good practice for certain types of installations. In some cases it interfered with the efficiency of the heating system. Also, unless the furnace is of sufficient size, the heat required for heating the hot water is often needed for heating the home. When the furnace is connected with the water tank the pipes, of course, must be properly installed as to location and slope. Sometimes, when there are minerals or chemicals in the water, such as calcium, the hot water pipe becomes clogged, interfering with the free circulation of the water. You will find details of hot-water-tank installations in United States Department of Agriculture Farmer's Bulletin 1426, entitled "Farm Plumbing." A copy of this may be obtained for 5 cents, cash or money order (stamps not accepted), from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C.

Q.—I have been informed that water-softening equipment will insure better functioning of the hot-water-heating equipment. How could this be possible? Can the installation of water-softening equipment be financed under the FHA plan?

A.—You have been correctly informed. Hard water tends to reduce the efficiency of water-heating equipment by the deposit of chemicals, such as lime, on the coils. In certain sections of the country it is necessary to have the coils cleaned out periodically. This expense can usually be avoided and a considerable amount of money on fuel saved by the installation of modern water-softening equipment, which can be financed under the modernization credit plan of the Federal Housing Administration. Soft water also results in the more satisfactory use of soap and protects fabrics in laundering.

A.—The best way to preserve shade trees that have started to decay is to cut out all the dead and decayed matter, making the cavities absulutely clean. A thick coating of hot tar should then be placed over each wound to act as an expansion joint. If the cavity is deep, concrete may be reinforced by driving 20-penny nails in the wood and tying on one-fourth-inch reinforcing bars. Mold the concrete to the shape of the trunk.

Q.—When stuccoing a house how should you specify the kind of surface finish you want?

A.—The desired finish should be specified by name. There are about 23 distinct finishes for portland-cement stucco, all of which may be variod by the use of color pigments in the finish coat. Before ordering a stucco "overcoat" on your house consult your contractor's samples or charts, which show how the finish appears when applied. The popular stucco finishes are Travertine, Italian, English Cottage, Colonial, American and Californian.

FIRE HAZARD

Quite often the smoke pipe opening into the flue has rough, irregular edges or the smoke pipe may be too small to fit snugly in the opening. If the crack around the pipe is not filled with asbestos cement, or some other suitable type of five-resistant material, a fire hazard exists. Furthermore, air drawn in the chimney through the cracks around the smoke pipe retards the draft which would normally be drawn through the furnace or other heating unit. Very hot fires which may have been kept in the heating unit during the winter may have caused the fire-resistant material in which the pipe is embedded in the flue opening to become cracked and loosened. It should be carefully inspected and defective material replaced.

FOOD STOREROOM IN REPAIR PLANS

Summer Is Ideal Time To Modernize Storage Places For Foodstuffs

The supply of fruits and vegetables of all kinds which many home owners store in the fall in anticipation of winter needs usually becomes exhausted in the spring.

When not consumed they often deteriorate rapidly during warm weather. Many decay to a certain extent during the winter when stocked in storage bins, especially when the storage room is not well insulated to keep out excessive cold, heat, or dampness.

When the storage room with its numerous bins, shelves, and other receptacles is comparatively empty, the home owner has an excellent opportunity to give it a thorough spring cleaning and so condition it that he may have proper storage for new supplies as they are canned, preserved, or stored. Decayed fruits and vegetables and all rubbish should be removed and the storage room scrubbed and ventilated to eliminate odors. Then shelves and bins may be repaired and additional ones installed if needed.

If the storage room is in one corner of the basement or adjoins a basement wall, it is possible that masonry needs repairing and damp-proofing. A new floor of wood or other suitable material laid over the basement floor with an air space in between the two will help keep the room dry. Then insulating the walls and installing a ceiling will assist in maintaining a uniform cool temperature throughout the year.

A small window protected against the direct rays of the sun is desirable for ventilation. Artificial light, of course, should be installed for quick use at all times.

After the room has been thoroughly cleaned, ventilated, dried out, and repaired a fresh coat of paint will brighten it up and assist in making it more sanitary and easily cleaned.

Fruit, vegetable, and other types of storage rooms may be conditioned and installed through funds obtained from an approved financial institution under the easy payment modernization credit plan of the Federal Housing administration.

Scientists have found that the growth rate of chicks increases as the temperature in which they are raised decreases.

BUSINESS SO BRISK BANK CAN'T REPORT

PHOENIX, Ariz.—The volume of new applications for modernization credit which have poured into the Valley National bank here has seriously hampered the bank in reporting applications for insurance to the Federal Housing administration.

Officials say that they consider it more important to approve new applications than to make immediate reports. So far the bank has approved more than 100 applications, with an additional 100 which have yet to be reported for insurance.

Although the bank has established a special department to care for modernization credit and insured-mortgage applications, and has also increased its personnel, the volume of business has made it impossible to report all the applications. Officials express their intention of issuing $500,000 in modernization credit by September 1.

Like water off a duck's back!
J-M Roof Coatings make old roofs absolutely water-shedding

WATER runs off a roof treated with Johns-Manville Roof Coating like water off a duck's back. Even leaky composition or metal roofs may become absolutely water-shedding when treated with J-M Roof Coating. Not a drop of rain, sleet or melted snow can seep through!

When the roof has cracks or small holes, use J-M Fibrous Enamel. Its heavy asbestos fibre content bridges gaps and forms a protective membrane over the entire roof area. Regal Roof Coating, a similar material, but without the asbestos, can be used when the roof is in better condition.

All J-M Roof Coatings can be applied with a large brush. A simple treatment—yet it will make your old roof good for many more years. Full directions on every container.

CHEAP PAINT... is entirely TOO EXPENSIVE

● Low-grade paint always costs far more in the long run than high-grade paint. That's because good paint—like Lowe Brothers High Standard—covers more surface to the gallon, retains its finish much longer, cuts down painters' time and looks better. Before you paint come in and get the facts about paint economy. We can save you money.

Let Us Help You Finance Your Repairs or Your New Home Thru the Nelson and Cole's FHA Finance Plan.

Your Property Does Not Have to be Free from Mortgage or Indebtedness

This Finance Plan Is Easy, Simple and Convenient

Here Is a Typical Example of Cost

Cost of improvement $250.00 you sign note for $287.45 and repay in 36 payments of $7.98 each—which payments include interest. Total cost to you for interest and other charges $37.45. First payment becoming due 30 days after the job is completed and accepted by you.
